City even keeled

2012 Budget approved without dissension

By Andrew Firestone

In a move expected from the outset, the Somerville Board of Aldermen voted unanimously to approve the proposed $169.7 million budget for the fiscal year 2012 last Thursday, June 26. While a quiet affair, there were still a few dissenting opinions regarding the methods of bridging the budget gap, which include increasing ticket and parking fees. These concerns were overshadowed by the relief many aldermen had for the lack of contention, or cutting of services.

"We are a $169 million business and that we have been able to balance our budget while improving services rather than making debilitating cuts is a credit to the Mayor, the Board, the department heads and everybody who works for this City," Said Alderman-At-Large Jack Connolly."We do not live in a perfect world, but we are in a better place because we continue to make the right choices instead of the easy choices."

While maintaining an operating budget of $182 million, the City will eliminate only nine jobs, with three of these being actual lay-offs. In debate following the original Continued on page 11

NEWSTALK

On Thursday, June 30, (rain date of July seven) join Mayor Joseph Curtatone and the City of Somerville for the annual fourth of July Fireworks, with live entertainment beginning at 6:00 p.m. The entertainment lineup for the Fireworks includes performances by the Somerville Sunsetters, local Disco-Funk band Booty Vortex, the USO Metropolitan New York Performers, and the U.S. Navy Band Northeast Show Band, leading up to a 30-minute fireworks display at approximately 9:15 p.m. In case of rain the live entertainment will be moved indoors. This Thursday evening at Trum Field, remember.

Two local organizations had their new officers installed. First with Somerville Lions the new President Paul Carroll, well known here in the 'Ville following two years of Billy Tauro, who now is Past President. There was a great crowd on Friday night at the club house and we wish Paul the best in his term of office. Then a popular lady who has been with Century Bank here in Somerville now for about 2 years, Jeannie Scarpa, is stepping into the position of President of Somerville Rotary. Her installation was week ago Friday. We wish her well.

One more person pulled papers for Alderman-at-Large. Sean Fitzgerald, a well know local who has been heavily involved in many campaigns himself, will have only two days to get his signatures together. Today, Wednesday, is the deadline to submit signatures. If he gets certified he will be in a race of seven for the four seats. Because we don't have nine running there will be no primary. It will be the four incumbents facing the three newbies. It should be interesting and we will be following this closely.

Responses to Somerville Police: 'Blatant disregard for narcotics laws'

Me says:

The law is broken, and it causes wastes of time an money. No serious study ever found Marijuana addictive. I do have the same opinion on Alcohol, oxycontin and heroin, of which are addictive. If someone wants to use them, go for it. The costs are internalized.

No willing trade between two consensual adults should have to require the police to deal with it. I would prefer the were dealing with rape, assault and other crimes that have external costs on individuals.

AA and other programs do a great service, and should get some gov't support. But the addiction is not a criminal problem and you and other need to stop seeing that as a solution to a medical and social problem.

You and others that see it as a solution, are causing more harm by using your high mindedness to obscure the solution, and cause the problem to go on.

j. connelly says:

There is no such thing as a victimless crime..People rob, steal, etc., to obtain $$$ to buy drugs.

When they rip off your car, home, personal belongings [or in some cases "your stash"] & you become a victim, then your attitude will change.

I notice in recent news accounts of dealers bagged by police in Davis Sq./Statue Park, the majority of dealers were from other towns.

Residents, Aldermen meet to discuss MaxPac rat troubles

By Andrew Firestone

In Somerville, the daily rat race sometimes takes on a more literal meaning. In this case, it is the increased number of rat sightings in Ward 4, seemingly coming from the MaxPac construction site. Currently being prepared by KSS Realty, some residents say that recent holes being dug have displaced a host of vermin, and they mean to do something about it.

Which is why on Monday, June 27, Aldermen Bruce Desmond and Sean O'Donovan were joined by George Landers, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds for the DPW, for a meeting at Albion Park, where rats had recently been seen. There, they spoke with members of the community and unveiled their game plan.

"[KSS subcontractors], are causing a nuisance," said Landers. "They cannot cause a nuisance in the city without addressing it correctly."

In a statement, Frank Bucca, an 80-year resident of the neighborhood, said that the sewage preparation being done for the long bemoaned site apparently displaced the rats living in the pipes. He said that he had never seen any rats in the neighborhood for as long as he could remember.

While baiting was required for KSS, the aldermen let it be known that they were taking this seriously, and were even thinking of asking KSS to foot the bill for the eradication.

"If you see four or five rats running across an open area, like a park, you've got a problem," said Desmond.

Landers led the discussion and urged the residents to continue to cover their trash and report sightings of rats. "We're seeing a lot of rats around here and the main cause of it is the MaxPac site."

He said that, having lived there for almost 30 years, he had never seen so much as a mouse. "I was director of [the Inspectional Services Division] for five years, and I never had a complaint about rats in this neighborhood."

He added, "I think Bruce and Sean are going to beat [KSS] up."

As the MaxPac site is suspected of being the source of recent rodent sitings in the area, officials are demanding that the developer, KSS Realty, leads the effort to take control of the situation.

"If they were raccoons, I could just whack 'em," said Bob Serrano. He said he sees rats while walking his dog and has caught them rummaging around in his trash. "I worry about them getting in the house, especially with the grandchildren."

Desmond and O'Donovan said they would look into what baiting had been done, and see if KSS was cooperating responsibly. They also said that they would see if Best Pest Control, whom KSS uses for the baiting, could be used with half the costs being shared between residents and MaxPac in case of there being infestations on home properties.

"Now being here and being part of it, I will make sure and continue to call and make sure that they looking into it and checking and making sure the baiting is being done," said resident Debbie Burdulis. Burdulis said she was satisfied that the aldermen and the City had shown their devotion to the neighborhood and their concern over the problem.

'Citizen Somerville'

By Andrew Firestone

With the arrest of longtime fugitive and FBI informant James "Whitey" Bulger after 16 years in hiding, Bobby Martini, author of the street-memoir Citizen Somerville remembers not the feared criminal mastermind, but a Winter Hill associate with a reputation similar to his word, black.

"Whitey came into the picture in 1972 because his own people in South Boston wanted to kill him," said Martini. Martini relates that the South Boston gang war of the times had taken a toll on Bulger's Killeen Gang, and Bulger was apparently scared for his life. He rushed to then Winter Hill Gang leaders Joseph Mc-Donald and Howie Winter for protection and in the end a deal was brokered that saved Bulger's life from the rival Mullen Gang.

"A year later, he was accused of killing [Mullen Gang leader] Paulie McGonagle. He thought that far ahead, Whitey. After Howie had a sitdown and said 'OK, let's have peace' Whitey in his mind was just thinking ahead to how he was going to kill them."

The deal brokered transferred power of the South Boston Killeen Gang over to Winter, in an effective merger.

When asked if he thought the two men were friends, Martini responded, "they were associates in the '70s, but that is about it."

Bulger allegedly led the Winter Hill Gang after Winter's arrest in 1979, but there was little in common with the original gang, now transferred to Lancaster St. in Boston.

Martini said there was little love for Bulger in Somerville, unlike his famous "Robin Hood" image in South Boston. He recalled that at times, Bulger had overstepped his bearings. Martini remembered a story about his father, who owned a garage and did some work for the Winter Hill Gang in the '60s.

Martini's father, also named

Bobby, had been talking with a friend about Bulger, and said that he did not trust the man, and did not like him because of it. Martini relates that an associate of Bulger overheard, approached him and said Whitey would not be happy he was saying that.

Word traveled around fast in those days, said Martini, and one day shortly thereafter, Bulger was approached by Captain Buddy White of the Somerville Police. "Whatever happens to Bobby Martini, the same thing is going to happen to you the next day," White said.

Martini also said that the arrest of Bulger brought closure to him and his sister, Patty, who was married to Brian Halloran at the time, an informant whom Bulger allegedly murdered himself. Halloran left behind two sons, Sean and Justin, Martini's nephews.

As for Winter, who brought Bulger into the Winter Hill Gang, Martini said he talked to him only a few days before the publishing of this article, and his opinion remains the same. "If you don't have anything nice to say, you probably shouldn't say it," Martini quotes Winter saying.

Bulger now resides in a cell at the Plymouth County House of Correction, awaiting a plethora of charges including 19 murders.

Forger attempts passing fake prescription

The pharmacist at the Rite Aid Pharmacy on Broadway did not like the looks of a prescription for Percocet submitted last Friday, so police officers were called in to investigate.

Upon arrival, the officers noticed a man who appeared to be very nervous and who attempted to leave when he noticed their arrival, according to reports. James F. Davison III, 38, was detained while the officers investigated the matter.

The pharmacist reportedly stated that he was very suspicious of the prescription because it appeared to be incomplete and also included an incorrect dosage.

Asked when and where Davison got the prescription, he reportedly claimed that it was obtained from his doctor"the other day." A copy of the prescription in question was faxed to Davison's doctor's office for verification, but the office manager stated that the paper used was not like theirs and that Davison had not been issued such a prescription, police said.

Davison was arrested and charged with uttering false prescription and forgery of a

Intruder just wanted his privacy

Police were summoned to a College Avenue apartment complex in the wee hours of the morning last Saturday on a report that an unwanted man had locked himself into a common area of the building, according to reports.

Police say that residents of the building told them that the intruder had entered, uninvited, and took over the TV room, refusing to allow anyone else to enter.

Officers at the scene reportedly attempted to talk the man into unlocking the door but he refused to do so, asking them to just go away. The door was eventually kicked open and the man asked, "how do I know you are police officers?" - even though they were fully uniformed at the time, according to police.

The man was escorted outside, where he reportedly became highly belligerent and shouted profanities at the investigating officers, who felt that the man was highly intoxicated and not making any sense.

Sean Nelson, 29, of Medford, was then taken into custody and charged with felony nighttime breaking and entering, disorderly conduct, and resisting arrest.

Road rager's rampage

While responding to reports of excessive noise in the Somerville Avenue and Prospect Street area last Saturday, police officers reportedly observed the driver of a pick-up truck honking his horn non-stop at another motorist.

As traffic proceeded through the intersection, the truck, still sounding its horn, made an abrupt change from the left to the right lane, causing traffic to stop suddenly to avoid accidents, police said.

The truck then reportedly sped up and abruptly made a left lane change in order to be in front of the vehicle that the operator of the pick-up was honking at.

The officers at the scene pulled the truck over and questioned the driver, Fernando Peixoto, 29, of Brighton. He was found to be without a valid Massachusetts driver's license.

Peixoto was arrested and charged with reckless operation of a motor vehicle and unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle.

Alleged drug dealer to be leaving U.S.

Last Friday Somerville Police Detectives and the Cambridge Police Special Investigations Unit conducted surveillance in the area of Lower East Somerville and successfully served arrest warrants on a man suspected of drug trafficking.

Police report that at the time of the arrest the man was in possession of what was believed to be cocaine, ecstasy, and marijuana.

The man reportedly gave arresting officers a false name, but fingerprint data established his true identity as Fabricio Domingos, 31, and he was also found to be wanted by the Department of Homeland Security Federal Customs and Immigration Enforcement for removal processing.

He was charged with drug law violations and furnishing a false name or Social Security number.

Washington Street Station update

By Harry Kane

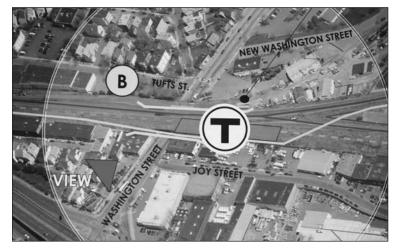

The Green Line Extension Project has been in the planning stages since 1962, beginning with the North Terminal Area Study. Fast forward to 2011 and the Washington St. Station is in the preliminary engineering and design stages.

The Massachusetts Department of Transportation has been reaching out to Somerville residents by holding station workshops for community members to voice their opinions and concerns.

According to Mary R. Ainsley, the Director of Design &

Construction at Mass DOT, "The workshops are going great. Everybody is engaging and sharing their input. So far the neighborhood has been embracing the process and it's been positive." More station workshops are scheduled for September and October.

The Washington St. Station will be located at the bridge near McGrath highway and the two entrances will be on Washington St. at Tufts St. and Joy St. Some concerns were brought up during the meeting including the coordination with the McGrath Highway plans.

The recent Massachusetts Department of Transportation Washington Street station workshop drew residents and planners together to address concerns and answer questions about the latest developments in the Green Line extension project.

Karen E. Arpino-Shaffer, the Project Manager for Gilbane Building Company, says, "At some point the five bridges will start to undergo a widening to make room for a four-track configuration." This initial construction will transpire during the final stages of the design. The goal for this year is to complete a 30% design builder package by Autumn of 2011.

The MBTA policy is "all for one and one for all." If escalators and stairs are present then there will be an elevator. This will allow for those in wheelchairs, pushing strollers or the elderly to make their way to the train. The Green Line Extension Project hopes to improve air quality, improve corridor mobility and regional access, and boost transit ridership.

Pick n Go suspect arrested

Wallace was arrested without incident after Somerville detectives received several tips naming him following the release of surveillance video to the media.

A warrant was issued for his arrest on Monday. A subsequent search led to the discov-

City to construct new hockey rink in Conway Park

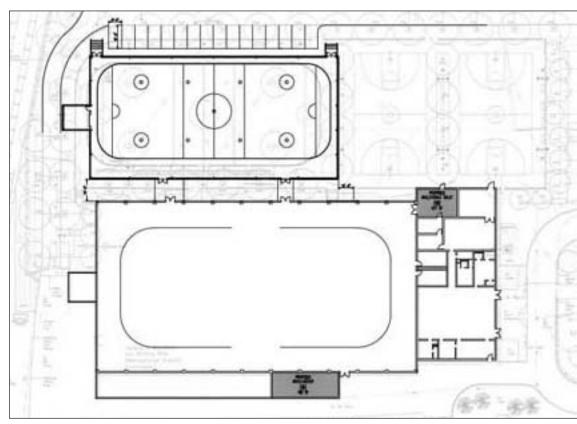

By Andrew Firestone

Get ready to bust out the ice blades! The Somerville Board of Aldermen approved the authorof borrowing ization $2,435,355 bond for construction of a new outdoor skating rink. Highlander Hockey may have a new house, in the form of a new rink built adjacent to the old one at Veteran's Memorial Ice Rink on Somerville Ave.

Ward 2 Alderwoman Maryann Heuston said that interest in hockey had grown with the youth of the city."I think there is a need for additional capacity," she said. "It seems like something we should do, because there is a need for it. It's basically going to end up generating its own revenue."

The reasons for construction, detailed by the Mayor in a power point presentation to the BOA, was that the indoor ice rink did not meet demand by the public for such activities as icetime for existing hockey programs, figure skating training, and for the future girls hockey program. The rink will be a selfsustaining development, in that fees and revenue will outweigh costs by over $400,000 in fiscal years 2012 and 2013, making the rink essentially turn a profit.

The new outdoor rink will be 14,836 sq.ft., and will be built adjacent to the existing rink. Now that it has been approved, the rink will put out to bid, with a projected awarding of the contract in August, and projected completion in December.

The rink in Conway Park will provide skaters with a new and much needed venue for their activities.

The View From Prospect Hill

"Cha-ching!"

The city budget has been set and we are on our way into fiscal year 2012 with strong support for essential services such as police, fire protection, and all the other things that make our community safe and a desirable place to live and work in.

It is comforting to know that no significant cuts in services will be implemented, even though a portion of the $169.7 million budget will be raised by increasing certain fees and fines, primarily through ticketing and parking infraction revenues.

This will doubtlessly rub a number of people the wrong way. Some will wonder why the burden should fall on motorists specifically. In a perfect world we would all equally share the responsibility of shouldering the costs of maintaining our city's financial wellbeing, drivers and nondrivers alike.

The hard reality that a solution to the budgetary shortfall, no matter how imperfect, must be arrived at and fully adopted is inescapable. Our city leaders, faced with this challenge, made a decision which, while not necessarily to everyone's liking, should achieve the desired result nonetheless.

The books will be balanced, and the bills will be paid. And maybe in the process a few of us will become a bit more conscientious in our driving and parking practices. At least we have that to look forward to.

We hear that Secret Squirrel Herb Vargas has been around more and more lately. We also heard that he signed the nomination papers for Alderman Tom Taylor even though Herb's son in law is running against Tom.

Our friend Billy Chambers is home resting up from his motorcycle accident. We wish him well. Our other friend Steve Dalrymple has left MGH after serious surgery and is reportedly resting at the North End Rehab center. You should know he's still in business and his son Nick is handling the company business nicely. So if you're wondering what's happening with his business, don't fret. You can call Nick. After all, it is called Steve & Sons, and is in good hands.

Also back in the hospital is the matriarch of the Tauro family. She's been in and out but hopefully will be home soon recovering.

Happy Birthday to our friends this week: A long time Somerville resident who also homes up in Ocean Park Maine, James Brian Roche. We wish him the best. He's a good guy. Also, happy Birthday to young Alessandro Capobianco who turned five this past week. And finally to Paul Carroll, our new Lion's President, and also owner of Carroll and Sons roofers.

Bert Gay, the husband of former Mayor Dot Gay, is back in the hospital undergoing surgery again. We wish him a speedy recovery and a return home soon.

Alderman-at-Large Dennis Sullivan will end his citywide tour of Spring Offices this Saturday with stops in Wards six and seven, at Statue Park in Davis Square, 10 a.m. (this should be interesting with the crowd that hangs there) and then up in Teele Square at 11a.m.

A shout out to Margie McKenzie, a life long resident here in the city. She was telling us the other day that when she was a little girl she remembered that you could see for a huge distance fields off Davis Square that now have the streets of Wallace, Park, and Simpson. She looks great. Stop in sometime and say hello to her at her daughters place, Nellie's Wildflowers on Holland Street. She's a great lady.

Congratulations to John Roderick and his wife Heather on recently celebrating their anniversary. They are lifelong residents and sort of "historians" as well as nice people. We wish them the very best.

Happy birthday to Laney Joyce as well as Mayor Joseph Curtatone.

The Movie Fest will end on August 25 with a Viewer's Choice selection of one of the four following films: "A Streetcar Named Desire;" "Megamind;" "Rushmore;" or "Tootsie."

Planning for people

By Joseph A. Curtatone

When it comes to planning we spend a lot of time talking about buildings, infrastructure and roads. Obviously those are the physical structures we have to pay for or permit when a new project comes along, but those are not the reasons why we engage in planning in the first place. People are our priority.

Specifically, making Somerville a great place for people to live, work, play and raise a family is our priority. And what we're trying to work towards with the new Comprehensive Plan and the zoning changes the City has made in areas like Union Square and along Broadway is to accentuate the human needs in our community.

We need green space, more local jobs and locally run businesses, affordable housing, community gathering space, more public transit, tree-lined neighborhoods, walkable streets, a diverse population, and recreational space. All of these things address the human needs inside our city.

That is exactly what Somerville's leaders did not do back in the 1950s and 1960s. They ripped up the trolley lines, tried to turn the city into a suburb, and ushered in an era where every new road was designed to help people bypass or leave Somerville. Frankly, they cared more about cars than people, and it brought on the bad, old days when this city gained the nickname of Slummerville.

We are now undoing those failed policies, but it takes time. For instance, since I took office seven years ago we have built or reconstructed 26 new parks and playgrounds. Somerville homes do not generally have big yards and it makes a positive difference in people's lives to have some attractive, well-kept public space in the neighborhood.

We all know the transformation that took place in Davis Square when the T stop was built there almost three decades ago. Well, the Orange Line will be stopping in Assembly Square in a few years as part of the redevelopment of that area, and the Green Line will be close on its heels, running through the heart of the city.

It will mean that you can get around Somerville by hopping on a train. That is in addition to a city that is friendlier to pedestrians (better lighting, better sidewalks, safer neighborhoods) and roads that also accommodate bicyclists. We have a diverse city and we have to plan for more than one type of person to get around this city.

And as rail transit returns, we are going to plan for growth in our city squares. We need to foster more commercial space while also preserving our residential neighborhoods. It will require a balancing act.

On one hand Somerville has only 0.44 jobs for every working age adult in the city. That number is far too low for a city with an educated and skilled workforce. Beyond that, our relatively small amount of commercial space means local homeowners bear more of the brunt of funding city services. This is why redeveloping areas like Assembly Square, the Inner Belt, Brickbottom and Boynton Yards is essential. The people of Somerville need those jobs and the people of Somerville need a larger commercial tax base to defray their taxes.

Yet the people also need housing. The demand for housing in this city is well above the supply. We need affordable housing, mid-range housing and even high-end housing. In areas like Assembly Square and Union Square we will see taller buildings. In more residential areas, it will be more modest projects. Yet all are needed to alleviate the pent up demand in our housing market. We are fighting a rising tide on housing prices until that happens.

Also, we need to recognize that Somerville is a city, not a suburb. We are trying to make it a city built on a human scale, but it is still a city. We cannot build oceans of parking around every new housing and commercial project. We do not have the physical space for it. The people who work and move into this city will need to avail themselves of public transit.

Like I said before, we tried to build a city primarily for cars in the past and it failed. All it got us was congested roads and pollution. We are designing this city for humans, not for cars. Automobiles are only part of the picture.

The bigger part of that picture is a city where you live near where you work, near where you shop, near where you go to school. We are planning for a future where the people of Somerville enjoy a high quality of life regardless of their race, ethnicity or tax bracket.

It is a balance we can achieve. The key is to put people first.

On The Silly Side by Jimmy Del Ponte

See you in September

I can't believe I've been doing this article for almost 4 years. Every week, for nearly four years. It's been a pleasure and I appreciate all the nice things people have said about the stories. I also appreciate the adverse comments, but not as much. I have decided to take the summer off from the column and return in September. You see, I have a real job that keeps me very busy in the summer and things are about to heat up. As director of Somerville's singing Sunsetters, our season begins Thursday night at the annual fireworks celebration at Trum Field. Then it's performances Monday through Thursday nights until August 18. My other summer program, Project STAR begins on Tuesday, July 5, and runs until August also.

We have decided to re-run some of the early articles while I work on these other projects.

I will be squeezing trips to New Hampshire and Maine into my busy schedule also. I am excited about the summer finally lam excited about the summer finally being here. All that snow, and the ridiculous driving conditions make it so much sweeter. We just have to come up with a way to slow the days down. Can you believe that July Fourth weekend is already upon us?

As I was driving my son to school on his second to last day, I was looking around making a final observation. People were rushing around heading for the T and driving here and there. I was making my way through Davis Square and there they were. The sweaty joggers that force the newly showered, well dressed working stiffs, to get out of their way. There is nothing like being brushed by a heavy breathing, dripping person as they run by you on the sidewalk. Why they don't just hit the bike trail I'll never understand. They must think we are impressed by them.

So this is the stuff you will be missing as I take a few weeks off. Here are some hopes and wishes I have for the summer: I hope gas prices continue to drop. I hope rain doesn't ruin too many precious weekends. I hope the Senior Picnic and Artbeat do not fall on sweltering, uncomfortable, sticky, humid days. I hope The Sunsetters remember all their words and dance steps. I hope my kids help me clean the yard and cellar. I hope each summer day drags by. I hope everyone stays healthy and happy.

It has certainly been an exciting year so far. The Bruins gave us all an unbelievable thrill that we will not soon forget.

If you have any ideas for stories, please send them to me at jimmydel@rcn.com. We will be accepting students age 12 to 18 for Project STAR. Just show up at the West Somerville Neighborhood School on Tuesday, July 5, at 9 a.m. There is no charge for this 6 week musical theatre camp that includes breakfast and lunch.

So I will see you in September. I hope you enjoy the re-run articles that we have chosen to print while I am busy doing other things. Have a great summer!

COMMUNITY PRESERVATION ACT (S 3)

Senate 4-34, rejected an amendment that would allow cities and towns to use Community Preservation Act (CPA) funds to rehabilitate and improve existing outdoor parks, sports fields and playgrounds. Current law limits the use of these funds to recreational projects that were acquired with CPA funds.

Amendment supporters said it is illogical and unfair to prohibit communities from using these funds to fix current facilities that were not purchased with CPA money. They argued it is less expensive to rehab these existing facilities than to purchase land and construct a facility from scratch.

Some amendment opponents said the CPA was designed to encourage the purchase and development of new parcels of land. Others noted they support the amendment but prefer that the Senate wait until a comprehensive bill, including the amendment, is released from committee and considered by the Senate.

Amendment supporters argued there is no guarantee the comprehensive bill will ever be considered by the Senate. They noted amendment opponents used the same argument last year and the bill never reached the Senate floor. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment to allow the funds to rehabilitate and improve existing recreational facilities. A "No" vote is against allowing it.)

AMERICAN HISTORY (S 3)

Senate 5-31, rejected an amendment that would have required the Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System (MCAS) test to include a section on American history beginning in 2013.

The State Board of Education in 2006 voted to include American history on the test beginning in 2012. The board in 2009 postponed the effective date to 2014.

Amendment supporters said this would take the power to implement the policy out of the hands of the board, which does not seem in a rush to implement it. They argued it is important for students to learn and be proficient in American history.

Amendment opponents said this major policy change should not be included in the state budget. They argued it should be filed as a separate bill and go through the entire committee process including public hearings. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment to require the MCAS test to include a section on American history beginning in 2013. A "No" vote is against the requirement.)

$100,000 FOR ANTI-BULLYING (S 3)

Senate 37-1, approved an amendment that would provide $100,000 for the Commission on Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, and Transgender (GLBT) Youth. The amendment stipulates the funds be used to address issues related to the implementation of the state's anti-bullying law.

Amendment supporters said GLBT youths are often the victims of bullying that leads to the high suicide rate among this group. They argued the money would be well spent and would save lives.

The lone opponent said the Senate cannot continue to fund every new idea and still expect to balance the budget. He questioned the need for separate funding of this program, saying it should be covered under existing anti-bullying laws. (A Yes" vote is for the $100,000. A "No" vote is against it.)

AUTO INSURANCE DISCOUNT FOR STU-DENTS (H 2049) - The Committee on Financial Services held a hearing on a bill that would establish an insurance discount program for Massachusetts drivers who are high school and college students between the ages of 17 and 24. The program would give full-time students who maintain at least a 3.0 grade point average a 10 percent discount on their annual insurance premiums.

AUTO INSURANCE REBATES AND SURCHARGES - Other measures on the Financial Services Committee's agenda included allowing insurance companies to extend rebates to clients with safe driving records (H 272); reducing from five years to three years the time a traffic violation or accident remains on a driver's record and results in a surcharge on his or her auto insurance (H 281); and prohibiting non-moving violations from being considered a surchargeable incident (H 282). Current law imposes a surcharge on drivers for both moving and non-moving violations.

MACE AND PEPPER SPRAY - The Committee on Public Safety and Homeland Security held a hearing on a measure that would allow the purchase of self-defense sprays like Mace and pepper spray without a license (H 2921). Massachusetts is one of the few states that require a Firearms Identification Card to carry these sprays. Another proposal being considered by the committee would restrict gun purchases to 15 per year (S 1195).

ABOLISH TEACHER TENURE (H 1932) - The

Education Committee held a hearing on legislation that would create a special commission to study the possibility of replacing the public school teacher tenure system with a system of annual bonus compensation tied to student performance.

TEACHERS - The Education Committee's agenda also included a proposal that would give preference for teaching jobs to former teachers who were laid off (H 139) and one that would incorporate suicide prevention training into educator professional development plans (H 1910).

"I hope the capture of Whitey Bulger brings some measure of relief to the families of his numerous victims. It brings to a close a sad and sordid chapter in recent Massachusetts history." - Former Gov. Mitt Romney

"I shook my head in, first of all disbelief, and then pride.

Good for the authorities." - Gov. Deval Patrick

"The fact that he had a lot of cash and lot of weapons in that apartment means that somebody has been helping him along the way and maybe we'll find out who that is." - Senate President Therese Murray

"I wish to express my sympathy to all the families hurt by the calamitous circumstances of this case. As the judicial process takes its course, I shall make no further comment at this time. Along with everyone else involved, I look forward to a resolution of this matter. I do hope, in the meantime, that my family may be accorded a measure of privacy." - Former Massachusetts Senate President and Whitey's brother Billy Bulger.

HOW LONG WAS LAST WEEK'S SESSION?

Beacon Hill Roll Call tracks the length of time that the House and Senate were in session each week. Many legislators say that legislative sessions are only one aspect of the Legislature's job and that a lot of important work is done outside of the House and Senate chambers. They note that their jobs also involve committee work, research, constituent work and other matters that are important to their districts. Critics say that the Legislature does not meet regularly or long enough to debate and vote in public view on the thousands of pieces of legislation that have been filed. They note that the infrequency and brief length of sessions are misguided and lead to irresponsible late night sessions and a mad rush to act on dozens of bills in the days immediately preceding the end of an annual session.

During the week of June 20-24, the House met for a total of three hours and 32 minutes while the Senate met for a total of four hours and 16 minutes.

budget presentation by Mayor Joseph Curtatone, aldermen cut only $60,000 in total, with only a few reallocations of funds.

In past years, the budget debate has been heart-felt and contentious, mostly due to the rising costs of healthcare combined with drastic reductions in stateaid, causing Somerville to become overly reliant upon their residential tax-base. While development is in the works to stem this problem and add more commercial tax base, these projects will not be fully implemented for years.

"Since 2002, our net cut in state aid is about $28 million," said Alderwoman Maryann Heuston, Ward 2. "Even though we all got a sigh of relief that we didn't have to make draconian cuts this year, that we didn't have to reduce services, that we didn't have to make compromises other cities and towns are making, the $28 million is still an astounding figure. Yet we've weathered those storms and we're still standing. Not only are we still standing, we're standing pretty strong."

The budget still increase $4.2 million from 2011.In addition, the Mayor touted expanded school curriculum, including biotech and music programs, as well as more computers for class-rooms and a high-school dropout prevention program. There will also be free breakfast universally for students pre-K through grade 12.

"It is a competitive world out there and, because we have rallied together, Somerville is now surging into a leadership position," Curtatone said. "We offer more in our schools. We run better city services. This budget is a reflection of a city that has kept its focus squarely on making itself a better place to live, work, play and raise a family."

President of the BOA Rebekah Gewirtz said she voted with a heavy heart, as she found the increased fees "regressive" - however she voted to approve all the same.

Joe's Jazz and Blues Fest returns in style

By Andrew Firestone

June 26 saw Powderhouse Park bring the groove, as hundreds of spectators sat out and tuned in to some soulful tunes. Sponsored by the Somerville Arts Council, the event saw seven hour-long sets of Jazz to help the soul feel at ease.

'Villens grooved in the summer sun as John Funkhouser brought a pensive, but rocking rendition of their original The Deep. For those with a more classic ear, Argentinian Florencia Gonzalez brought out a Latin flavor with tangos and twists in calypso beat. It was a feast for the ears and a great way to spend a day.

Fun for families, and fun for all

By Andrew Firestone

Family Fun Day brought out the best in Somerville, as hundreds turned out to enjoy the attractions at Trum Field, Sunday June 26. There were floats, face painting, games, balloon animals; more to do than you could ask any kid to choose.

Running from noon to five,

the event saw contests of strength, like getting through the treacherous obstacle course, and skill, like throwing a football through targets. It brought laughter and cheers from many children and hopefully a few moments of peace for their parents after their kids nodded off in exhaustion

Bob the Magic Guy thrills audiences at Somerville Theater

By Krysia Wazny

Bob Filene lives two lives. Most days he is Bob the real estate broker with Coldwell Banker. Other days, however, he is Bob the Magic Guy.

This past Saturday was the latter type of day. Making an appearance at the Somerville Theater, Bob delighted his audience with tricks and quips appropriate for the whole family. The show moved smoothly with both children and adults participating as volunteers. Self proclaimed as "magic for smart people," the performance did not disappoint. The entire audience was baffled by Bob's sleight of hand, and his witty jokes in between kept even the most skeptical viewers entertained.

Surprisingly, Bob hasn't always moonlighted as a magician. Six years ago he had only a rough knowledge of magic tricks gleaned from his teenage years. A performer in an airport rekindled his interest, leading him to explore the wider magical community. He soon discovered Ray Goulet's Magic Art Studio in Watertown, which put him into contact with the American Society of Magicians and the International Brotherhood of Magicians. As a member of these organizations, Bob has flourished, becoming the magic guy he is today.

Bob has performed in many arenas, from local birthday parties to Caribbean hotels, but the opportunity to work on stage is one he always enjoys. "It certainly is different," he said, "You can set things up to go a certain way, but volunteers also influence the direction of the show." The larger group certainly brought many different characters into the show on Saturday. Bold or shy, eager participants came onto the stage to make Bob's dreams a reality.

Speaking of his big performance, Bob described the gratification a magician gains from being in the spotlight at last. "In magic you spend a lot of time rehearsing, and a relatively short period of time performing," he explained, "You can spend months working on something that only takes about three minutes to perform."

He feels that a performance such as Saturday's is "the real dessert" after a period of intensive rehearsals. It proved to be a treat for his audience as well. His final act amazed everyone present as the cap of a marker and a unique ten-dollar bill astonishingly made their way into a closed canister.

This sometimes psychic, always entertaining trickster clearly knows his craft and how to use it to the audience's delight. Those who missed this mind teasing experience need not despair. Bob the Magic Guy will be making two return appearances at the Somerville Theater on September 24th and November 12th. With a sold out show last weekend, these performances are sure to please. Somerville Students Rocked

By Jimmy Del Ponte

The Somerville High School auditorium was rocking and rolling on Thursday night, June 23. The third annual Somerville Students Rock concert was serenading the audience.

A joint effort between the Executive Department of Communications and the Somerville Music Department, Somerville Students Rock is a stage for young musicians to strut their stuff. The audience was entertained by soloists, duos, quartets, and bands. There were violins, trumpets, conga drums, and even a ukulele. Renditions of popular songs were performed and the crowd was treated to a few original songs as well.

17 acts performed for an enthusiastic audience that also saw some of Somerville's music teachers displaying their talents. The Healy School Rock Band, as well as The Somerville High School Jazz Ensemble began the enjoyable evening of music.

The acts that rocked the auditorium included Nick Lidano, Aiden Thomas and Tatianna Goss, The Puppet Show, Tayla Doherty and Jen Silva. Mary Gomes, The Go-Flo Casuals, Jason Aviles, Tony Melchor, and Kevin Hernadez. Also performing were Saladin Islam and Jesse Smith, Kaitlin Barnes and Graziella Oliveira, Heavier Than Heaven, Caroline Form, Graziella Oliveira and Karloina Meirele. The three-piece rock group Stainless ended the show with three original tunes.

Somerville Students Rock continues to proudly feature the city's exciting young musicians, and their dedicated and talented instructors. Anyone who was in the audience Thursday night can assure you that music is indeed alive and well in Somerville.

Members of the singing group The Souls Sisters perform Build me up Buttercup at the third annual Somerville Students Rock concert Thursday at Somerville High School.

Come and see Somerville in Shorts

By Charlie Lynch

Somerville in Shorts returns to Union Square on Friday, July 8. The outdoor film festival is free to the public and will be showcasing over 20 experimental and animated short films.

The event will begin with the Kristen Ford Band playing an outdoor stage at 7:30 p.m. When the sun sets, around 8:30 p.m., the films will begin and run until 10 p.m. They will be projected on a large outdoor screen right in Union Square.

This year's entries include: several films from the Harvard animation program; episode of It's Jerry Time; the SCATV produced, Changing Gears: A Love Story, about two bicycles falling in love, filmed around Somerville; and selections from the work of Karen Aqua, for whom the event is dedicated.

"The idea for this event arose two years ago," says Jessica Barnthouse, organizer for SCATV, Somerville Community Access Television. "SCATV's director, Wendy Blom, was looking for ways we could be more involved with Somerville's art community. She organized a meeting between Rachel Strutt from the Somerville Arts Council and I to talk about doing an animation festival and the rest is history. It was decided that an animation, experimental festival was the best way to go because Somerville has such a large artist community, and Karen Aqua could help us find animators to reach out to."

"I'm really excited to be screening Karen Aqua's final film, Taxonomy," says Barnthouse. "It just screened at the MFA not too long ago, so it's very timely as well."

Aqua passed away this May. She was an award-winning filmmaker. Her films have been screened internationally, and her animation can be seen regularly on Sesame Street. She taught classes at SCATV, and helped organize and judge 2009's first Somerville in Shorts.

The event is sponsored by The Somerville Art Council's ArtsUnion Project, an initiative designed to expand the cultural and economic development in Union Square.

Additional work by Karen

Kakania by Karen Aqua.

Aqua will be on display at the Brickbottom Gallery from June 30 through July 10. A memorial tribute for the artist will take place on July 10 at 2 p.m. at the Center for Arts at the Armory.

"The screening is going to be great and everyone should come out," says Barnthouse, "Kristen Ford Band is kicking off the night, so get ready for an awesome night."

The rain date is July 9.

Somerville Lions get new Prez, Tauro honored

By John Stevens

The Somerville Lions Club held its installation of officers on Friday evening in Somerville.

Paul Carroll was sworn in as the club's new president for the 2011 year replacing outgoing President Bill Tauro.

Immediate Past President Bill Tauro was bestowed the honor of being the recipient of the first annual Somerville Lions Club "Sullivan-Lynch-Ciampa Excellence in Lionism Award" as President for 2009-2011.

The award is named after the Somerville Lions Club Past President Ed Ciampa, the late Past President Ed Lynch, and Past President John Sullivan who are the club's senior members and are also considered pillars who held the club together within the club's 78 years of existence in Somerville.

Bill Tauro was chosen for the award because of his commitment to holding the office as president for the past two years, for the increasing number in the club's membership, and for his continuous tireless effort in hosting a variety of charitable fund-raising events to raise money to find the cure to fight blindness and diabetes. He is also credited with interacting with other Lions Clubs statewide such as Boston Chinatown Lions and especially for his historic role in the formation of the new Cambridge Lions Club.

Former Somerville Mayor/ Middlesex Registrar of Deeds Eugene Brune was the presenter of the award at the event that was held before a large crowd at the Somerville Lions Club's function facility.

Mayor Brune said that this will be an annual award and will continue as a tradition in the Somerville Lions Club for and that he was a perfect fit for many years to come. He also said that President Bill Tauro is very deserving of the credit two years.

There is a season for everything under the sun. Poet Rasha Zahid writes about a Season for Pain. Rasha Zahid is a 25 year old Saudi. She attended boarding school at Queenswood in Herefordshire, England, where she passed her A levels in English Literature, Philosophy, and Business Studies. She matriculated at Simmons College, Boston, MA, in 2005 and received her BA in Philosophy, with a minor in English. Rasha lives in Saudi Arabia.

Season for pain

I've been told for every season There comes a change. And whenever we fall There is always a reason. We are armed for the eternal fight Of death and our daily strife-And we go through life Gripping the handle of a knife. The subliminal ideal-Is subdued by the limits of time, And dreams of freedom, Has become ours not, now mine. We are called the "fallen". All our weak voices are calling Against the reality of sin-Shameful secrets hidden in the din-Of the morning-And we all have broken stories. Nothing remains-Even love that's promised eternal, We are still destined for failure. Where is the season for pain? The guns are resounding, And hope is shot and slain. What is the reason for hearts of stone? We are lost, struggling and alone. Where is the wonder And the promise of joy? When will we breathe That sweet air of winning glory? If we leave now-Will we be remembered? Will our marks remain Like the rings within the bark of a tree? If somewhere far we go Will you replace this dream, And set every memory we had, free? Now we must close our eyes-Let this all pass us by-And imagine we are floating in a sky, So blue, so new, so far, so wide.

- Rasha Zahid

Bonney scholarship awarded

Ariel Melara was awarded the annual Brandy Bonney Memorial Scholarship on June 1 at the Bunker Hill Community College honors and awards ceremony by Brandy's brother Ron Bonney, member of the BHCC Board of Directors.

Somerville High School Headmaster Anthoney Ciccariello said, "Ariel received the scholarship for his outstanding commitment to his academic programs both in our Center for Career, Vocational and Technical Education and his traditional academic classes. He graduated from Somerville High School with a 3.0 Grade Point Average, a requirement to be considered for the Bonney Scholarship. He also participated in our high school's CISCO Academy, an introductory program for networking on a system used worldwide. His career goal is ultimately to earn his Associates Degree at BHCC in Information Technology with the transfer option and continue to UMASS to earn a Bachelor Degree either in Networking Management or Information Technology."

The Brandy Bonney Memorial Scholarship is awarded in honor of the late Brandy Bonney.

The Brandy Bonney Memorial Scholarship is awarded in honor of Bonney, formerly of Somerville. She graduated from St. Catherine and St. Clement's schools in Somerville, as well as Las Vegas College. She had recently graduated with a degree in criminal justice when she passed away. She was an outspoken advocate for domestic violence victims and fundraiser for the same cause that would claim her young life.

The scholarship is awarded annually to a Somerville High School student based on academic merit, or that are either an advocate for, victim of, or career focused criminal justice major or social work major dedicated to serving domestic violence victims. These students will be asked to work with RESPOND to sustain the scholarship assistance.

Melara is the sixth student awarded the Brandy Bonney Scholarship. Previous recipients include Anne Hertzberg, Nelia Arruda, Mathew Dell'Isola, Carlos Freire, and Reudy Bautista.
