Search for new Superintendent of Schools narrows down to three

Happy Thanksgiving Day

From the Publishers and Staff of The Somerville Times

The Search Committee Chair, Committee member Paul Bockelman of Ward 6, presided over Monday night's meeting to announce the Committee's selection of three finalists for the position of Superintendent.

By Jim Clark

The Somerville School Committee met on Monday evening in the Aldermanic Chambers to formally approve the nominations of three candidates for the position of Superintendent of Schools, in replacement of retiring Superintendent Tony Pierantozzi, who will be stepping down in July 2015.

Over 60 applicants from all around the country expressed interest in Somerville's Superintendent of Schools position, and the list was narrowed down to three final candidates by the School Committee at the meeting. Dr. Kriner Cash, Dr. Fredrick McDowell, and Ms. Mary Skipper have been invited to visit Somerville next month as the Committee looks toward making its final selection.

Of the selection process, Search Committee Chair and Ward 6 School Committee member Paul Bockelman said, "As we anticipated, there was a lot of interest in this position. We were very impressed with the Continued on page 9

Vernon Street Open Studios 40th set to go

By Cathleen Twardzik

This year is the 40th anniversary of Vernon Street Open Studios, which is one of the oldest open studios in the Greater Boston area. A special presentation, Vernon Street Artists' Anniversary Exhibit, is currently running through December 31 at the Somerville Museum, located at 1 Westwood Road in Somerville. A handful of the original artists and current artists will be present.

Additionally, many of those "founding" artists will be taking part in Vernon Street Open Studios on December 6 and 7 from 12 p.m. to 6 p.m. at 20 Vernon Street. The annual event will spotlight the evolution and transitions that this creative "landmark" has experienced over the years.

On Tuesday night the Board of Alderman met to discuss and vote on next years President and Vice President. Alderman at Large Bill White was elected for the third year in a row as the Board's President for the coming year. Ward 7 Alderman Katjana Ballyantine was elected the Board Vice President. Katjana is a freshman alderman, just finishing her first year in office. The Board President appoints members to the various board sub-committees at his discretion. We wish Alderman Bill White the best of luck in this his third year as President. He certainly is knowledgeable in the rules of the board.

Happy Thanksgiving to all our readers, we hope everyone has a wonderful, peaceful holiday. We all have a lot to be thankful for, good friends, family, good times and memories. Just about 30 days left for Christmas holidays.

We are having a contest here over the next few weeks. We are asking anyone here in the Ville who would like to write a poem on the Christmas holiday and what it means to them to send it in to us. Deadline is Friday, December 12. You can email it to news@thesomervilletimes.com, mail it or drop it off at 699 Broadway, Somerville 02144. Poems will be selected by the The Times staff and the three top winners will have their poem published in time for Christmas. The best one submitted will receive a $100 gift certificate for the Mt. Vernon Restaurant, a $50 Mt. Vernon certificate for second choice and a $25 Mt. Vernon gift certificate for third place. Submit your poem to be published by The Somerville Times in time for the holiday.

If you'd like to send a Merry Christmas/Happy Holidays greeting to your special person or to anyone across the city, we are going to have a section in the December 24 edition set aside for your holiday greeting. Mail your greeting or deliver it to The Somerville Times, 699 Broadway, Somerville 02144. Cost is only $5 for 25 words. Deadline for entry for the Christmas edition is December 19. Cash or check is due when submitting your greeting. Here's your chance to show your loved ones and family or friends how special they are to you!

Joe Lynch says:

Let's put some effort into talking the talk about being a "sustainable" kind of community and really think about rehabbing the existing building (maybe with some sort of additional space on the backside slope.)

The strategy now under way to "build new" to showcase another dismal display of bad architecture will never get my support.

Uncle Rocco says:

Another historic public building to be sold off or demolished ...

Joe says:

Yeah I'm cool with a new one.

Hear Hear says:

Disgraceful.

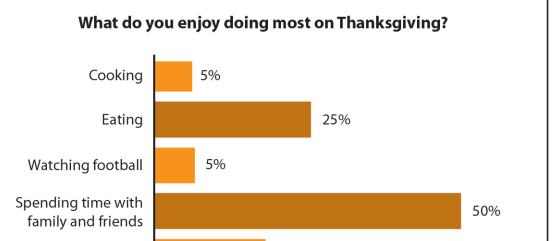

A.Moore says:

The last big renovation that I recall was done by the company that messed up the police station in Union Square. Possibly if we got decent companies to do the work it maybe would have been in better condition right now. I agree with SomMom about the rest of it. The location and library are perfect locations.

Large turnout for Somerville Alderman Bob McWatters

By Ross Blouin

There was a large turnout this past Wednesday, November 19, for freshman Alderman Ward 3 Bob McWatters, at Sally O'Brien's in Union Square. Well over 100 friends and family members turned out to show their support and appreciation for a job well done in his first vear as alderman.

He talked briefly about how he has come to answer the concerns of residents in Ward 3 over the past year that have reached out to him for help in many ways. Bob has earned the title of "The Constituent Alderman" here in Somerville. Reaching out, communicating and getting the job done is what it's all about.

Changes promised for Vinfen house

By Jim Clark

The state's Department of Mental Health (DMH), along with healthcare corporation Vinfen, is reportedly taking the need to improve alleged poor supervision issues at the group home at 155 Central St. very seriously

The home has had a shaded history involving neighbors being harassed and assaulted by residents of the home.

Community meetings held over the course of the past several weeks have brought pressure to bear on the beleaguered facility to get control of its residents and make assurances to its neighbors that such incidents will not continue to take place.

A Nov. 10 meeting has reportedly yielded some positive results, according to some area residents who attended. Vinfen has apparently agreed to accept no new residents at the facility for the time being, and they have also agreed to eliminate their so-called "respite" service, which allows temporary stay service at the home.

An advisory committee comprised of concerned area residents has been formed, with the intended aim of keeping DMH and Vinfen focused on implementing more changes to ensure the safety of all who live in the area.

The advisory committee will meet again on Dec. 2 at 6:30 p.m. to continue its dialog with Vinfen and the DMH. The meeting will be held in the Winter Hill Community School, 115 Sycamore St., in the cafeteria (please use the Medford St. entrance).

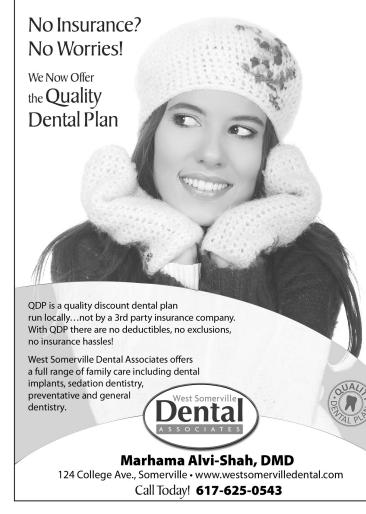

The Vinfen dialog continues.

'Shopping' with wire cutters didn't pay off

Police officers were dispatched to the Assembly Square Marketplace on Middlesex Ave. Sunday evening on reports of a female shoplifter being detained by loss prevention personnel.

Upon arrival, police were informed that a woman, Mireille Val, 61, of Boston, had been reportedly observed via the video monitoring system cutting electronic security tags off of store merchandise, specifically clothing. The store security team further stated that they had observed Val as she placed the clothing into a shoulder bag and left the store without paying.

The security personnel reportedly caught up with Val and escorted her back into the store. The store merchandise was retrieved from her bag and inventoried, according to reports. She was reportedly in possession of clothing valued at $330.38. A pair of wire cutters was also reportedly found to be in her possession, police said.

Val was placed under arrest and charged with possession of a burglarious instrument and larceny over $250.

Youth/police sessions break down barriers

By Tom Bannister

Seven police officers met with thirteen young people last week at the Somerville Police Department, the purpose of which was to speak one-on-one together, break through stereotypes and find some common ground as fellow Somerville citizens.

Teen Empowerment Somerville Director Danny McLaughlin remarked on the event saying, "In light of recent strife between youth and police around the country, these dialogue sessions are particularly important. The sessions humanize both the youth and the officers and help them understand that their actions and attitudes toward one another can fundamentally change the nature of police-youth relationships in Somerville. While we've been working with the department for a long time, under the leadership of Chief Fallon we're taking a giant leap with this project this year. We'll be working together in an ongoing way, supporting each other's efforts all year long." Two new members of the Police Department attended as a part of their first week of work. Several interactive exercises were utilized by Teen Empowerment staff to help the participants open up to one another. As the process unfolded, those in attendance began to express themselves freely on such diverse topics as peer pressure, violence, and the way all sides view each other. Deputy Chief Stephen Carrabino said, "It was both enlightening and fun." "I thought it was great to have the youth sit down with the police and get to know them on a personal level," said 17-year-old Teen Empowerment Youth Organizer Christina Harding. Several efforts between Teen Empowerment and the police department are planned for the year ahead. Another meeting is scheduled for December 11 to

2014 holiday events announced

By Tom Bannister

The 2014 holiday season kicks off in December, bringing popular traditions back to the city for all to enjoy:

The annual Christmas Tree lighting at City Hall takes place on Thursday, Dec. 4. The ceremony starts at 5:30 p.m. on the City Hall Concourse. A meet and greet with Santa Claus follows in the Somerville High School Highlander Café (atrium entrance). Santa Claus will be escorted by the Somerville Fire Department for the ceremony and will be available for photos following the tree lighting. All children attending the ceremony will also receive a gift from Santa. Live entertainment for the event will feature the Somerville High School Band and Orchestra, the Somerville Community Chorus, and El Sistema Somerville. Refreshments will be served at SHS.

The Somerville Arts Council's Illuminations Tours start up on Saturday, Dec. 13, beginning at 4:30 p.m. The tour takes attendees aboard trolleys across the city to discover some of the most brightly decorated homes during the holiday season. Tours depart from the City Hall Concourse every 45 minutes. Refreshments, choral music and craft activities will be available inside City Hall.

Trolley Tour tickets will be available at the Blue Cloud Gallery, 713 Broadway, beginning Sunday, Nov. 30. Tickets are $10.00 for adults and $5.00 for children and seniors. For more information, visit www.somervilleartscouncil.org.

Mayor Curtatone and other city officials will participate in a ceremonial Menorah lighting on the evening of Tuesday, Dec. 16, in honor of the first day of Hanukkah.

For more information on the city's holiday events, please contact Nancy Aylward at 617-625-6600 ext. 2100.

The Somerville Times Historical Fact of the Week

The Thanksgiving Miracle By Bob (Monty) Doherty

If you look at the official city symbol of Worcester, Massachusetts, you will see that it is heart shaped. This image is symbolic because the city is located in the very center of Massachusetts, or the heart of the state.

On November 28,1942, Worcester's College of the Holy Cross' football team appropriately had "heart," and their players' hearts were beating on all cylinders. For this game, they played against the high-flying Eagles of Boston College, who had won the Cotton Bowl in 1940, the Orange Bowl in 1941 and, in 1942, were streaking toward another title. They were planning to make the mediocre Holy Cross football team their ninth straight win. Holy Cross' record at that time was 4, 4 and 1.

Saturday, Nov. 28, 1942 FENWAY PARK

The game was being played at Fenway Park to a sold-out crowd of fans from all over New England. Boston College, who was number one in the polls at that time, was considered good enough to be a professional team capable of destroying many in its path. The press considered the chance of a Holy Cross victory laughable, but by the end of the game the lowly Crusaders had humbled the mighty Eagles by a punishing score of 55 to 12.

The loss moved Boston College from number one to number eight in the standings, placing them in the Orange Bowl instead of the Cotton Bowl. Somerville's Carl Lucas, a back-up quarterback got his chance to play in the Orange Bowl loss but shattered his leg seconds before half time. It sounds like an unlucky, tough break for Carl, but he and the Boston College team had been one fortunate football team. Had they won the Thanksgiving Day, Holy Cross game, the team would have attended a victory party at Boston's Coconut Grove nightclub. That evening, the Grove fire took 492 lives; nine of the victims were Somerville residents.

George Graney, father of Somerville's retired Fire Chief Tom Graney, was a five-year Boston fire fighter at that time. He was part of the initial fire crew to work at the scene of the horrible inferno. Six years later, this incredible man would establish the famous national, "Fill the Boot" drive for Muscular Dystrophy. To date, that drive has raised over $300 million.

When We Were Young

Somerville High School, 1954. We weren't thinking about the future, only about the upcoming Class Day and then graduation. Later, a train would take us on a trip to a more serious place, a place where we'd begin the process of evolving into adults. It was waiting there at the station. Our teachers were aware of the train, they'd seen it come and go many times. So they continued to feed us huge spoonfuls of knowledge, hoping we'd digest enough of it to be prepared for our journey from carefree kids to responsible citizens.

We knew the train was there, but we weren't ready yet to leave the station. Not yet would we worry about what lies ahead. This was our last fling at being young. This senior year was the last of our golden days, our best of times, and except for childhood memories, this time would be the greatest of all. The sports, record hops, pizza and coke down at the local hangout and Saturday night dates with that special someone. We wished it would go on forever. But it didn't, Class Day came and went, quickly followed by Graduation Day.

So we said our goodbyes, proceeded to our assigned compartments, and began our long train journey that would carry us on to our own tailored future. Some to college, others to start a career in the business world. Friends were not forgotten, just put on the back burner for a while as we began weaving yet another section of the fabric of our lives.

This train would stop on schedule every so often to renew friendships and memories by celebrating our class reunions. We hadn't changed that much, at least we didn't seem to. No need to look at yearbook pictures pinned onto jackets, no need to try and remember names, we knew them all. We were still young.

Then this, our sixtieth class reunion. The train stopped again to revisit old friends and renew old memories. It was a scheduled stop, but only for a brief moment to allow us to return to 1954, at least in our hearts, when we were young.

This time though, there were less of us, a little harder to recognize, difficult for eyes to focus in on yearbook pictures pinned onto jackets. But we were persistent and quickly broke through the cloudy haze of past years and renewed memories with each other, laughed, danced and added new memories that night as well. But as quickly as it had began, the last dance was danced, the final memory retold, address exchanged and the, the hardest of all, the goodnights.

We quietly got back onto the train to continue our journey. Along the way more of us will have gotten off at unscheduled stops. We'll be saddened by the loss of our classmates because part of ourselves will leave us as well. But we'll also be enriched by all the happy school day memories they left behind for us to relieve over and over again.

Will there be another Somerville High School 1954 reunion? Possibly. But no matter. This paper and the printed words upon it will yellow and fade with time but the memories will never fade in our minds. We'll always remember that special place we once attended, Somerville High School, that magical year, 1954, and that fleeting time, when we were young.

Spring Hill Development Watch serves to channel community opposition to the ongoing McMansionization of Spring Hill, most recently at 139 Summer Street. Our members include many of the same people who resisted the gutting and subdivision of 3 Benton Road. In October, we submitted a zoning amendment that would penalize developers for destroying trees during condo conversions. A public hearing will be held on this amendment, December 11 at 6pm at the VNA on Lowell Street. Vast sums of money are being wagered on the redevelopment of Union Square, the GLX and other projects. The rapidly rising real estate values resulting from this speculation are like catnip for luxury condo developers. Most of the big players are non-residents who have no longterm stake in the outcome, and thus no incentive to preserve our quality of life or mitigate the harms caused by their developments. In effect McMansionization is a type of flipping, explicitly at odds with the SomerVision goals, but feeding parasitically on the turbulence those goals create. Left unchecked, the luxury condo industry can be counted on to maximize its profits by methodically consuming Somerville's remaining open and green spaces. The simple fact that the majority of those spaces are on private land only intensifies the threat.

SomerVision not only commits Somerville to preserving and enhancing our residential neighborhoods, while simultaneously pursuing mixed-use development in suitable areas, it also commits us to valuing and protecting open and green space. SomerVision explicitly recognizes that such spaces have intrinsic value, not merely instrumental value in terms of runoff management or climate change mitigation. In other words, our remaining open and green spaces are axiomatically good, like community or public service, and require no justification. Despite this, they have been and will continue to be relentlessly assaulted. The new zoning rules may discourage "shoehorn" development, but their implementation is still many months away. In the meantime, our proposed zoning amendment would give the city valuable leverage in its struggle to regulate condo developers, preserve the character of our residential communities, and stem the loss of open green space.

This leverage will be desperately needed in the months ahead.

My friends and neighbors had frontrow seats to watch Ed Doherty's crew clearcut 139 Summer Street, laying waste to what had been a beautiful tree-ringed garden for over 100 years in a matter of hours. They are understandably traumatized and angry, and fear for their future. They think, "That could have been me, I could be the next one to have a moonscape erupt in my back yard, and spend the rest of my days looking at a parking lot." People up here on Spring Hill have long memories: they haven't forgotten 3 Benton Road and other bitter battles with developers. Our neighbors on Prospect Hill won't soon forget the ongoing travesty at 11 Aldersey Street, and it's surely one of many reasons why Suzanne Bremer almost won last year, despite being outspent by ten to one. For all these reasons, I hope you will attend the public hearing and support our zoning amendment. Photograms at Cross Street

A group of avid gardeners met on Monday, November 10, at the Somerville Council on Aging to put their skills to a different use: learning how to make "photograms" with sensitized paper, botanical objects, and help from the sun.

Local artist Alane Brodrick introduced the group to cyanotypes – or blueprints – as a form of photographic art. Members chose different botanical objects to make their prints, pressed them onto sensitized paper, exposed them to sunlight, and watched the paper turn blue around the objects.

Brodrick's workshop was entirely cost-free to participants, thanks to a grant from the Somerville Arts Council and Massachusetts Cultural Council.

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

PAY RAISES LOOMING ON BEACON HILL? -

The Special Advisory Commission on the Compensation of Public Officials, created by the Legislature in June as part of the fiscal 2015 state budget, is wrapping up its work. It is close to issuing its final report and recommendations on the compensation of the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary, treasurer, attorney general, auditor, governor's councilors, senators and representatives. Its mission is to compare the salaries with the same elected officials in other states and the private sector and to examine the method by which biennial adjustments are made to legislative base pay. The committee's website says it plans to issue its report on whether there should be pay hikes by early or mid-December.

The chair of the committee is Ira Jackson, former state revenue commissioner and now Dean of the John W. McCormack Graduate School of Policy and Global Studies at the University of Massachusetts Boston. People who want to weigh in with their opinions can do so by going to the commission's website MassPublicComp.umb.edu.

LOCAL AID - Gov. Patrick's plan to cut local aid to cities and towns by $25.5 million as part of his effort to close a $329 million budget gap seems to be dead on arrival on Beacon Hill. House Speaker Robert DeLeo said, "Understanding the vital role cities and towns play in providing services and jobs, I will not support a reduction of unrestricted local aid. Local aid is integral to helping municipalities accurately assess and plan their budgets so that they can contribute to the overall growth of the Commonwealth's economy." Without DeLeo's support, the cut is headed for the graveyard.

ed animal abuse and create a special taskforce of experts to review methods to prevent animal abuse and punish those who commit it. The task force would also look into the possibility of establishing an animal abuse registry. The legislation was filed in response to the "Puppy Doe" case in which a dog was euthanized after she suffered extensive injuries, including a stab wound to her eye and burns to her body.

Supporters say the Puppy Doe case is one of many similar incidents that have occurred in the state. They argued it is time to increase the punishment and fine for those who commit such heinous crimes.

Some animal advocacy organizations, while applauding the increased penalties, express concern about removal of a provision from the original bill that would have created an animal abuse registry. They say that without this important provision, shelters, breeders and pet stores, as well as people seeking new homes for their pets, can't know whether the person to whom they give or sell vulnerable animals has a history of animal abuse or neglect.

INTERIOR DESIGNERS - November 19 was the effective date of a new law that establishes the right of interior designers to bid directly on state contracts. Under prior law, designers were prohibited from doing so and were only allowed to subcontract their services with architectural firms that are bidding on projects.

Supporters say the old law was unfair and put interior designers at a disadvantage. They note that allowing direct bidding will create competition, reduce costs and save taxpayers' money.

ELIMINATE MANDATORY SENTENCES FOR DRUG OFFENDERS - A special commission studying the state's criminal justice system voted 9-2 to recommend eliminating mandatory minimum sentences for all drug offenses in the Bay State. The Massachusetts Special Commission to Study the Commonwealth's Criminal Justice System, created by the Legislature in 2012, is now working on an official report, including its recommendations to the Legislature.

"Drug offenses are a huge reason we have so much overcrowding in the prison system," said commission member Patty Garin, co-director of the Northeastern University Law School Prisoners Assistance Program. She argued that mandatory minimum sentences disproportionately impact poorer communities and people of color.

Beacon Hill Roll Call this week examines the voting records of local senators on Democratic Gov. Deval Patrick's 88 vetoes during the 2013-2014 session. A two-thirds vote is required to override a gubernatorial veto in the 40-member Senate that includes 36 Democrats and only four Republicans. The governor needed the support of 15 senators to sustain a veto when all 40 senators voted -- and fewer votes if some members were absent. Patrick fell far short of that goal. Five votes were the most support he received on any veto. The Senate easily overrode all 88 vetoes, including 18 that were overridden unanimously.

The vetoes had little support among Patrick's fellow Democrats. Only 15 of the chamber's 36 Democrats voted with Patrick to sustain any vetoes and nine of those supported the governor on only one. The other 21 Democratic senators did not side with the governor even once. Sen. Sonia Chang Diaz (D-Boston) gave him the most support, siding with him 44 times (50 percent).

PROTECTING ANIMALS - A law increasing the prison time and fines for committing animal abuse took effect on November 18. The new law increases the maximum fine for a first offense from $2,500 to $10,000 while raising the maximum prison sentence for a first offense from five years to seven years. It also increases the fines and prison time for second offenses to maximums of $20,000 and ten years. Under prior law, the fines and prison sentences for subsequent offenses were the same as first offenses.

Other provisions require veterinarians to report suspect-

Cape and Islands District Attorney Michael O'Keefe, also a commission member said,"We utterly reject this notion that the criminal justice system is warehousing these non-violent drug offenders. That simply is not the case. People have to work extremely hard to get themselves into jail here in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

FREE TUITION (S 2106) - A bill that would expand the current law that provides free tuition, fees and room and board at state universities for children of police officers, firefighters, corrections officers, prisoners of war during the Vietnam era and all veterans killed in action is languishing in a House committee since it was give unanimous approval by the Senate in April.

The bill would provide the same benefits to the children of several others killed in action including any call, volunteer, auxiliary, intermittent or reserve police officer, firefighter or emergency medical technician as well as college campus police officers and public prosecutors.

Supporters said this would be a huge help to the families of these fallen heroes. They noted it would help ease the financial stress related to paying for college and allow them to focus on the healing process and their daily lives.

MAKE MATERNITY LEAVE GENDER-NEU-

TRAL (S 865) - Also stuck in a House committee is Senate-approved legislation that would change the state's female-only maternity leave law to a gender-neutral one. The law gives parents of a newborn or adopted child eight weeks off, with or without pay at the discretion of the employer, and the right to return to their job after that period. The House gave initial approval to the bill in October 2013 but it has been stuck in committee since then.

Supporters said this would bring this law into the current century. They noted it is outrageous that coverage is currently reserved for women.

QUOTABLE QUOTES - "By the Numbers" Edition

"$2.5 million." — The estimated cost of renovations to the State Library of Massachusetts located at the Statehouse.

"14,211." — The number of elevators across Massachusetts operating with expired inspection stickers as of October 2012, according to an audit released last week by Auditor continued

Suzanne Bump.

"$195 million." — The amount of money the state has so far received from casino and slots parlor license fees.

"3." — The number of cabinet secretaries so far appointed by Governor-elect Charlie Baker. He appointed Rep. Matthew Beaton (R-Shrewsbury) as Secretary of Energy and Environmental Affairs and Chelsea City Manager Jay Ash as Secretary of Housing and Economic Development.

"8." — Months in prison received by Former Probation Commissioner John O'Brien, convicted of mail fraud and racketeering for his role in rigging the probation department's hiring process so that unqualified, politically connected candidates would get hired.

"$25,000." — The limit that Governor-elect Charlie Baker's inaugural committee has placed on single contributions to the committee organizing Baker's inauguration festivities on January 8.

HOW LONG WAS LAST WEEK'S SESSION? Beacon Hill Roll Call tracks the length of time that the House and Senate were in session each week. Many legislators say that legislative sessions are only one aspect of the Legislature's job and that a lot of important work is done outside of the House and Senate chambers. They note that their jobs also involve committee work, research, constituent work and other matters that are important to their districts. Critics say that the Legislature does not meet regularly or long enough to debate and vote in public view on the thousands of pieces of legislation that have been filed. They note that the infrequency and brief length of sessions are misguided and lead to irresponsible late night sessions and a mad rush to act on dozens of bills in the days immediately preceding the end of an annual session.

During the week of November 17-21, the House met for a total of 22 minutes while the Senate met for a total of 16 minutes.

-	Mon. November 17	House 10:12 a.m. to 10:20 a.m. Senate 11:04 a.m. to 11:08 a.m.

Search for new Superintendent of Schools narrows down to three

overall quality of the candidate pool, and are thrilled to be bringing three outstanding candidates to Somerville for final interviews,"

The candidates are scheduled to spend a day meeting with members of the Somerville community, and will thereafter face a final interview with the entire Somerville School Committee.

Final candidate interviews, which will be open to the public, will be held on the evenings of December 2, 3, and 4th in City Hall. The interviews will be televised on Somerville's local cable television stations (Channels 15/16) as well. School Committee members will accept comments from concerned members of the public from December 4-8. The School Committee is then scheduled to vote on a final candidate on December 8. "Somerville is a great community, and the Somerville Public Schools district has established itself as a leader in urban education in Massachusetts," said Bockelman. "We are confident that Somerville's next Superintendent of Schools will continue to lead our community on an upward trajectory, building on the great work of current Superintendent Tony Pierantozzi and his team, and focusing on the needs, challenges and opportunities of a wonderfully diverse community."

The following information about the three finalists has been released:

DR. KRINER CASH: Dr. Cash served as Superintendent of Schools in Memphis, Tennessee from 2008-2013. Prior to his work in Memphis, he served for four years as the Chief of Accountability for the Miami-Dade County Public Schools. Over the course of his career he has served as Superintendent of the Martha's Vineyard Public Schools, as Associate Dean of the Howard University School of Education, and as Coordinator for Community Involvement for the Cincinnati Public Schools. Dr. Cash holds a Bachelor's Degree in Political Science from Princeton, a Master's Degree in Administration from Stanford, and a Doctorate in Cultural Diversity & Curricular Reform from the University of Massachusetts. DR. FREDRICK McDOW-ELL: Dr. McDowell currently serves as an Instructional Superintendent for the Denver Public School System, where, among many responsibilities, he oversees professional development and evaluations for 15 middle and high schools serving 14,000 students. Prior to moving to Denver, he worked in the Boston Public School System, serving as Headmaster of Brighton High School and as the Princi"...the Somerville Public Schools district has established itself as a leader in urban education in Massachusetts" pal of High Tech Academy. He began his career in education as a graphic design teacher in the Durham, North Carolina Public Schools where he taught for four years before becoming an master of TechBoston Academy, which she helped launch within the Boston School System as the Founding Headmaster in 2002. Other roles within the Boston Public School System include Assistant Academic Superintendent for Pilot Schools and Technology Project Manager within the Office of Instructional Technology. She holds a Bachelor's Degree in English and Latin from Tufts University, a Master's Degree in Latin and Greek from Tufts University, a Master's Degree in Education from Harvard University, and is currently working toward her Doctorate in Urban Leadership from Teacher's College at Columbia University. As permitted by law, initial candidate interviews were conducted in Executive Session on November 18 and 19 by a 7-member advisory committee chaired by Ward 3School Committee member Adam Sweeting. The advisory committee included School Committee members Carrie Normand of Ward 7, Ward 5's Laura Pitone, and Steve Roix fromWard 1; Ms. Nelia Braga, a teacher at Somerville High School and mother of two; Ms. Rupinder Kaur, a recent Somerville High School graduate and current student at Wentworth Institute of Technology; and Ms. Lupe Ojeda, a parent of children in the district and a board member and parent leader at The Welcome Project.

Following the first round of interviews, the advisory committee winnowed the slate of candidates down to three for consideration by the full School Committee.

The School Committee engaged the services of Hazard, Young, Attea & Associates (HYA) consulting firm earlier this year to assist in the search for Somerville's next Superintendent of Schools after current Superintendent Pierantozzi announced his retirement.

Assistant Principal in the Orange County, North Carolina School District. Dr. McDowell holds a Bachelor's Degree in Art and Design from North Carolina State University, Master's Degrees in Technology Education and School Administration from North Carolina State University, and a Doctorate in Educational Leadership from Northeastern University. MS. MARY SKIPPER: Ms. Skipper currently serves as a Network Superintendent in the Boston Public School System, where she oversees the District's 34 high schools. Giving Tuesday Somerville supports our neighbors this Thanksgiving

By Joseph A. Curtatone

When we sit down for Thanksgiving dinner, we're celebrating a bountiful harvest and reminding ourselves to be thankful for all we have. While we are mindful of why we should be thankful for the blessings in our own lives, during the holidays our thoughts also turn to those who may be struggling to put food on the table, find a home or care for their families. My time as mayor has taught me that I am never alone when it comes to speaking up for the people of our city. That's part of Somerville's soul-the desire to speak out for our neighbors and stand up for one another. We can count on each other. There are organizations across Somerville that help out those who need help, or who provide a unified voice for groups in our community. This holiday season, 15 nonprofits are coming together to make it even easier for all of us to stand up for those in our community who need our help.

Giving Tuesday Somerville will take place all day on Tuesday, Dec. 2, with donations accepted online anytime during the day and a live telethon hosted by Jimmy Tingle airing on SCATV from 6 to 9 p.m. This local branch of an international movement aimed at devoting a day to celebrating generosity and giving. Giving Tuesday Somerville is the first local effort of what I hope becomes an annual holiday tradition for our community.

Tune into SCATV next Tuesday for the telephone for live entertainment, local celebrities and informative discussions, and go to SCATV's website at www. scatvsomerville.org to donate. All donations will be divided evenly among the 15 organizations, and I'd like to highlight these organizations if you don't already know about them, because as important it is to financially support these nonprofits, they also need people willing to volunteer their time, energy and passion:

• CAAS (Community Action Agency of Somerville) is provides critical services to local families and individuals to reduce poverty and prevent homelessness, and connects those in need to other agencies that strengthen our community. CAAS also runs the Head Start program here in Somerville.

• CORES (Community Organization of Refugees from El Salvador) aids Central American immigrants living in Somerville and throughout the Boston area, supporting them on immigration issues and offering English as a Second Language (ESL) and literacy classes.

• The Family Equality Council offers a variety of programs for families, especially families with parents who are gay, lesbian, bisexual or transgender, including local parent groups, parenting workshops and those that empower LGBT parents, while working to ensure that all families are treated equally and with respect.

• Groundwork Somerville runs programs that promote environmental, economic and social well-being. Among their projects are the Mobile Farmers Market, which provides healthy, local produce at public and senior housing in Somerville, and the Green Team that serves as an environmental education, leadership and job training program for Somerville High School students.

• MAPS (Massachusetts Alliance of Portuguese Speakers) helps Somervillians from Brazil, Cape Verde, Portugal and other Portuguese-speaking nations contribute to our community and get access to health, education and social services.

• The Mystic Learning Center improves the lives of children and families at the Mystic River Housing Development in Winter Hill, with an innovative parent and youth service model. The Center offers year-round educational and recreational activities for kids.

• RESPOND Inc. is the second oldest domestic violence agency in the nation, has a 24hour hotline at 617-623-5900 for victims, and offers individual counseling and support groups, assistance to victims needing necessities such as food and clothing, legal support for victims and more.

Life in the WILLE by Jimmy Del Ponte 'Twas The Night Before Thanksgiving

I would like to present

another story by my friend and fellow

Somerville native,

Anthony Accardi Jr.

Thanksgiving has always been one of my favorite holidays. We always celebrated Thanksgiving with my grandparents on my mother's side of the family. The travel was easy; just walk down one flight of stairs to an afternoon of turkey, lasagna, various side dishes and lots of sweets. After dinner the tryptophan from the turkey would kick in and then it was one flight back upstairs for a nice nap on the couch. However it wasn't just the turkey, lasagna and desserts that made me crave a nap. It was the night before Thanksgiving. Otherwise known as "Thanksgiving Eve." It was a night out for a few drinks; maybe reunite with friends that you hadn't seen in years and then afterward a visit to Kay and Chip's for breakfast. As a kid Thanksgiving Eve meant helping my mom bake pies or other desserts. My grandmother would go up and down the stairs between her first floor apartment and our second floor apartment. She must have gone up and down those stairs 50 times that night. She would be entertaining approximately 30 people for Thanksgiving and everything had to be just right. It was an exciting night for us kids as we had no school on Thanksgiving – and also the day after. That meant we were allowed to stay up late two additional nights that week. You had so many "good thoughts" on your mind. No school on Thursday or Friday – plus the weekend, lots of relatives visiting, a ton of food to eat and Christmas was just around the corner.

As an adult, Thanksgiving Eve meant going to a bar or nightclub and blowDans, however we would not head home early. Just about when Johnny Carson was starting his monologue, we all got into someone's car and headed for Boston. Almost always we would end up at "9 Landsdowne Street" or "The Metro". Do you remember those nightclubs? Kay and Chips was the last stop before heading home. I would get home around 5a.m. The task then was to make it up the stairs and into bed. The aroma of my grandmother's cooking filled the back hallway. We had a stove in our basement and that is where the turkey was cooking. I had just finished a full breakfast, but that smell always made me want to go down and just take one sample piece of the turkey. Remarkably, I was able to fight off that temptation. Thanksgiving Eve had become a night of staying out too late, having too many drinks and the thought of regret for the next day. I really don't remember when I stopped partying on Thanksgiving Eve. If I had to guess, it was probably around 1996 when Dapper Dan's closed. I was about 34 years old at the time and I was entering a new phase in my life. I think the novelty of partying and staying out late had run its course. I really didn't go out as often as I used to. When I did go out, I returned home in a much better condition than I would have 10 years before. I would take my own car so I could come and go as I please. Going out for breakfast was not only becoming the high point of the night, it was also happening much earlier in the night.

ing off steam as if it were a regular weekend night. I have to say for me the Thanksgiving Eve tradition started at a place called Dapper Dan's. Frequently referred to as Dapper's, it was located in the original Assembly Square Mall. Like most places on Thanksgiving Eve, Dapper Dan's would be packed early and stay that way until closing. If you didn't get into Dapper's early on Thanksgiving eve, then you had to either wait in line or go somewhere else. Since most people travel home for Thanksgiving, that night would bring out the many people that you had not seen in years. Catching up with old friends and telling "war stories" was the best part of the night. It was a simple night of having a few drinks and heading home early.

In later years that simple night did not stay simple. We would still go to Dapper

So now time has come around for me. My Thanksgiving Eve now consists of my kids helping me make pies and other desserts. I can still stay up late as there is no work the next day. I still watch holiday specials with my two young boys. I reflect on how I thought Thanksgiving was when I was their age and wonder if they think the same. I do keep in the back of my mind that like me, they won't always be young boys. I hope when they do get to the age where they start going out with their friends (and especially on Thanksgiving Eve) that they do have a good time, but that they also use good judgment. I also hope they don't spend too many Thanksgiving Days nursing a hangover like their ol' man did. Happy Thanksgiving All!

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Illustrated by Jim Clark

Have a happy Thanksgiving Day - and remember to help the needy to have one too.

The View Of The Times

Giving thanks for our blessings is normally an easy thing to do. We may often get caught up in the day-to-day trappings of scratching out a living, ducking misfortune, and seeking out an occasional highlight to add to our mental scrapbooks. Usually, though, we come around to feeling and expressing that special sense of appreciation and gratitude that comes in moments of quiet reflection just in time to validate ourselves as worthy recipients of such blessings.

Thanksgiving Day gives us that little nudge we sometimes need to take stock in what is most important for us and to share in the sense of appreciation that we feel amongst one another.

Of course, for those of us who may be blessed with material abundance, it is also important to help the less fortunate who may be in need as the winter holiday season unfolds. Consider giving a little of your time or money to make another's life a little better, particularly during the winter months to come.

For those among who may be struggling to keep it all together, remember to look at what is good in life and remain faithful that change for the better is always waiting just around the corner.

May this holiday provide a meeting ground for all of us. One in which we can share in the goodness of life and fellowship between us all.

There's no better way to express our gratitude.

Happy Birthday to some of our readers and fans here in the Ville and around: First of all, we forgot our good friend and helper around The Times, Bobby Potaris, who celebrated the big one last week. You know, the dreaded 30th. Another reader and fan, Joe Beckman, celebrated last week as well. A Happy Birthday and we hope he had a great day for himself. This week a good guy, John Height, who is also celebrating his anniversary, we wish him the best on both. Celebrating her birthday this week is the very nice lady and good friend of the paper is Diane Johansen, a lifelong resident here in the city and well known. We wish her the very best. A very good friend and someone who is here almost daily in Somerville, Ms. Malitta Knaut. We hope she has a great day. A Happy Birthday to Karen MacLeod-Fraser, who grew up here and is known by many. We hope she has a great day as well. A Happy Birthday to Jim Baxter, who is a resident here in the Ville. And finally, we wish the ever popular and very nice lady Ms. Charlene Harris, who is always giving of her time and energy here in the Ville, from a large family here in Winter Hill, the very best and a great day.

Local is for Lovers Holiday Market

at Arts at the Armory

With the holidays just around the corner it's time to start thinking about holiday gifts! And there's no better place to find the perfect gift than at Somerville Local First's Local is for Lovers Holiday Markets on November 30 and December 14. The Local is for Lovers Holiday Market will feature 30 local vendors selling everything from jewelry and handmade soap to sweets and clothing. Their first market takes place on Sunday, November 30, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Arts at the Armory, 191 Highland Avenue. Knucklebones will be setting up their mobile playspace on Nov. 30 so the kids will have a place to let out some holiday energy while their parents shop.

Grove fire, Boston College won the 1984 "Miracle in Miami" game on November 23 against the number-one ranking University of Miami. It was won on a 48yard, Doug Flutie pass, in cutting wind and pouring rain with zero time on the clock. Somerville's Peter Casparriello, Boston College's team captain and left tight end, had the best view in the house. As part of the play, he watched the "Flood Tip, Hail Mary Pass" complete itself in the crowded right end zone. In the history of New England sports, the real miracle was not in Miami. It was 42 years earlier, when Boston College lost to Holy Cross on that fateful Thanksgiving Day.

What's on Somerville Neighborhood News

This week in Somerville Neighborhood News, we bring you a story on Speeding on Lowell Street. Residents and city officials who gathered on Nov. 12 to discuss possible traffic calming and other improvements to safety on Lowell Street did not see eye to eye on the issue of cars speeding down the major cross street. Neighbors are especially worried because of the imminent opening of the Community Path and the eventual new Green Line station. Both would bring more bikers and pedestrians to the street.

After a serious car crash this May, the city painted a "chicane," a wedge-shaped painting on the asphalt meant to encourage cars to zigzag, thus slowing traffic.

At the meeting, held in the Arthur D. Healey School cafeteria, Somerville Director of Transportation and Infrastructure Hayes Morrison said that data shows that average speed on Lowell Street has been below the 30 mph speed limit since the chicane was painted.

The speed limit for the street is 30 mph, but is 25 mph for the bridge going over the railroad tracks and Community Path.

OFF THE SHELF by Doug Holder

With an old friend at Jacob Wirth: Jim Resnick and I

This was written for my late friend Jim Resnick. Jim passed away last week at the age of 54. Jim was instrumental in helping me put out the first issue of the literary magazine Ibbetson Street in 1998.

I have never seen him look so bad ... his face was ashen ... he was skeletal ... he was heavily medicated ... it was heartbreaking. I picked him up at his house in Allston, and we went to Jacob Wirth, an old hangout of ours in Boston for dinner.

When we walked in there was a loud entertainer in the main dining room, so I pointed to the waiter for a room in the back. We sat next to this woman of formidable girth, dressed like an old hippie, gray hair and granny glasses. She had this huge meal – plates surrounded her – pot roast swimming in gravy, cornbread mopping up a mash of meat and red cabbage, her pinkie finger circling the plate making sure nothing remained. As the entertainer belted out trivia questions from the 1970s she turned to us, daintily putting her napkin to the edges of her mouth and said "I know the answer to the question ... they don't." She laughed quietly to herself, as if enjoying a private joke.

I didn't think of it at the time. But the universe was talking to me. That woman – that particular woman – was iconic for Jim and I. The classic Boston eccentric was a type both Jim and I lived around in rooming houses in Boston, and was almost a re-creation for us from our past.

The subject of my latest poetry book Eating Grief is all about what she represents. People like her fascinated us, and to a degree both Jim and I became what was the object of our fascination. For some reason I was compelled to take that back table – I didn't see that iconic woman until I got there. Everything seemed to hit me after the dinner – I know at some point , some point in the distant or not so distant future, I will see her again...

photography, painting, fiber, jewelry, glass, furniture, ceramics, sculpture and print-making, as well as fine art styles, a chance to sell and show their work.

Throughout the years, Vernon Street has taken part in Open Studios, either as a part of bigger Somerville Open Studios or on its own, for many years. It is a "part of both," according to Heather Balchunas, Vernon Street Studio Coordinator. Vernon Street, a historic 19th century industrial brick building, was available to the first group of artists in Somerville to bring the studios to the public on February 24, 1974. "The original 13 artists participating in Vernon Street Open Studios started this particular Open Studios to celebrate the completion of the workshop and studios in 20 Vernon Street. The concept of Open Studios has been around for a long time, dating back to the ever-popular salons in Paris where artists and art lovers could share their work and exchange ideas. Now, this concept has grown and become adopted by members of the art community all over the globe," according to Balchunas. "Vernon Street Artist Studios evolved with the help of artist Maude Morgan, a significant member of the art community in the Greater Boston area. She found the building and approached the Rogers Family about the possibility of having artists in the building. They said 'yes' with the understanding that the artist would have to fix it up."

tano gives us his take on "the same old story."

On Her

So I'm back doing exposures in downtown Boston

Trying to get a grip on my anxieties

"Enjoy city place"

The banner reads as I nibble on my cranberry orange scone from Starbucks

Ah ... love ... loss and gain - and all that pain. Poet Julian Galli-

I wonder if this is my space

Where I'm suppose to be

As delusions of grandeur pass through my mind

My capacity for love undiminished and infinite

And so I think of her

And a potential relationship soiled

Oh the wonders she laid out before me...

So I find

To love is to want

To need

Yet I failed so miserably

And so, she moves on.

— Julian Gallitano

"The value of going to Open Studios is that you get a chance to [interact with the] artist where they work and get a glimpse at their process. People are able to engage with the artist, which can be a much different than experience than going to a gallery." For more information, interested individuals may log onto www.vernonstreet.com.
