City, unions tangle over Clarendon Hill Public Housing Project

Many Somerville residents and labor union representatives expressed dismay and disapproval over the proposed Clarendon Hill Public Housing Project as it is currently planned for by the city.

By Jim Clark

The City of Somerville Board of Aldermen Legislative Matters Committee held a public hearing on Monday, May 21, to consider proposals from the administration, the Board, and concerned members of the public in the matter of the Clarendon Hill Public Housing Project.

The project will involve extensive renovation of the Clarendon Hill facility and has become a contentious issue between city administrators, potential developers, and union representatives, to list a few.

The official business at the hearing included three main items for consideration. First, that the Director of SPCD advise the Board on any conditions to be imposed on the developers of the Clarendon Hill housing project regarding property ownership and land use, relocation of tenants, local and state Continued on page 4

Third Annual Heroes Salute recognizes Somerville veterans

By Shira Laucharoen

The 2018 Somerville Heroes Salute honored eight Somerville residents who served the nation in war, during a ceremony at the Holiday Inn on May 19. Held for the third time annually, the Salute gave tribute to the heroes by recognizing their loyalty and dedication, as well as the ways they impacted their home communities.

"Those fortunate enough to come home took what they learned in the military and applied it in their everyday lives," said commissioner of veterans' services Bryan Bishop. "They are an example of excellence that a lot of people look up to and admire."

Somerville Education Foundation Funds Summer Learning Programs (SEF) is seeking additional donations from the public. The Foundation has funded expanded enrollment in summer programs across the city. SEF worked with the city and Somerville Public Schools to identify quality programming that could be expanded via targeted grants. During summer months, all students are at risk for summer learning loss especially low-income students who lack access to high-quality enrichment that reinforces their school year gains. Fundraising from community leaders and businesses resulted in commitments of over $12,000 thus far. This will give 60 Somerville children free access to a variety of camps and activities, including programs with Parts and Crafts, Parkour Generations, Somerville Media Center and Mystic Learning Center. SEF continues to raise funds to further expand access for this summer and support future programming. SEF invites individuals, organizations and businesses to join their efforts. This is the first part of a longer-term program to raise and distribute funds to support educational excellence across the city. All donations are tax exempt charitable contributions and should be sent to: Somerville Ed Foundation17 Kidder Avenue, Somerville MA 02144.

First, the city calls a few "snow emergencies" 24 hours in advance and cancels school, for maybe an inch or two of snow. Never mind the old way of canceling school - you hear about it on TV or the radio in the morning or hear that citywide whistle, at which time parents have to take time off from work to deal with their kids, then run around and find a place to park in time. Then the city cancels a ceremony that has been ongoing for many years, marking the raising of the first American flag by George Washington on Prospect Hill on January 1, 1775. In the past, the ceremony was held at 6:00 a.m. (talk about being cold, and not canceled). This administration had it changed to 12 noon, but not this year. The ceremony was canceled because of it being COLD! They did do it, if we recollect right, in March AND - oh yea - it was NOT THAT MUCH warmer. Response to: Proposal for Winter Hill Star Market lot unveiled

LindaS says:

Why does every building project in Somerville have to be about housing? What's wrong with bringing some decent businesses in here? We don't need more high-end, trendy stores with expensive stuff. We could use some competitive stores here that are a little bigger. An Aldi Food Market would be great here, for instance, and they're a good competition for Market Basket. The problem here is more that there just aren't enough real businesses coming back in here. We don't need more living spaces, we have more than enough people living here as it is. What we can use here are more businesses to keep people from leaving the city to do their shopping. I rarely shop in my own city because all the good stores are out of town.

Please, let's have something other than another apartment building in Somerville. Even a community center would be a welcome change, and at least that would really do some good.

Ryblogs says:

Dear LindaS

Are you not aware of Bow Market which just opened in Union Square, bringing in 30+ small businesses, a brewery, and a comedy club to Somerville?

Or how about the developments in Assembly Row, which are brining in millions of square feet, a combination of office, R&D, hospitality and civic uses?

Or how about the revitalization of Union Square, currently underway, which has plans similar to those of assembly square, including a 25 story building at the site of the planned Union Square green line station? http://www.bldup.com/posts/2-3-million-square-foot-mixed-use-development-in-somerville-s-union-square-moves-forward-with-zoning-approval

Or how about the two new buildings going in Boyton yards, that include 426,911 square feet of office space, 112,250 square feet of research and development (R&D) space and 30,478 square feet of retail? http://www.bldup.com/projects/boynton-yards

MarketMan says:

Linda: I agree with you. More and more bland apartment/condo buildings. I'm tired of it. I hope at least the first floor is set aside for businesses, both retail and office. I also think an Aldi would have been nice there.

Highlander says:

Ryblogs - Give Linda a break. Other than Bow market, which just opened, all of the examples you list are mostly ideas on paper. At Assembly, it would have been nice if Partners was paying full freight in taxes and didn't just relocate existing employees from other offices. And the 25 story building in Union is going to be housing.

Bill Shelton says:

LindaS is exactly right. Housing pays only 60% the tax rate that commercial property pays, but it generates twice the costs. Every additional residential property contributes to a structural fiscal deficit, unless it contains no school-age children. So every new residential development is a choice between becoming fiscally weaker, or adding more childless residents, who historically have been disproportionately transient and less inclined to contribute to the life of the community.

The argument that increasing housing supply in New England's densest city will reduce housing prices is nonsense. Housing supply and demand dynamics are regional.

Ryblogs cites a lot of new commercial buildings which, taken together, still represent only a small fraction of new residential development. That imbalance takes us in a direction opposite of where we need to go. Only 14% of our assessed property value is commercial, which is why we pay a 50% higher tax rate that Cambridge residents pay. And they have two jobs for every working resident, while we have the opposite-a four-fold difference. I'm with LindaS on the Aldi as well.

The Somerville Times No change for Ames Business Park with new owners

By Emily Blackwood

Ames Business Park is under new ownership thanks to a deal with development and management company Rafi Properties.

In April, Rafi Properties closed on an $88 million deal to buy the 300,000-squarefoot mixed-use site. Currently the home to unique businesses such as Greentown Labs, Brooklyn Boulders, Aeronaut Brewing Co., Tasting Counter and Artisan's Asylum, Rafi's managing director says he plans on keeping the diversity of the space as is.

"The former owner has done a phenomenal job on turning it from an empty warehouse space, and we really see our ability to push it to the next step for innovation," said Colin Yip. "We're talking to the city about some transportation improvements that could be done in and around the business park, creating some art displays, better parking; that's the low hanging fruits we're gonna go after right now."

Tenants like Michael Yim, site director for Aeronaut, say they love the community feel Ames Business Park has to it.

"It kinda feels like a small living room," Yim said, "We're all on the same page and enjoy the culture and art everyone has to offer. We have a hub that's hidden in many ways from the general public. That makes it special for me."

People can learn how to play Go, a Chinese strategy game, at Aeronaut, work on their cosplay costumes at Artisan's Asylum, have the ultimate date night at Tasting Room and support local startups at Greentown Labs.

"Adjacent to our kitchen is a brewery, and right outside our doors is Somerville Chocolate," said Peter Ungár of Tasting Counter. "Whenever there's any chocolate we use, it was made literally just feet away from us. When we do a beer pairing, some of that beer is coming from right down the hall."

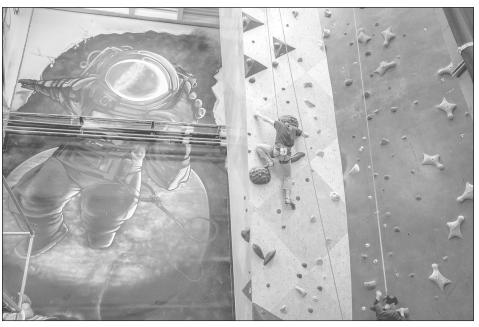

Ted Sirota, president of Artisan's Asylum, said he'd had similar experiences with his fellow tenants and neighbors.

"We host one-person startups, and Greentown Labs hosts larger ones," he said. "Usually what can happen is that a person starts pursuing their idea with us as a hobby or a way to get away from their jobs, and then they decide they want to take it more seriously and grow, so they go to Greentown."

This connection and community is the heart of Ames Business Park, which is precisely the way Yip wants to keep it. In addition to making the area more accessible, Rafi and the tenants are also working to throw a summer block party in the park. The date for that is still to

Dangerous drugs intercepted by police

On the evening of Friday, May 18, Somerville Police Drug Control Unit undercover officers conducting surveillance operations at a Highland Ave. location took notice of an individual police knew had prior involvement in the use of heroin and fentanyl walking in the direction of School St.

This person has been the victim of drug overdoses in the past and also has been present when police respond to drug overdoses of other individuals.

According to reports, police have also arrested one of the man's drug distributors after he was involved with his distributor in a drug transaction. During that incident, the man reportedly purchased fentanyl from his distributor and the drug was also recovered from his distributor, who was arrested by the Drug Control Unit.

Based on the man's behavior, which included talking to someone on his cell phone and looking around repeatedly, the officers felt that he might be going to meet someone to purchase narcotics.

The man made his way to the corner of Madison St. and Sycamore. A few minutes later two drove onto Madison St. from Sycamore and the man under surveillance entered the vehicle, which drove off down Madison St. Rolling surveillance was maintained by police, and the man was spotted exiting the vehicle while it was stopped at the red light.

Officers then approached the man for questioning. A detective grabbed the man's arms to prevent him from putting anything in his mouth and swallowing potential evidence. The man was asked to open his mouth, but he indicated to police that what they were looking for was in his pocket.

Police reportedly recovered a 1.5 gram baggie of an off white powdery substance which was believed to be heroin or fentanyl. The vehicle took a right onto Highland Ave. heading west

parently observed the man being detained by detectives. One officer then pretended to be a pedestrian crossing the street slowly to prevent the vehicle's occupants from fleeing the area. At this point a detective turned around and showed his police badge and identified himself as a police officer.

Police observed that the vehicle was put in reverse gear in what was believed to be an attempt to flee. A detective then drew his firearm and ordered the males to put the car in park.

The driver of the vehicle, later identified as Darryll Chefils, of Roslindale, was placed him into handcuffs for officer safety. The passenger, later identified as Jamison Gaston, of Dorchester, stepped out of the vehicle and he was also placed into handcuffs for officer safety.

All Three suspects were then separated and were read their Miranda warnings.

Cherfils was asked where he and Gaston were coming from prior to being stopped by police. Cherfils reportedly stated that he just came from a pizza place in Cambridge. He was then asked if he met up with anyone or if anyone entered his car after he left the restaurant to when he was stopped by the police, to which Cherfils replied that he hadn't. Cherfils was asked if there was any illegal narcotics in the vehicle and he reportedly stated there something in the vehicle.

Gaston was asked the same series of questions and reportedly told police that he was just picked up by Cherfils from a house located on Highland Ave. Gaston was asked if he and Cherfils had picked up anyone or met anyone prior to the motor vehicle stop and Gaston reportedly stated they did not.

The man under surveillance was asked what the substance was that was in his pocket. He reportedly told police that he was not sure but he believed it to be fentanyl.

In searching the vehicle, police located one hundred dollars of US currency in the center console of the vehicle, consistent with how much 1.5 gram of heroin or fentanyl would cost.

Police also reportedly found a white plastic bag that was tied in a knot on the front passenger side floorboard. Inside that bag was a grey plastic bag tied in a knot. Inside that bag was six plastic baggies containing an off white powdery substance which is believed to be heroin or fentanyl.

Cherfils was asked who the bag belonged to, but did not answer. Gaston was also asked the same question, and he reportedly stated that nothing in the car was his.

Cherfils and Gaston were then placed under arrest, both on charges of trafficking in heroin-morphine-opium and distribution of a class B drug.

The man who was initially surveilled by police will be summonsed into court at a later date for possession of a Class B substance.

Film festival seeks fellowship through creativity and community

By Courtney Young

It takes a substantial amount of expertise and entrepreneurial spirit to take only 90 minutes and use it to empower a community, but that is exactly what the filmmakers and organizers did during the 3rd Annual Cinema Somerville Outdoor Film Festival on Saturday evening.

The theme this year was "Local Voices," centered around "voices of creativity, voices of change, voices of protest, hopes and dreams, and giving a voice to the voiceless." Some issues that the audience saw brought to life were immigration, sexuality, identity, gentrification, mental health, and racial politics.

Throughout the 90-minute screening, members of the community gathered around to support the filmmakers who projected their creativity into misrepresented topics and unheard voices within Somerville.

The venture to give social issues a voice that are often undiscovered and ignored in the world was the prerogative of everyone involved in production of this event. Included in the screening was a multitude of perspectives from various demographics, some of which focused on: non-materialistic qualities of African American women and girls highlighting strength, love, and beauty; to discussing the rights of those obtained by law enforcement; to nods at artificial intelligence and a comical approach at how it can inconvenience us in our dating efforts.

" Somerville is a place that encourages its community members to grow..."

The 16 short films were exceptional in film quality and healthy in humor, emotion, and passion.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators and representatives' votes on roll calls from the week of May 14-18.

GARDEN OF PEACE (S 2372)

House 151-0, Senate 37-0, approved and sent to Gov. Charlie Baker a bill transferring the management and administration of the Garden of Peace to the state's Victim Assistance Board. The Garden of Peace is a public memorial garden located on the plaza of 100 Cambridge Street near the Statehouse. The garden's website describes it as commemorating "victims of homicide and a living reminder of the impact of violence. It is a visual testament to the need for eliminating violence. The garden is a symbol of hope for peace and renewal in our lives, our community, and the world."

The central feature of the memorial is a dry streambed with smooth river stones engraved with the names of the many victims of homicide.

Supporters said the bill firms up management of the non-profit Garden of Peace by locating control of it in the Massachusetts Office of Victim Assistance.

"This bill will assure that the memories of victims are honored properly in the Garden of Peace," said Sen. Will Brownsberger (D-Belmont), the bill's sponsor.

(A "Yes" vote is for the bill.)

Rep. Christine Barber	Yes
Rep. Mike Connolly	Yes
Rep. Denise Provost	Yes
Sen. Patricia Jehlen	Yes

LIFE SCIENCES (H 4501)

House 149-3, approved and sent to the Senate a bill that would authorize $462 million in bonds for the Massachusetts Life Sciences Investment Fund with an emphasis on capital grants to increase diversity and opportunity in the Bay State life sciences and biotech industries.

Other provisions require that half of the consolidated net surplus in budgetary funds, up to $10 million, be directed to the Massachusetts Life Sciences Investment Fund; raise the annual ceiling on the Life Sciences Tax Incentive Program from $25 million to $30 million; require that funding and internship consideration be given to support minority populations in the life sciences industry; and extend the Life Sciences Tax Incentive Program through 2028. The incentive was due to expire at the end of 2018. remains the health sciences hub not only of the United States, but of the world," Sanchez said.

Rep. Nick Boldyga (R-Southwick) was one of only three representatives who voted against the bill. He was the only one who responded to Beacon Hill Roll Call's request for a comment.

"The Democrats continue to give millions of dollars to corporations while allowing the most important priorities like infrastructure, education, and public safety to go unfunded," said Boldyga.

(A"Yes" vote is for the bill. A "No" vote is against it).

Rep. Christine Barber	Yes
Rep. Mike Connolly	Yes
Rep. Denise Provost	Yes

BIOMETRICS (S 95)

Senate 37-0, approved and sent to the House a bill, sponsored by Sen. Mike Barrett (D-Lexington), that would add biometrics to the Security Breach Law that the Legislature approved in 2007. That law requires the Office of Consumer Affairs and Business Regulation to regulate the use and protect the security of personally identifying information including passwords and social security numbers. It also imposes a duty on third parties who hold such information to report breaches in security.

Biometric indicators are unique biological attributes or measurements that can be used to authenticate the identity of a person including fingerprints, genetic information, iris or retina patterns, voice recognition, facial characteristics and hand geometry.

Supporters said the 2007 law has worked well and has resulted in the identification of thousands of breaches and the protection of millions of Massachusetts residents, including 947,000 Target customers whose information was compromised in 2013. They argued the law must be updated to keep up with new and changing technology and to protect consumers.

"This bill is disarmingly straightforward," said Barrett. "If you have biologically-based records or data on me and your data system is breached or hacked, you have to let me know. Nothing could be simpler."

(A "Yes" vote is for the bill.)

PROHIBIT SEX WITH SUSPECT (H 4472) -

The Judiciary Committee held a hearing on legislation that would impose a prison sentence of up to five years and/or a $10,000 fine on any police officer who engages in sexual relations with anyone who is under arrest by the officer or another officer. The measure states that a person is incapable of consenting to sexual relations with officers under those circumstances. This law currently applies to prison guards and this bill expands it to police officers.

"Given the power imbalance of the situation, a person in police custody is unable to give genuine consent free of coercion," said the bill's sponsor Rep. Kay Khan (D-Newton). "Hopefully this legislation, in addition to our existing sexual assault statutes, will eliminate ambiguity around issues of consent and help victims of such abuse feel more empowered to come forward."

PROTECT DISABLED (H 933) – The House gave initial approval to a bill creating the crime of rape of a person with a physical disability and imposing up to a life sentence on anyone convicted of this crime.

Supporters said it is important to recognize the increased vulnerability of a disabled person to predatory conduct and noted this proposal is similar to what already exists for those who are intellectually disabled.

"I was approached personally by the family of an individual for whom this has happened to and have been endeavoring this for several years," said sponsor Rep. Elizabeth Poirier (R-North Attleboro). "There needs to be more protections in place for physically disabled individuals in a situation like this. I have high hopes that there will be favorable passage of this bill and the family will ultimately find some peace."

ASSAULT ON HEALTH CARE WORKERS (H

795) – The House gave initial approval to a bill that would make it a felony and increase from 2.5 years to five years the maximum prison sentence that could be imposed on offenders convicted of assault or assault and battery on an emergency medical technician (EMT), ambulance operator, ambulance attendant or health care provider including doctors, nurses, social workers and chiropractors. The bill also abolishes the current 90-day mandatory sentence for the crime.

Supporters said that by eliminating the current mandatory three-month sentence but widening the range of options available to judges upon sentencing to include terms of up to five years in state prison, the bill expands judicial discretion while acknowledging the serious and violent nature of many of these crimes.

Chief House sponsor Rep. Joseph Wagner (D-Chicopee) said that the proposal builds on the success of the state's past investments through the 2008 life sciences initiative. "This bill represents our continued efforts to support workforce development across all regions of the commonwealth and to ensure Massachusetts remains a global leader in the life sciences, biotechnology and advanced manufacturing industries," said Wagner.

House Ways and Means Chair Jeff Sanchez (D-Boston) said on his Facebook page that the bill will facilitate job growth through capital grants that advance education, workforce development and early-stage company growth.

"These investments, combined with internship opportunities for high school students, improved facilities, loans, capital grants and tax credits, will ensure Massachusetts

"RIGHT TO DRY" (S 1117) - The Senate approved a local option proposal that would prohibit a city or town from outright banning any homeowner or tenant from using a clothesline to dry clothing. The law would only take effect in cities or towns that opt into it. Condominium associations and landlords would be allowed to place reasonable restrictions on the placement and use of clotheslines but could not ban them completely.

Supporters said that using a clothesline in place of energy-intensive automatic dryers is a low-tech way of cutting energy use, reducing pollution and saving on bills. They noted the bill will protect the aesthetic and safety interests of homeowners by allowing homeowners' associations to impose reasonable location and manner restrictions on clothesline use. They noted that between 2011 and 2013, workplace assaults ranged from 23,540 and 35,630 annually, with some 70 percent occurring in healthcare and social service settings.

"The healthcare settings of today are complex and increasingly volatile and violent as statistics prove," said the bill's sponsor Rep. Denise Garlick (D-Needham). "Employers must be held accountable to develop and implement workplace violence prevention plans. When a nurse is stabbed ... or EMT is beaten or ambulance operator is punched and kicked it is not part of the job, it is a crime."

SCHOOL RESOURCE OFFICERS (H 4378) – The Education Committee held a hearing on a proposal

that would allow cities and towns to hire retired state and local police officers to be full-time safety resource officers at local schools. Under current law, there is a 960hour limit on the number of hours these officers can work in municipal or state government. That translates into approximately 120 eight-hour days.

Massachusetts school resource officers are certified only if they complete a 40-hour course that provides instruction in ethics, social media, diversity, informal counseling and mentoring, understanding teen development, understanding special needs students, youth trends, drugs, crime prevention, school safety and threat response.

"As a legislator and father, I know the protection of our children has to be our number one priority," said the bill's sponsor Rep. Jim Arciero (D-Westford). "The safety of our children has become a major focus of concern given several recent school tragedies around the nation. This legislation seeks to further enhance the safety of our schools and ensure a secure learning environment for our students."

Arciero filed the bill following his recent meetings with Westford Chief Thomas McEnaney and Westford Public Schools Superintendent Everett Olsen.

"This legislation will allow local school districts to access a highly-trained pool of applicants for these important public safety positions," said McEnaney. They generally will have decades of experience and, in most cases, be continued very knowledgeable about the communities and schools they will be working in."

QUOTABLE QUOTES – By the Numbers Edition

1.5 million — According to State Comptroller Thomas Shack, the number of views on CTHRU, Massachusetts' cloud-based transparency platform that provides detailed information on how tax dollars are spent. www.macomptroller.org/cthru.

150 — The number of physicians who signed a letter urging the Legislature to pass a statewide paid family and medical leave program.

12 percent — The six-month rate cut proposed by Eversource for its customers who are on the company's Basic Service supply option.

$86.5 million — The final price paid by UMass for its controversial acquisition of Mount Ida College last week.

3 — The number of Super Bowl rings won by Tedy Bruschi who was on Beacon Hill last week lobbying for three bills including the one raising the legal age to purchase tobacco from 18 to 21.

HOW LONG WAS LAST WEEK'S SESSION?

Beacon Hill Roll Call tracks the length of time that the House and Senate were in session each week. Many legislators say that legislative sessions are only one aspect of the Legislature's job and that a lot of important work is done outside of the House and Senate chambers. They note that their jobs also involve committee work, research, constituent work and other matters that are important to their districts. Critics say that the Legislature does not meet regularly or long enough to debate and vote in public view on the thousands of pieces of legislation that have been filed. They note that the infrequency and brief length of sessions are misguided and lead to irresponsible late-night sessions and a mad rush to act on dozens of bills in the days immediately preceding the end of an annual session.

During the week of May 14-18, the House met for a total of four hours and two minutes while the Senate met for a total of four hours and four minutes.

Mon. May 14	House 1:04 p.m. to 1:25 p.m. Senate 11:16 a.m. to 11:26 a.m.
Tues. May 15	No House session No Senate session

A final farewell to Tony's Barber Shop

After Anthony J. "Tony the Barber" Matarazzo passed away earlier this month, the decision was made to close the shop for good. Tony's longtime partner Phil Vozella, who will be retiring now, and his family organized a small celebration last week as a tribute to Tony and the shop for all the years he was there as a barber.

Cardamom Meringue Cookies

Last week I made homemade ice cream. Since it only called for egg yolks I had a bunch of egg whites left over. Not wanting to waste all those egg whites, I thought I could make an egg white omelette but what fun is that when I could make a bunch of cookies! This recipe will produce about 120 cookies, enough to share with your neighbors. If you don't want to make that many, this recipe can be halved. See below note for storing leftover egg whites. mixing bowl, add the egg whites and let sit at room temperature for 30 minutes. Line 3, 1/2 sheet pans with parchment paper. Place the mixing bowl with the egg whites on the stand mixer. Add the vanilla, salt, cream of tartar, and cardamom to the egg whites and beat on medium speed until the egg mixture is frothy. Start adding the sugar, about 1/8 of a cup at a time, and begin to beat on high speed. Once all the sugar is added, keep beating on high speed until the sugar has dissolved and until the whites are stiff and glossy, about 7-8 minutes. Transfer the meringue to a pastry bag with a large star tip. If you don't have a pastry bag and a tip, either use a large ziplock bag and cut the corner of the bag to pipe out the meringue onto the cookie sheets or use a teaspoon to place the meringue onto the sheets. Place about 40 cookies on each sheet pan 5 across and 8 down the length of the sheet pans. Bake for 40 minutes, DO NOT OPEN the oven doors. Shut the oven off and keep the door closed for an hour prior to removing the cookies. Once the hour is up, remove the pans and let the cookies cool at room temperature for about 2 hours.

Place the cookies in an airtight container or in this case, multiple containers and store in a cool, dry place. These cookies will hold for a few weeks.

If you have leftover egg whites that you are not able to use within 3 days, the extra whites can be stored in the freezer for up to 3 months.

Local foundation aims to help 'Just One' person struggling with addiction

By Emily Blackwood

Ryan Harrington was a great kid. Though he played sports, had a lot of friends and knew how to make you laugh, he was probably best known for his kind heart and generous spirit.

One time, his father Dave Harrington recalled, Ryan's family bought a few new mattresses for the kids. Soon after they arrived, a neighbor called Dave and said that one of those mattresses was currently heading down the street.

Ryan had recently met a mother and her baby, and she told him they had been sleeping on the floor of an apartment.

"He brought that mattress to her house so she'd have somewhere to sleep other than the floor," Dave said. "He was that type of kid."

When Ryan was around 16-years-old, he went to a school dance and took OxyContin. His one-time use quickly became a habit, and soon Ryan dropped out of high school and was addicted to heroin.

"He was in and out numerous halfway houses, detox centers," Dave said. "He had some really good times in recovery and other times he wasn't good at all."

Ryan battled his addiction for 12 years and died from a heroin overdose when he was just 26. Because of his spirit of giving that manifested itself even in his lowest points, Dave and Cathy Harrington knew they wanted to give back.

If they could help just one person struggling the way their son had struggled, then it would be worth it.

A year after Ryan's death, they started The Ryan Harrington Foundation, a Somerville-based 501c3 that strengthens the community through financial support of youth organizations, charity drives and material support for young men and women struggling to fight addiction.

"It broke our hearts, his passing, but he'd be happy because we've helped a few of his friends and people who were in similar situations," Dave said. "Our inspiration is from Ryan."

The Ryan Harrington Foundation will host its third-annual Just One Run 5K in memory of Anthony Giurleo, a young man from Medford who died from addiction in 2015. The run will begin at 10 a.m., June 3 at the Blessing of the Bay Boat House,

Emphasizing the 'Memorial' in Memorial Day

By Joseph A. Curtatone

For many people, Memorial Day marks the unofficial beginning of summer. What I fear often gets lost is the true meaning of the holiday - that Memorial Day is for just that: memorializing the men and women who made the ultimate sacrifice for our freedom. We must not forget that it's a sacred day of remembrance. In Somerville, we honor all members of our Armed Forces during Memorial Week and through a number of ceremonies that memorialize our fallen heroes and celebrate our Veterans.

This year as we approach Memorial Day, I hope you have the opportunity to spend time with family and friends. But I also ask that you take time to pause and think about those families mourning the loss of a loved one who gave their own life fighting for ours.

Each Memorial Day, flags are displayed at the graves of the men and women who made that sacrifice for our freedom. Gold Star families honor their lost loved ones and commemorative ceremonies are held around the country. The stories, losses, and bravery of our heroes provide the freedoms and safety Americans enjoy every day. Many of those heroes are from right here in Somerville.

In fact, this past weekend we honored some of them at the Heroes Salute ceremony. Among those recognized were this year's Heroes Square dedications in memory of PFC Alfred J. Byrne (WWII/ Killed in Service), PFC James V. Parziale (Korea/Killed In Action), and SP4 Robert J. Waters, a Purple Heart recipient for injuries sustained

"... it is a special day – a day where people from around the country can pause, reflect,honor, and remember our service members' sacrifices" in battle during the Vietnam conflict. We also honored gormer Somerville Alderman and Director of Veterans' Services, 1Lt Walter Pero for a lifetime of service to the City, the Commonwealth and the Nation.

We also awarded the Profile in Courage Lifetime Achievement Award to Medal of Honor Recipient Captain Thomas G. Kelley of the United States Navy. Captain Kelley continued to serve his fellow Veterans as Secretary of Veterans' Services for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Each year the Profile in Courage is presented to a Veteran who has distinguished themselves above and beyond the call of duty as a member of the armed forces and returned home to continue the mission of service, and we are proud to have honored Captain Kelley this year for all of his incredible service to our city and our country.

Somerville residents have answered the call of duty and service time and time again. We should all be incredibly proud of our heroes and eternally grateful for what they've given up for us, just as we should be proud and grateful to be a part of a community that honors, respects, and serves the men and women who protect our country, fight for our liberties, and fight for the freedom of others.

While the spirit of Memorial Day shouldn't be reserved for just one day of the year, it is a special day – a day where people from around the country can pause, reflect, honor, and remember our service members' sacrifices. Whether it's a silent moment of reflection, visiting a memorial wall, or simply thanking a Veteran for his or her service, I hope you'll join me this year in emphasizing the 'memorial' in Memorial Day.

All are invited to attend the 2018 Honor and Remembrance Ceremony, which will be held on Wednesday, May 23, at 6:30 p.m. at the Veterans' Memorial Cemetery. During the ceremony, the names of the 69 heroes buried in the cemetery are called and a flag is placed by each grave.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Illustrated by Jim Clark

The summer season is right around the corner, Somerville.

Our View Of The Times

Despite the touch-and-go weather in recent weeks, we are clearly running headlong into the bright, sunny days of summer after Memorial Day weekend.

What is more delicious to the young mind than that savory and unrivaled treat, summer vacation? A well-deserved reward for all the hard work and irreplaceable time invested in the previous school year.

As adults, we can look back fondly on tradition of Paul Revere's ride up Broadway using the excuse IT WAS GOING TO BE WET! It's a good thing Paul didn't cancel the original ride BECAUSE OF the weather! FYI: It's the first time anyone we talked to ever remembered the ride getting canceled. The city didn't schedule another date! Then the Memorial Day Parade got scheduled for the Sunday before the actual date. Then, this past Saturday night, the city announced on the night before that the PARADE WAS BEING CANCELED. Never mind doing it on the actual holiday weekend. Nope, guess we're not going to have a parade this year. Now, how many want to bet that the July 4th city fireworks, which are not even being done on July 4th, will be canceled. What will be the excuse? Maybe it's too hot? You fill in the blanks! What is going on? Have we really become a "cupcake administration"? All this is happening under the newly elected Board of Aldermen since they took office on January 1. Do you think there is a correlati on?

those golden days with a warm sense of nostalgia and a longing to return to the carefree days that linger now only in our memories. And yet, we can live those times again vicariously as we engage with the present younger generation that will be making its own special memories.

Parents need to take as much time as they can to help make the summer break special and meaningful for their kids. Planning and taking a family vacation, even a simple weekend camping trip, can forge stronger bonds and create everlasting memories that could never be bought or traded with gadgets, games, or videos. Community activities such as the upcoming SomerStreets events are valuable, too, in making vacation time a rich and rewarding experience for all.

Likewise, we should encourage our youngsters to seek out those activities, on their own, that keep them engaged and active. Whether it is sports, arts activities, taking up a new hobby, or any number of other options that kids are able to enjoy. They should be made aware of how precious this time is and urged to make the most of it.

It may be nearly impossible to convince them of how important this is, but it is still our duty to try to do so nonetheless. They will, without question, thank us for it in the years to come.

also a member of Our Revolution? No, we're not talking about Alderman At-Large Bill White this time.

Happy birthday this week to several locals: Happy birthday to Feargal O'Toole, a well-known political pundit and a really nice and straightforward man. We hope he has a great birthday with his family. Happy birthday to another lifelong resident and popular guy, Vinny Vicente of Goode Gas. Who doesn't know Vinny? May he have a great birthday as well. Some of us here at Newstalk grew up with him in East Somerville. Happy birthday to Brian Roche, a fantastic chef with creative talents. We hope he has a great birthday as well with his family and many friends. Happy birthday to our good friend and realtor in Andover, Joanna Webster. A great lady. If you're looking to buy, she knows Andover better than anyone. To all the others we may have missed - and yes, we must admit there are a few more out there - we sincerely wish them the very best of birthdays.

Demets Donuts in Medford is getting very busy, but those donuts and the large variety are like the old Day's Donuts, huge and tasty. Almost a sin facing you when you come in for just coffee. It's hard to not get that jelly or lemon, not to mention the coconut donuts. The Somerville Times is available every Wednesday at the donut shop. Stop in, get a coffee and few of those delicious donuts, or maybe the real – and we mean real – egg sandwiches, from real eggs.

dime and, trust us, you will find some pretty hysterical information there about what's happening in the city. If you feel like you don't know what's going on and how this Board of Aldermen is spending your money, this should be required viewing for everyone here in Somerville. Even the committee meetings are online. Educate yourself. After all, the Board of Aldermen are voting out of your pockets. With rumors flying all over the city about Mayor Joe Curtatone not running for re-election, we hear names like popular Alderman At-Large Bill White, Ward 6 Alderman Lance Davis and, Ward 5 Alderman Mark Niedergang, and Matt McLaughlin of Ward 1. It could be interesting just with those four. It will be exciting for the city if this.

War II, the Korean War, and the Vietnam War. Francis Ganat was the first Korean War Veteran to be inducted into the "Korean War Veteran" Hall of Fame. Thomas Kelley, a retired Navy captain who had received the Medal of Honor during the Vietnam War, was granted the "Profile in Courage" Lifetime Achievement Award. Each honoree was introduced through a video celebrating their lives and services, told from the perspectives of their loved ones. Family members told stories of the heroes' experiences growing up in Somerville, while reflecting on their compassion, humor, and kindness. The ceremony also presented musical interludes performed by The Apollo Club, who sang "The Armed Services Medley" and "America the Beautiful." The Salute, which was held on Armed Forces Day, was coordinated by Mayor Joseph Curtatone and the Somerville Veterans' Commission on Monuments, Memorials, and Dedications. The event confirmed that the contributions of Somerville's war heroes will be held in memory, by honoring what they stood for.

Somerville High Scholarship Foundation Annual Drawing

By Donald Norton

The Somerville High Scholarship Foundation had its annual $10K drawing this past Friday night at the High School Highlander Café. Former Mayor Eugene Brune started calling out the numbers around 8:00 p.m.

A smaller number of participants was in attendance, but the dedicated ones were present in hopes of winning. 201 tickets were sold at $100 each, and several present won door prizes.

The last ten tickets were left standing to decide whether to split the prize of $1K each, but only three of them were present. The final three chose to proceed to see if any of them would end up winning, but it came down to a final 5 names, which was decided by the one finalist to end and split, so they all got $2K each.

The foundation began in Somerville to help students with scholarships in the late 80's and early 90's, but over the years the Foundation has raised over one million dollars and has awarded thousands every year to deserving students.

If you would like to donate or ask how you can help, you are welcome to write to SHS Foundation c/o Joseph Favaloro at PO Box 440275, Somerville MA 02144.

Special Friends of SHC

These six Friends of the Somerville Homeless Coalition baked cookies and pies and made lemonade for PorchFest and raised $364.95 that they donated to SHC. That's almost $150 more than they raised last year (and we were amazed then too). Many thanks to (L to R) Millie Gates, Maddy Zucca, Buster Gates, Violet Gates, Avery Zucca, and Juliette Zucca. SHC always says they can't do their work without the community's support. You made their day, friends!

Applications open for Spiritual Caregiver training

By Nathan Lamb

The Spiritual Caregiver program at Somerville-Cambridge Elder Services (SCES) is seeking caring volunteers to offer support for older adults facing grief, loneliness, and other spiritual challenges in a two-year volunteer experience.

"We really need people who have a desire to serve others and whose spiritual beliefs and practices have helped them endure difficult challenges of life," said Program Coordinator Loretta Saint-Louis. "It's a unique opportunity to grow spiritually, through the initial training, which is challenging, through experiences with the clients, and through our continuing education and supervision as a team."

Spiritual Caregiver is an interfaith program that primarily serves homebound elders and disabled people who are not connected with any faith community. Trained volunteers meet with clients weekly for one-to-one conversation, offering compassionate support. The program draws volunteers from a wide range of spiritual orientations, including people who are spiritual, but not religious. Volunteers are nonjudgmental, refrain from proselytizing, and are open to people whose spiritualist is different from their own.

"We have been fortunate to attract a great group of volunteers for this program, but we can always use more help," said Saint-Louis. "One area we would like to see some growth is with male and Spanish speaking volunteers – that is a real need for our program right now."

Spiritual Caregiver Volunteers begin the program with a 50-hour training, which takes place over four to five months. The training helps to build caregiving skills and the knowledge base for the particular challenges the clients face.

Once trained, Saint-Louis matches volunteers with people seeking support for weekly home visits. Bimonthly meetings of the volunteer group at the Somerville-Cambridge Elder Services office provide ongoing support and continuing education. Because of the strong investment in training, volunteers are required to make a two-year commitment to the program.

thing we wanted as a result of our submissions, though, was to make people think," Jones concluded.

The SAC is passionate about working with organizations within the community to highlight social unification on multiple platforms, aiming to help people understand the overall make-up of Somerville, as in who is here and what's going on. "Somerville is a place that encourages its community members to grow because when it comes to creativity and the arts, there isn't a lot of red tape. It has become a place that is safe to try out new ideas that may be risky or unconventional, and in our eyes, progressive is good," Eicher said in reference to Somerville's efforts to bring fellowship to the community through creativity.

In conjunction with events like the Film Festival, Somerville has a festival part of the Arts Union Series, where local groups come to events to share resources, agency and non-profit information, and open a dialogue about how to help become a stronger community. You can view more of their events on their website at https://www.somervilleartscouncil.org.

OFF THE SHELF by Doug Holder

Interview with Neil Silberblatt: Founder of Voices of Poetry

In spite of suffering from cancer and all that entails, poet Neil Silberblatt fights on and presents poets, readings and other events through his organization Voices of Poetry. This one-man dynamo has become a major player in the poetry scene on the Cape, Connecticut, Somerville and the region. Silberblatt was born and grew up in New York City, lived for a (long) time in Connecticut, and is now a "wash ashore" on Cape Cod. He has been writing poetry since his college days. His poems have appeared in several print and online literary journals including Verse Wisconsin, Hennen's Observer, Naugatuck River Review, Chantarelle's Notebook, Oddball Magazine, and The Good Men Project. His work has also been included in Confluencia in the Valley: The First Five Years of Converging with Words (Naugatuck Valley Community College, 2013), an anthology of selected poetry and prose, and in University of Connecticut's Teacher-Writer magazine. He has published two poetry collections, So Far, So Good (2012), and Present Tense (2013). He has been nominated for a Pushcart Prize, and one of his poems, Recycling Instructions, received Honorable Mention juices in a way that I hadn't experienced before. In college I took a lot of English courses with some top notch poets. I continue to hone the craft. It is a craft that you have to work at. I read and write as much as I can.

DH: You are from New York City. What made you relocate to the Cape?

NS: I was friends with somebody and the opportunity came up to move, so I came to the Cape to write and expand my life. I got to know the late poet Joe Gouveia. He was a poet and a force of nature. He hosted the Poet's Corner on the radio station WOMR in Provincetown. Gouveia was sick with cancer and he asked if I could keep the mic warm for him while he recovered. He passed and I inherited the show. The podcasts for the show are archived at http://womr.org. I personally have interviewed a lot of the poets from the Fine Arts Center here in P-Town, like Mark Statman, Jennifer Franklin, Michael Klein and many others.

DH: Tell me a bit about your organization Voices of Poetry.

NS: There are two components of Voices of Poetry. One part is the events that I organize. Basi-

The Vietnam/American War

I don't know It was a dark blot History A tree half Chopped off at the knee Some left leg Buffalo Cruising the paddies The most Zen Advantage Comes out of all war Billions dropped The kill-count Depersonalized The horrors Pleasure dome Ho Chi Minh City Was Saigon Pretty girls From the countryside Spreading them Cholera Offed many thousands Commerce rained Boys drafted Most of them poor kids No one cared Degraded Each government's role

Took its toll

Not sacred Women and children Blown to bits

The cradle Civilization Hell on Earth

Who was who No one seemed to know Confusion

When in doubt Kill whatever moves And they did

Enemy Name for another Did the same

O – Mercy Looked the other way Call it sleep

To have your work considered for the Lyrical send it to: Doug Holder, 25 School St.; Somerville, MA 02143. dougholder@post.harvard.edu in the 2nd Annual OuterMost Poetry Contest judged by Marge Piercy.

Doug Holder: Neil, how did you originally come to poetry?

Neil Silberblatt: I came to it in two ways. One was genetically and the other academic. I have two older brothers, I am one of three boys. My brothers had the good fortune to have two great poetry teachers, Robert Lowell at Harvard and Kenneth Koch at Columbia. They would bring home these poetry books during the spring and summer, put them on the shelf, and I read them. I was especially inspired to read them after I was told the books were over my head. Then in high school I had the incredible good luck of having a great English teacher, Frank McCourt, at Stuyvesant High School in New York City. He was a very demanding teacher. He expected you to justify your presence in class. If you used your Monarch Notes or the like, he would read you the riot act. Because of this he made us think. This stirred my creative cally I am the organization. I go out and find poets and their work and invite them to read. I get folks from the Cape, Connecticut, N.Y., and the region. I have developed a network of connections. I love the art of poetry. I want people to hear poets who really deserve an audience.

DH: How is it funded?

NS: Sometimes hosting libraries have funds, there are some voluntary donations at readings, etc.

DH: How did the Voices of Poetry Facebook page develop?

NS: It started out as a community bulletin board for people to reference then it just evolved. DH: You have been waging a courageous battle with cancer. Has poetry acted as a balm of sorts? NS: My involvement with poetry predated my diagnosis. But having Stage 4 Colon Cancer has made me get as much out of the time I have left. I plan to go down fighting. I will not go gently into the night.
