Sky high water bills in Somerville leave residents confused

Somerville residents were caught off guard when they received much higher than expected water bills following the city's metering upgrades.

By Jim Clark

A large number of Somerville residents are steamed up over the water bills they received recently. Many have reported figures in the thousands of dollars – some even in the tens of thousands.

It seems that as the Somerville Water and Sewer Department replaces older water meters as part of its City Wide Water Meter Replacement Project the billing becomes more accurate, and as a result certain residents are getting significantly higher bills than they used to.

According to the department, the older meters were measuring water usage accurately but they were not transmitting the data correctly, hence the program to replace the older devices with new ones. The accompanying sticker shock Continued on page 4

Upcoming art show: 'Kaleidoscope Queer Visions'

The upcoming queer community art initiative, Kaleidoscope: Queer Visions, sponsored by the Mass Cultural Council, Somerville Local Cultural Commission, and the Boston Figurative Art Center, will take place from May 6 to May 11 at the Boston Figurative Art Center, 285 Washington St., Somerville.

Kaleidoscope is focused on asking and answering the questions, what does a queer, liberated, collective future look like? What does a queer timeline feel like? What are the moments you have missed as a queer person, that you would like to give yourself a version of?

For those who have come into their queerness later in life, or perhaps those who are not yet, or may never be ready, to come out at all, there is a particular kind of grief to carry. Kaleidoscope: Queer Visions honors that grief, and presents a Continued on page 12

Mayor Katjana Ballantyne and Somerville’s Inspectional Services Department announced Somerville’s 2024 Integrated Pest Management (IPM) plan. Aimed at enhancing rodent management efforts, the updated plan incorporates Integrated Pest Management principles to effectively address rodent issues across residential, public, and commercial areas within the city. The detailed presentation of the City of Somerville’s Integrated Pest Management will take place at the city’s Board of Health meeting on Thursday, April 18, at 6:00 p.m. Community members, stakeholders, and interested parties are encouraged to attend the meeting, which will be hosted on Zoom, and participate in discussions surrounding rodent management strategies. Interested attendees can join the meeting here: somervillema.gov/events/2024/04/18/board-health-meeting.

This is great news. Hopefully it moves forward more quickly now and hopefully those separated bicycle facilities are guaranteed and Somerville doesn’t try to withdraw them after receiving federal funding to build them like Boston is doing on BHA.

Response to: Lyrical Somerville – April 10

Jacques Fleury-Author says:

I have been waiting for a poem like this...in a way, most of us stroll the streets while scrolling our phones as if we are deaf to the wonders around us, like construction workers with sound blockers on while drilling the streets with jackhammers. The poet’s unassuming acknowledgment and endearing awareness of nature’s pulchritudinous is pure, simple and engaging. Lines depicting her pocketed phone wanting to “burn a hole through” and wanting “to be held” yet she yields to nature’s “beckoning” deeming her to be a better “listener” who “doesn’t interrupt” with social media notifications chiming for attention like that of her pocketed phone..she is content to “laugh” by the sea and listen to crashing waves...She takes comfort in the assurances of the infinity of nature even long after phones have crashed and burried “beneath the earth.” The take away for me from this young poetic voice is STOP SCROLLING YOUR PHONES AND BE PRESENT in your environment! Listen to nature, listen to your souls and listen to each other. Amidst the chaos of a highly mechanized world replete with iPads and iPhones and internet connections, remember to take the time to disconnect from the “internet” to connect to your “inner-net” and be present with the wonder that is NATURE,...–Jacques Fleury, Author of the prose and poet

Pot shops

Recreational marijuana stores are popping up all over the city. Ball Square, Davis Square and East Somerville to name a few. I surveyed people from around the city on their feelings toward this. Each new comment is in quotes.

“Not even used for medical in sc yet.”

“20% and it’s because it’s essentially a sin tax that gets passed through to the consumer.”

“If it were solely medicinal in nature and covered by insurance, it would cost you next to nothing. But this is essentially recreational use, so it’s taxed like cigarettes and booze.”

“No different than bars and liquor stores being all those places, only difference is alcohol kills people marijuana doesn’t”

“If you have a medical Marijuana card then they waive the tax I believe. From some good sources, the weed is a better grade than the stuff on the street plus they sell other products like gummies, drinks, tinctures, balms etc.”

“Growing up there we gave directions by the bar room or Dunkin donuts. This is just another way of doing it.”

“I’d say you were crazy if you ever told me that someday buying reefer would be as easy to get as a loaf of bread.”

Looks like the pot shops are spreading like weeds.

SustainaVille Week 2024: Celebrate Climate Action in Somerville

Join Mayor Katjana Ballantyne and the City of Somerville Office of Sustainability and Environment for a series of free and family friendly events and interactive activities to celebrate SustainaVille Week, April 20-27, an annual celebration of climate action in Somerville during the week of Earth Day. See the full schedule of events online here: www.somervillema.gov/sustainavilleweek.

“Whether it’s planting a pollinator garden, advocating to decarbonize new construction in our area, recycling, or investing in sustainability initiatives, every day the City and Somerville community work together to help protect our planet,” said Mayor Ballantyne. “This year’s SustainaVille Week is especially exciting as community members can review the city’s updated Climate Forward plan that will help us maintain a strong, healthy community in the face of climate change while simultaneously reducing climate pollution and our dependence on fossil fuels. I look forward to seeing everyone to celebrate what we have achieved and inspire the hard work ahead of us as we continue fighting climate change.”

The 2024 SustainaVille Week lineup features a community celebration for the updated community climate action plan, the Climate Forward plan.

for consumers once the improved systems were in place was difficult for many to understand and to deal with.

The issue got the attention of the Somerville City Council and the its lates regular meeting on Thursday, April 11, Councilor At Large Kristen Strezo put forward an order that the Committee on Equity, Gender, Seniors, Families and Vulnerable Populations conduct a Committee of the Whole Public Hearing to hear how the increases in water and sewer rates are affecting Somerville residents, and that all relevant city departments be in attendance.

Speaking on the matter, Strezo said, "I'm sure you have all been hearing about the water bills and the influx of anxiety that everyone's going through. I think that what's important is we have residents have a chance to speak on their experiences, and I think our constituents deserve to know that their city is listening to them in this capacity."

"You know where I've stood on this for years," Strezo continued. "Displacement comes in forms not just from a lack of affordable housing stock, lower income residents will feel the pain of the influx of water bills and sewage bills."

Strezo pointed out that that 85 percent of the new water meter reader installations have been completed, but she added, "We're still not there."

"While there are some bill payer assistance programs to address water and sewer bills through the state, it is a high threshold to qualify, and it covers the water portion of the bill but it doesn't cover the sewer portion," said Strezo. "And in Somerville, less than 100 household are helped by the state's water bill assistance program. Less than 100 residents. We have over 16,000 water bill accounts here."

Strezo then reminded the Council that around 900 hundred residents are no longer receiving the ARPA funded low-income water bill assistance program to help them with their water and sewer bills, having expired on April 1 of this year.

"Those 900 residents without a plan," Strezo continued. "At the same time and influx of retrograded bills were mailed out. I've heard from residents expressing this fear, worry about how they're going to pay the water actual estimated bill."

Strezo spoke of recent water bills coming to several thousand dollars after the meters were changed.

"We have some residents in affordable housing units whose lease requires that they pay their own water bills," Strezo said. "And that's about 425 residents in Somerville."

"My hope is that we apply what we here in this Equity Committee public hearing and act nimbly that the Administration gets the message loud and clear that we need to be acting faster, and can't just sit here and twiddle our thumbs and wait and do as much as we can to help this influx of bills," said Strezo. "Years ago, I stated I would not support any kind of increases without a parallel plan that addressed some of the increases and help residents," she said.

Strezo expressed some frustration concerning how long a process would take to implement programs to help for residents who are having a hard time paying these bills and urged expedient action by the city.

Several Councilors expressed their support for seeking assistance for residents and also passed the call for a public hearing which has been scheduled for May 15, at City Hall with the public invited both in person and virtually.

Step into a brand-new restaurant, Lehrhaus. Located on 425 Washington Street in Somerville, this is not just a place to enjoy some Jewish delights; classes will also be available to teach anyone more about the Jewish culture of food, music, and even some history.

Meet Rabbi Charlie Schwartz, the co-founder and director at Lehrhaus. “My co-founder and I imagined a desire to meet people in person and have vibrant places to gather. And both of us are Jewish, and so we were thinking about what Jewish spaces might look like. We realized that there are synagogues, but there are not a lot of really accessible, vibrant places for people to engage with Jewish life and culture.”

“So, after a bunch of conversations and dreaming, we came up with this idea of where people can encounter the best of the Jewish world. Whether its cocktails inspired by different Jewish communities from around the world, from Ethiopia, to Iran, to Eastern Europe, or taking classes that teach about Jewish life. Or reading a book from the library of about 2,000 books from religious texts, it’s a place where you can come and exhibit the best of the Jewish world, whether or not you are Jewish.”

Dishes like Beet “Pastrami” Reuben, Spiced Red Lentil Stew, Haus Herring Tartine, Mac and Cheese Kugel, and Arctic Char Alberas are available to dine on. Schwartz mentions that these dishes were created by their incredible culinary team. “As we collaborated on what the menu looks like, we wanted to tell diverse Jewish stories through the food and drinks that we serve.”

Upcoming classes will include “Creating the Jewish Community You Want and Need,” “Passover and Passing Through: Celebrating Miracles Big And Small,” “An Evening of New Yiddish Folklore, Papercut Crankie + Live Klezmer Music!”

Jewish-themed restaurant Lehrhaus is open for dining, drinks, and culture at 425 Washington Street in Somerville.

A membership option is also available. For $36 a month or $360 annually, visitors can experience Lehrhaus in a brand-new way. Some benefits of the membership include two free tickets per month to classes, early access to special programs and events, and even 1-on-1 learning with the educators at Lehrhaus. THE HOUSE AND SENATE: Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators' votes on a roll call from the week of April 8-12. There were no roll calls in the House last week.

$375 MILLION FOR ROADS AND BRIDGES (H 4529)

Senate 39-0. approved a bill that includes authorizing $200 million in one-time funding for the maintenance and repair of local roads and bridges in cities and towns across the state. The $375 million package, a bond bill under which the funding would be borrowed by the state through the sale of bonds, also includes $175 million for several transportation-related grant programs. The House has already approved the bill and only final House and Senate passage are necessary before the measure goes to Gov. Healey for her signature.

The programs funded by the $175 million include the municipal small bridge program; the complete streets program; a bus transit infrastructure program; and grants for municipalities to purchase electric vehicles and the infrastructure needed to support them.

"The annual authorization of the Chapter 90 program provides cities and towns with the state funding they need to most effectively address their transportation infrastructure needs," said Sen. Brendan Crighton (D-Lynn), Senate Chair of the Committee on Transportation. "This $375 million total investment in both Chapter 90 and additional grant opportunities funds tangible improvements across our entire transportation network—including roads, bridges, access to mass transit and sidewalks."

"Getting around our communities is a fundamental part of everyone's day," said Senate President Karen Spilka (D-Ashland). "Whether the commute takes you on the sidewalk, through a bike lane, across a small bridge, onto your Regional Transit Authority or to the T, your journey should be quick and safe. By passing today's legislation, we are empowering our cities and towns with the funding to make improvements to the infrastructure our residents travel on, regardless of where they go and how."

"Our transportation infrastructure is so vitally important to the state's economy and this Chapter 90 funding addresses many outstanding issues in keeping the commonwealth's and public transportation system in peak operating condition," said Sen. Mike Rodrigues (D-Westport), Chair of the Senate Committee on Ways and Means. "I'm pleased that over $375 million has been allocated to municipal roadways, local streetscape improvements and enhancements to our mass transit system,"

We're grateful to see the House and Senate swiftly pass the Chapter 90 bond bill with key investments in municipal roads and bridges," said Adam Chapdelaine, CEO of the Mass Municipal Association. "This quick action was essential with the construction season already underway. This year, we'll again be advocating for the Legislature to supplement these programs through dedicated funding via the new state surtax. Last year, supplemental Chapter 90 aid via the surtax provided an additional $100 million for the 30,000 miles of municipal roads, which went to great use in communities all across the commonwealth."

(A "Yes" vote is for the $375 million package.)

HOUSE WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE PROPOSES $57.9 BILLION FISCAL 2025 STATE BUDGET – The House fired the second shot in the long battle over the state budget for fiscal year 2025 that begins on July 1. Gov. Maura Healey fired the opening volley in January when she filed her version of the spending package. The House Ways and Means Committee last week unveiled its own $57.9 billion version. It increases spending by $1.9 billion, or 3.3 percent, over the current fiscal year 2024 budget. Debate on the House version is scheduled to begin soon.

After the full House approves a version of the package, the Senate will follow suit with its own draft, and a House-Senate conference committee will eventually craft a plan that will be presented to the House and Senate for consideration and sent to the governor.

TRAFFIC STOPS FOR PERSONS WITH AUTISM – The state announced the implementation of the "Blue Envelope Program," designed to improve interactions between police officers and persons with autism spectrum disorder during traffic stops. The voluntary program provides individuals on the autism spectrum with specially designed blue envelopes to carry their driver's licenses; vehicle registration; and a contact card which informs police officers about their diagnosis and other essential communication guidelines to ensure more effective and sensitive communication during the interaction.

In addition, information printed on the envelope's exterior identifies the operator as a person with autism spectrum disorder, provides instructions for a police officer on how to enhance communication with the driver; and how to reduce anxiety and stress the driver may be experiencing as a result of being stopped or involved in an incident. The envelope also lists guidelines for the driver, including what to expect during a traffic stop, and how to present the Blue

Envelope to the officer.

"In honor of Autism Acceptance Month, the Blue Envelope Program reflects our deep commitment to supporting programs that strengthen inclusivity and support law enforcement's ability to more effectively meet the needs of every community member," said Gov. Maura Healey. "We're grateful for the collaboration of our partners who brought this important public safety program to fruition."

"This new program provides an essential tool to enhance communication between police officers and drivers with autism while helping officers to recognize possible behaviors and more effectively engage individuals during traffic stops, motor vehicle accidents or mechanical breakdowns," said Public Safety and Security Secretary Terrence Reidy.

More information about the Blue Envelope Program, including how to request an envelope online and how to prepare, carry and display them, is available at <https://www.mass.gov/info-details/blue-envelope-program?auHash=2Z5Rbw9xlO3joxF-Qc3ODJ-OxVtUP5onqW4OPtjHjU#getting-your-blue-envelope->.

Blue envelopes are available at all Massachusetts State Police Barracks. And will soon be available at local police departments.

MUST NOTIFY OWNER OF GAS OR ELECTRIC SHUTOFFS (H 1370) – The House gave initial approval to legislation that would require gas and electric companies to contact landlords within 14 days of a tenant's bill becoming past due.

Supporters said the bill would allow for third party notifications as an extra measure of protection against having their gas or electric service shut off. Utility companies would be required to contact landlords within 14 days of a tenant's bill becoming past due. And if a tenant is out of town or overlooks the notice, the landlord will be notified and can give rectify the situation to protect their property from any damage due to a cessation of service.

"The purpose of this bill is to notify homeowners, particularly landlords, about a potential shut-off," said sponsor Rep. Jeff Roy (D-Franklin). "Currently, only the customer of record is given notice, which makes a landlord vulnerable to cessation of services which may harm their real property."

LOWER INTEREST RATE ON PROPERTY TAXES DEFERRED BY SENIORS (H 2919) – The House gave initial approval to a bill which would lower the current flat 16 percent interest rate on property taxes that are deferred under the Senior Citizen Continued on page 15

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Illustrated by Jim Clark

Happy Earth Day, Somerville.

Our View Of The Times

It began after a bad oil spill that took place in 1969 off the coast of California. A year later, the first annual Earth Day was celebrated to demonstrate universal support for environmental protection and responsible stewardship of the planet and its inhabitants.

Since then, public and official awareness of the negative impacts of human activity – such as air and water pollution – have been raised to a level where concrete action is being demanded to mitigate those effects and heal the ills that have been inflicted on our world.

On this anniversary of the annual celebration taking place this Saturday, April 22, Groundwork Somerville, 138 South St., Somerville, will host a farm workday from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m., along with a community-wide celebration from 12:00 to 2:00 p.m. filled with hands-on educational activities, games, music, and more.

The occasion may represent an opportunity to reflect on how fragile our biological and environmental systems truly are, and the need for proper care and implementation of procedures that will ensure the optimal health of both the large and small on the only home we have, our precious planet Earth.

Similarly, the many factors affecting our environmental health demand that immediate and meaningful measures must be taken as soon as possible.

Cooperation between nations, corporations, informed experts and the common inhabitants of this world is clearly the best hope for saving us all.

May all of us gather together in the common cause of doing just that.

One If By Land, Two If By Sea

By Bob (Monty) Doherty

Somerville statesman Edward Everett first brought Paul Revere’s ride to light in his 1825 speech at Concord. Thirty-five years later, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow solidified Revere’s fame with his legendary 1860 poem, Paul Revere’s Ride.

Longfellow wrote it with the hope of avoiding the bloodshed of a civil war. It inspired the whole nation but didn’t prevent hostilities. A decade later, North Chelsea, Massachusetts, changed its name to Revere in honor of the patriot hero. The town named one of its schools and one of its main streets that runs to the ocean after him. Revere Beach is the first public beach in America.

Although Somerville never claimed Revere as its name, she can vaunt an historic trail of connections with the famous “Midnight Rider.”

• An old memorial and a brand new statue in front of the Somerville Holiday Inn on Washington Street pay homage to Paul Revere. On the eve of April 19, 1775, he came dangerously close to being captured here by British Cavalry.

• The summit of Winter Hill was once the location of a revolutionary fort, and today is the site of Paul Revere Park, Continued on page 13

Two Somerville breweries earn recognition as green beverage producers

Somerville breweries Portico Brewing and Remnant Brewing have been recognized as "green beverage producers" by the recently launched BetterBev Recognition program. The distinctions are being awarded by the UMass Boston Green Brewery Project as part of a coalition of New England states receiving support from Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Pollution Prevention (P2) Grants. Just 50 or so of the region's more than 600 breweries have earned recognition so far.

Portico Brewing believes business should be a force for good, especially when it comes to the environment. The community-focused brewery's Environmental Handprint initiatives range from adopting dozens of newly planted neighborhood trees to working toward official bike-friendly business certification to raising money and awareness for its local watershed associations. In honor of Earth Month, Portico recently released Earth Hour Hazy Pale Ale, an environmentally conscious beer featuring 100% local ingredients that was thoughtfully brewed with a significantly lower carbon footprint than most other beers.

Remnant Brewing has undertaken a number of environmentally focused efforts as well, highlighted in its Malt Memoirs blog. In addition to recently brewing its own 100% local ingredient beer, an earthy Table Saison called Petite Pepite, its all-electric brewhouse produces significantly fewer Scope 1 emissions (those created on-site from fuel combustion, for example) than most breweries. The brewing staff has also decreased its use of caustic and acid cleaners and sanitizers through highly efficient SOPs, and its canned beer is packaged with rescued and reused can carriers as a result of the taproom's highly successful consumer take-back program.

BetterBev was created to help beverage producers fully understand their environmental practices, principles, and impact, with the goal of reducing production inefficiencies, improving health and safety, and conserving natural resources. Recognition is earned after a beverage producer's state oversight organization works with them to perform an audit and assessment of their environmental practices and impact. The process covers criteria ranging from water use to energy efficiency and conservation to waste reduction and even environmental culture.

Together, through operational efficiencies and environmentally conscious decision making, the two Somerville breweries have decreased their hazardous chemical use by some 75 pounds and lowered their emissions by more than 30 Metric Tons of CO₂e annually. The former helps to lessen the load on Metro Boston's wastewater treatment facility while the latter equates to the amount of carbon sequestered by 35 acres of U.S. forests in one year.

For a list of the oversight organizations responsible for managing the BetterBev program in each of the

New England states visit the BetterBev website: <https://betterbev.org/>

About Portico Brewing

Portico Brewing is inspired by architecture and design of all kinds, and its approachable beers are made for everyone to enjoy. Its focus is to rethink traditional styles and create beers with classic ingredients and careful technique. Formerly a contract brand, Portico debuted its own brewery and community focused taproom near the Somerville-Cambridge line in Massachusetts in spring of 2023.

About Remnant Brewing

Inspired by the history of Somerville's Union Square, as well the history of the craft beer industry, Remnant Brewing builds on precedent by creating a variety of unique and flavorful offerings to share with its guests. Their inclusive space in Bow Market strives for both excellent product, beer and coffee, as well as excellent service.

That Ratio

By Chris Dwan

Budget season in Somerville is starting off with a cool tone that approaches austerity. The School Committee has been told to expect a budget that will fail to cover mandatory increases like seniority-based pay raises. The City Council heard last Thursday that any new initiatives will need to fit in less than $15M.

This is a bit jarring, given that we are sitting on unprecedented amounts of cash. Our various stabilization funds, the accounts we use to carry money forward from year to year, hold more than $100M – a sixfold increase over the $15M we had in the bank just 10 years ago. We also seem likely to end the year with record levels of free cash, money received in excess of expenses within a fiscal year. Last year’s free cash was $32M, down from the $38M we had at the end of 2022, but more than threefold the $10M we averaged in 2011–2017.

The city has been awash in cash for the last decade, both in absolute terms and also year over year, but we seem stuck with deferred maintenance and general belt-tightening while money piles up unused. I took a dive into the last ten years of Comprehensive Financial Reports [1] (on the Finance Department’s website [2]) to try to understand why.

One thing that’s going on is that we’ve incurred a huge amount of debt over the last decade. Somerville’s municipal bond obligations rose from $96M to $337M from 2014 to 2023. A bit over half of that increase was attributable to the high school. We need a correspondingly huge amount of cash on hand to maintain the “debt ratio,” that drives our credit rating. Mayors Curtatone and Ballantyne have squirreled money into stabilization funds just as fast as they possibly could in a (successful) effort to maintain the city’s ability to borrow money on the very best terms.

This is in no way bad or nefarious. In fact, it was probably the best move available to either administration. It is, however, frustrating to see desperately needed infrastructure work, pay increases for staff, and hiring pushed back years at a time when we have a hundred million dollars in the bank.

Proposition 2.5 [3] is another constraint on the city’s finances. This is a statewide rule that caps the amount that cities in Massachusetts can increase their total property tax levy to 2.5% per year, excluding new construction. With real property values in Somerville growing far faster than that year over year, Proposition 2.5 has created a huge and growing gap between real and assessed property values.

Somerville’s debt has grown by a quarter of a billion dollars in the last ten years.

Owners who think of property primarily in terms of investment, rather than as a place to live or to run a business, can leverage the gap between taxable and market price to accumulate value tax-free. This “land banking” is one of the reasons that we have so many vacant properties throughout the city despite a run-up in demand that seems like it should have encouraged owners to sell and investors to develop.

I am not aware of any simple solution to these challenges, at least in the short term. We have a lot of debt, so we need to either hoard cash to protect our credit rating or empty the coffers to pay it down ahead of schedule. Proposition 2.5 constrains our operating budget, and land banking discourages the new construction that would let us get around it. We will likely need to incur still more debt in coming years to repair our crumbling schools, roads, and other infrastructure, all while cutting operating funds and pushing back on pay increases for staff to support the debt ratio. Creative ideas like best-use taxation, fines and fees on vacant properties, and so on always look great on paper but seem to get bogged down in implementation.

Understanding the root causes of a problem is usually an important first step in solving it. That’s why I thought it would be good to take a moment to, as we say on social media, admire the ratio [4]. Links:

which is the smallest federal park in the nation. Three apartment buildings historically circle the area, notably named The Concord, The Lexington and The Paul Revere. In 1910, President William Howard Taft visited and honored the location.

• Revere worked for and with his dear friend, Doctor and General Joseph Warren, martyr of Bunker Hill. After the battle, Warren’s body was identified by Revere who had performed dental work on him. Revere’s next born son was named after Warren, and Somerville was almost named after him.

• The first Prospect Hill flag raising took place on Revere’s 40th birthday, January 1, 1776. After the American victory at Saratoga, 4,000 British and Hessian prisoners were brought to Prospect Hill and Winter Hill under guard of Colonel Revere.

• One of Revere’s grandsons,

Edward Revere Curtis, made Somerville his home. He was born on George Washington’s birthday, February 22, when Boston became a city. He was a popular businessman and alderman. Curtis Street in Teele Square was named after him. Out of the 776 buildings that were lost in the Great Boston Fire of 1872, his was the last.

• On the eve of April 19, 1775, on a daring ride through Somerville and beyond, Revere triggered American history. That night he rode a steed with no name, but we will never forget its rider and his name ... Paul Revere!

Davis Sq. merchants get double dose of distressing news

By Jack Connolly
Jackconnolly422@gmail.com

Somerville City officials attended a meeting called for by Davis Sq. merchants last week to discuss the unhoused people, addicts frequenting Davis Sq. on a daily basis, and their open drug use and drug dealing happening in area parks, including the plaza next to 7/11. Much mention was made about disturbances apparently arising from patrons of the Brightview clinic on Highland Avenue, acting up throughout Davis Sq. Before and after visits to the Brightview office.

In addition, some merchants mentioned issues with people overdosing, or being generally incapacitated in front of, or in bathrooms of Davis Sq. businesses, causing extra distress for already busy staff.

West Somerville born Somerville Police Capt. Jim Donovan and Somerville Police community outreach worker Patty Contente we're very sympathetic to the concerns of Davis Sq merchants; Donovan though very understanding, couldn't offer any additional police presence in Davis Sq, but could only increase daily patrols. He said budget cuts and fewer sworn police officers on the force were the primary reasons for not adding a Davis area patrol.

Ms. Contente offered to engage with the Somerville Homeless Coalition and Bright View staff regarding client behavior in and around Davis Sq. Somerville Police, Somerville Homeless Coalition, and the BrightView addiction treatment office on Highland Ave., all have to coordinate with other local non-profits, especially those dealing with mental health issues, to get a handle on this growing problem.

Not exactly the news that the Davis Sq. merchants wanted to hear; To their credit, at least City staff and City police officials were there and we're both empathetic and sympathetic.

What was most upsetting to Davis Sq. merchants was what WASN'T said at the meeting: The pilot plan to remove more metered parking in Davis Sq.

Thanks to a vigilant Davis Sq. merchant who noticed the City's online Traffic Commission agenda for Thursday, April 11, (a few days after the April 8 meeting; The info was shared with fellow Davis Sq merchants) that was to introduce a 12-month pilot program for Elm Street in the heart of Davis Sq. that would remove much of the existing metered parking spaces on Elm St. in the heart of Davis Sq. for new loading zones.

Why is it that the Davis Sq. merchants and Davis Sq. neighbors living nearby were not involved in this planning process?

Shop owners immediately emailed Ward Six Councilor Lance Davis, and requested that this agenda item for Elm Street be tabled since the Davis Sq. merchants and the neighborhood have not been involved in any of that planning.

It's clear that the Somerville bureaucrats in the planning department, mobility department, and traffic department somehow failed to mention this Elm St. pilot project several weeks earlier when well over 80 individuals crowded into the Somerville West branch library to hear about the so-called Davis Sq. plan.

If we're not for the vigilance of a Davis Sq. merchant, the Traffic Commission could have voted to implement this pilot plan with virtually no public hearings or public meetings with Davis Sq. merchants and nearby neighbors.

Why? Because technically they don't have to; Public hearings are not required to be held under Somerville Traffic Commission rules.

Davis Sq merchants' and the neighborhood residents have been shortchanged; Two city meetings in the last few months without mentioning this plan, borders on the bounds of neglect for community input and a total disregard for public process; Davis Sq. neighbors and businesses deserve better.

Let's hope the Mayor and the City Council take a good look at what isn't happening in Davis Sq. Someone needs to.

City hosts Broadway reconstruction open house

By Joei Chan

On April 13, the City of Somerville Office of Mobility, Ward 7 Councilor Judy Pineda Neufeld and Mayor Katjana Ballantyne hosted an open house for the entire Somerville community to discuss designs for Broadway between Clarendon Avenue and Alewife Brook Parkway.

This open house is part of a series of events that hopefully can help the community get updated on the reconstruction of the sidewalks to make it safe for all people on the streets in Somerville, whether they are walking or wheeling, biking, taking the bus, or even driving. All of this is part of the city's Pavement and Sidewalk Management Program.

Some things that were discussed during the meeting included the Somerville Bicycle Network Plan, and the anticipated project timeline of when it should be completed. For now, the final design should be done within late 2024 to early 2025.

With virtual community meetings, a public input map, street outreach and community events, safety feedback and proposed design services, as well as direct engagement alongside communications on social media, the City of Somerville hopes to help make the streets safer.

Visit <https://voice.somerville.ma.gov/west-broadway-reconstruction> to learn more about the project.

The City of Somerville is hosting events such as last week's open house to keep the public informed about ongoing reconstruction projects currently underway.

HOW LONG WAS LAST WEEK'S SESSION?

Beacon Hill Roll Call tracks the length of time that the House and Senate were in session each week. Many legislators say that legislative sessions are only one aspect of the Legislature's job and that a lot of important work is done outside of the House and Senate chambers. They note that their jobs also involve committee work, research, constituent work and other matters that are important to their districts. Critics say that the Legislature does not meet regularly or long enough to debate and vote in public view on the thousands of pieces of legislation that have been filed. They note that the infrequency and brief length of sessions are misguided and lead to irresponsible late-night sessions and a mad rush to act on dozens of bills in the days immediately preceding the end of an annual session. During the week of April 8-12, the House met for a total of one hour and ten minutes and the Senate met for a total of two hours and 31 minutes.

Mon. April 8	House 11:04 a.m. to 11:22 a.m. Senate 11:07 a.m. to 11:17 a.m.
Tues. April 9	No House session No Senate session
Wed. April 10	House 11:46 a.m. to 12:07 p.m. Senate 11:16 a.m. to 11:44 a.m.
Thurs. April 11	House 11:02 a.m. to 11:33 a.m. Senate 11:10 a.m. to 1:03 p.m.
Fri. April 12	No House session No Senate session

OBITUARY

Martha MacLeish Fuller

Martha MacLeish Fuller, of Somerville, MA, and Prudence Island, RI, died on April 10, 2024, after an extended attempt to coexist with colon and pancreatic cancer.

She was the daughter of Kenneth MacLeish and Carolyn deChadenèdes. She leaves her beloved husband, Herbert Fuller; her sons, Drew Glazier and Levi Fuller (Meghan), and granddaughter, Rowan Loch Fuller. She also leaves her brother, A. Bruce MacLeish (Patricia), her sister, Ellen Zale, and her brother, Kenneth Ian MacLeish (Donna) and their children, as well as great-nieces and great-nephews.

After graduating from Radcliffe College, she spent most of her working life at Harvard University as a staff assistant to faculty members, which she found a good blend of interesting work with an ability to have a family life. She became involved in the Harvard Union of Clerical and Technical Workers, and after retiring from the University she worked for the union for several years as an organizer, inspired by the union's theme, "kindness and respect." She most enjoyed helping union members and supervisors to find that they had common ground, and could resolve their differences with mutual understanding.

Martha and Herb spent much of their time at their home on Prudence Island, a source of peace and renewal. Their friends there and on the mainland (in "America") have provided material and emotional support during her treatment for cancer. The physicians, nurses, and staff at Beth Israel Medical Center have been skilled, kind, and thoughtful, without exception.

She loved every day of her life, even the hardest ones, and was grateful for them all and for the beloved people who made them a joy.

A Graveside Service will be held for Martha at 10:45am on Saturday, April 20, 2024, at Prudence Memorial Park, Prudence Island.

Somerville's Food For Free Walks to Fight Hunger

On May 5, Food For Free will be among over 3,500 participants to lace up for Project Bread's 56th annual Walk for Hunger. For the 6th consecutive year, the Somerville-based nonprofit will raise money to support statewide food security through the Commonwealth Program. The Commonwealth gives organizations addressing food insecurity 60% of all funds they raise to support their own hunger relief programs, with the remaining 40% applied to Project Bread's statewide food security effort. To date, Project Bread has awarded $27,834 to Food For Free.

Beginning in 1969, as the first pledge walk in the nation, Project Bread's Walk for Hunger brings together a diverse community dedicated to creating change. The one-day event is set for Sunday, May 5 at 9 a.m. on the Boston Common and will feature family-friendly activities, programming, and games. Project Bread works year-round across policy initiatives, programs, and hunger prevention measures to ensure food access for all children and families across the Commonwealth.

"We have made incredible strides against hunger, from the passage of permanent free school meals in Massachusetts to increasing access to SNAP for immigrants facing food insecurity," says Erin McAleer, Project Bread's CEO. "But hunger is still a pervasive problem in our state, with 1 in 6 households and 1 in 5 households with children currently facing food insecurity. The work Food For Free does reflects what the Walk is all about - continuing to step up each year to make sure our neighbors in need can access and afford food. The Food For Free Walk team understands how we need to work together for statewide food security because our community is what makes us stronger."

Food For Free is the leading food rescue and distribution nonprofit dedicated to providing reliable access to fresh and nutritious food to eastern Massachusetts communities. The organization rescues food that would otherwise go to waste and creates new distribution channels to reach underserved populations in 25 communities across the region. Additional programs include School Markets, offering free produce and shelf-stable items to students and families, Just Eats, which provides fresh produce and pantry staples to food programs, Healthy Eats, serving Cambridge seniors and people with disabilities by bringing healthy food that meets dietary preferences right to their doorsteps, and Heat-n-Eats, which takes prepared food from corporate, university, and hospital dining services and turns it into balanced, single-serving meals that are distributed to people who lack access to kitchens. Funds raised from the Walk for Hunger will help Food For Free fund its general operating and program costs, which includes food purchases, packaging, facilities, transportation, volunteer support, and more.

"We love being part of such a collaborative effort to fight food insecurity in our community and throughout Massachusetts," says Eliza McDonough, Food For Free's Manager of Events and Special Initiatives. "The need remains high across the Commonwealth. As one of the nation's first food rescue programs, Food For Free now serves more than 150,000 Massachusetts residents who are food insecure and distributes 6.2 million pounds of nutritious fresh and prepared foods annually. Project Bread has been such an integral part of this shared mission, and we are honored to work alongside them to bring healthy and nutritious food to those in need."

Money raised through the Walk for Hunger is critical to Project Bread's statewide work for systemic change through the levers of policy, prevention, and partnerships to ensure people of all ages have reliable access to healthy food. Project Bread launched the joint-fundraising Commonwealth Program in 2019. In 2023, 34 nonprofits raised more than $160,000 to support their own programs for statewide food security.

To register as a participant for Project Bread's Walk for Hunger, or to support a walker or team with a donation, visit projectbread.org/walk. Donate directly to Food For Free's Commonwealth team at give.projectbread.org/team/565094. There is no registration fee or fundraising minimum to participate, although a $250 minimum goal is suggested. Participants who raise $500 or more are recognized as Heart & Sole walkers and receive access to personalized fundraising support, exclusive event gear and invitations to events.

People experiencing food insecurity should call Project Bread's FoodSource Hotline (1-800-645-8333), which provides confidential, free assistance getting connected to a variety of food resources in 180 languages and for the hearing impaired. Counselors can pre-screen families and help them to apply for SNAP. Learn more at www.projectbread.org/get-help.

About Project Bread

Project Bread is the leading statewide food security organization in Massachusetts. Beginning in 1969 with the first Walk for Hunger, the nonprofit focuses on driving systemic change to ensure people of all ages have reliable access to healthy food. Project Bread works collaboratively across sectors to create innovative solutions to end hunger and improve lives across the Commonwealth. For more information, visit: www.projectbread.org.

About Food For Free

Food For Free is a Somerville-based non-profit organization dedicated to providing eastern Massachusetts with reliable access to fresh and nutritious food. Food For Free accomplishes its mission through food rescue, partnerships with schools, colleges, and community food programs, and our own direct service programs. In the last year, Food For Free distributed over 6.2 million pounds of nutritious food to over 25 communities throughout eastern Massachusetts. 'Discipline' by Debra Spark

Discipline
By Debra Spark
Four Way Books, Tribeca
306 pages. $19.95

Review by Off the Shelf correspondent Ed Meek

Debra Spark is the author of a number of novels and short story collections as well as a couple of anthologies. She teaches in the MFA Program at Warren Wilson College and at Colby College. Her novel Discipline is a mosaic of mysteries.

It begins with an art appraiser, Gracie, who is hired in 2018 to examine a collection of paintings owned by a collector, but when she arrives at the house in Maine where the art is stored, she finds that the work the artist is most famous for is missing, presumably stolen. Then the novel jumps back to 1978 and the point of view of an adolescent rebellious boy, Reggie, living with foster parents in a poor urban area. This occurs because Reggie has a history of “mouthing off” to authorities. When he insults the owners of a restaurant who refuse to serve him, they call the police and that leads to Reggie being called to the principal’s office. From there, he is turned over to a man who takes him to a “therapeutic boarding school” in remote Maine where Reggie is to be rehabilitated.

The novel moves back and forth in time exploring various points of view including, in addition to Gracie and Reggie, the famous artist known for the missing painting, the daughter of the artist, the son of the daughter of the artist, a man who rides in a horse to rescue the daughter of the artist and the grown-up degenerate son of the daughter of the artist.

The novel is almost mathematical in the way all these stories are woven and brought together and the theme of discipline Spark focuses on is compelling. And who doesn’t love an art heist? If you are from Boston, you know the story of the Isabella Stewart Gardner theft in 1990 in which thirteen works were stolen including a Vermeer, a number of paintings by Rembrandt, and a few by Degas. The case was never solved. There’s still a ten-million-dollar reward!

Spark is adept at writing from the point of view of the women in the novel; artists and art lovers will enjoy the art talk. The other discipline in the novel concerns the boarding school. It is based on an actual boarding school called Elan that used a disreputable version of “attack” therapy to demean and break down troublesome boys and girls by doing things like making them sing “Mary had a little Lamb” in front of everyone, or dress up in a chicken costume as punishment, or engage in boxing matches with multiple opponents. Although the portrait of the school is based on interviews the author did with adults who attended Elan, the novel runs into the problem Tim O’Brien brings up in The Things They Carried where he talks about the difference between a war story and what makes a good story. The retelling just doesn’t feel right. Reggie, a sensitive young man who doesn’t fight, drink or take drugs is somehow committed to this horrific school where he is degraded and severely beaten. It’s a little over the top. Here and a number of other places in the novel when a character asks, “Can you believe this really happened?” You might find yourself saying, “No, I can’t.” In addition, Spark makes use of Deus ex machina’s to move the plot along. Reggie meets the daughter of the artist by jumping into a cab with her. A character actually shows up out of nowhere on a horse to rescue the daughter of the artist. As Foucault says in his book Discipline, “truth isn’t outside power.” And “power produces knowledge.” Whoever has power determines what the truth is. Debra Spark’s Discipline touches on this and some intriguing issues that resonate in our current era when scandalous Indian Boarding Schools, lynching stories and questions about the atrocious behavior of people in the past are uncovered daily. Meanwhile, we are faced with questions about the role of art and the nature of truth, truthiness and alternate truths in our news and politics.

Lyrical

SOMERVILLE

edited by Doug Holder

María Del Castillo Sucerquia, born in Barranquilla, Colombia in 1997, is a bilingual poet proficient in both Spanish and English. She has translated poet Marc Goldfinger's poem WHAT I DO into English.

WHAT I DO

for Brenda, but she never knew it

As she drives

she places the inhaler in her mouth, fires a puff deep, holds her breath until she can breathe again.

I still carry a Zippo, light her cigarettes, watch my heart melt in the shadow of the flame. It is an old lighter. At a Rainbow Festival someone gave it to me for a six-pack of beer. I still carry it, light her cigarettes, fall in love, look into the dark window of her car when she takes out the inhaler. There are things I can't change. So

I write poetry instead.
