Response to: Socialists in office denounce violent suppression of student protesters at universities

Daniel M Kimmel says:

Glad to hear you are "firmly opposed to antisemitism" because it was hard to tell with the false accusations of "genocide" and "apartheid" hurled at Israel, neither of which is true. You know who committed genocide and is publicly committed to continuing it? Hamas. Yet these brave souls do not condemn Hamas or even mention them, do not demand the release of the hostages (going on six months now), and don't seem to feel the need to speak out against other atrocities, like Russia's genocidal campaign against Ukraine.

The other word missing here is one that applies to this entire statement: hypocrisy.

Response to: Davis Sq. merchants get double dose of distressing news

Sean Cryts says:

I have lived in Somerville for over twenty years and I am frequently disappointed in what I see is unfortunately not a public process. The City of Somerville claims that it is taking a "data driven approach" but I think that there is data that the city commonly collects is from only the population that they see will put forth their agenda. I love Somerville and as a military veteran & proud resident I am disappointed in the city elected officials as what I see as not a democratic process that goes on with changes to our city. We should go back to the days of meeting at city hall in person for these proposals. I have spoken with many long time residents and if you don't have a social media account you don't or can't participate. Where are the mailers to residences. Sadly I think the city has a PR & team of strategists to by design keep certain people out of the democratic process.

A relative of mine was killed on a bicycle last week. With more and more bikes on the road, I asked my Somerville friends what could be done to make biking safer. Comments are in quotes.

"It's up to the rider. I don't wanna to hear anybody who wears earbuds while riding complaining about safety."

"I know this would be hard but start issuing tickets. My 90 year old active mom almost got hit by a bicyclist in Davis Square last week. This was not the first time." "We used to ride against the traffic, so we seen them open a door or turn a corner, the problem is there all racing fast, not paying attention."

"By adding 'how to drive safely near bicyclists' and 'how to bike safely near moving vehicles' to driver's ed?"

"Not by putting them in the bus lane and they should abide by the laws just like everyone else pay bike tax too."

"Drivers need to slow down and pay attention to what's happening on the road. Bicyclists need to pay even more attention."

The death of Uncle Donald was a horrible shock to our family. He was 76 years old and a loving father and grandfather. Let's all be more vigilant about traffic safety.

Free Bike Check Up Clinic at Union Square Station Plaza

Calling all riders! To celebrate National Bike to Work Week, USQ and Prospect Union Square have teamed up with Landry's Bicycles to offer a free Bike Check Up Clinic at Union Square Station Plaza.

Open to the public on a first come first serve basis and at no cost, each 15-minute Bike Check Up consists of an overall safety check of the bike, an inspection of the "ABCs", Air (Inflation of tires), Brakes (Ensure the front and rear brake function safely), and Chain (lubricate and ensure the chain moves freely).

Time permitting, the team will then focus on adjusting a major system on the bike, such as adjusting the gear shifting to work better or fine tuning the brakes. The team will also be on hand and available to answer any bicycle-related questions while working. A great way to kick off the season of biking.

review progress made to date and present an overview of the work planned for this upcoming spring and summer. Featured updates include a review of recent sewer/ drainage utility upgrades along Summer Street between School Street and Bow Street and a look ahead to streetscape improvements beginning later this spring on Central Street. Following the presentation, residents will have the opportunity to ask questions about the project and construction process.

Somerville's Spring Hill neighborhood is currently served by a combined sewer system, which collects both wastewater and stormwater runoff in the same pipes. Through the Sewer Separation project, the City is working to upgrade these systems by installing new storm drains that separate stormwater from the existing combined sewer.

In addition to the underground utility improvements, this project will also install street safety improvements and green infrastructure throughout the neighborhood. Green infrastructure includes trees as well as drainage features designed to mimic natural processes such as irrigated planting areas, bioretention basins with select soils and plants that catch and filter stormwater.

This project is one in a series of actions the City is undertaking to reduce water pollution, address flooding, and modernize Somerville's infrastructure. Construction began in 2022 and is expected to continue through 2025. Highland Avenue Interim Paving

Following completion of utility work on Highland Avenue, the City will be paving the two travel lanes of the roadway (approximately 28-feet wide). This partial paving, which does not include the parking areas next to the curbs, is intended to restore the road surface travel areas. This is an interim measure to support safe travel for all users of the road until the full redesign and reconstruction of Highland Avenue. Paving is on schedule to occur in early summer of 2024. This interim paving is expected to extend from roughly McGrath Highway to Benton Road.

destination is exciting to celebrate," said Jessica Eshleman, executive director of Union Square Main Streets, the nonprofit that produces the market.

"This tradition is the fruit of so many people coming together to perpetuate an inclusive, healthy oasis in the densest city in New England. Kudos to businesses who share the plaza; sponsors, the City of Somerville, and individual donors who help make the market and its SNAP match possible; and neighbors who make the Square the place to be on Saturdays. They are the superstars behind two decades of sustaining open-air access to locally grown and produced healthy food - and vital community connections."

Thousands of shoppers including award-winning chefs, local business leaders, and neighbors near and far make the Union Square Farmers Market a delectable destination each Saturday during the season. Returning for a 20th year, 50+ local farms and food producers welcome shoppers with open arms, outstanding goods, cooking tips, and recipe suggestions, creating a culinary community where all are welcome.

SNAP (Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program) shoppers are valued customers at Union Square Farmers Market. The market is proud to continue to serve a critical role in Somerville's food security system by offering a dollar-for-dollar SNAP match up to $15 per market. While providing SNAP customers with a match has been a priority for the market since it opened in 2005, it is thanks to a partnership with the City of Somerville and the Somerville Farmers Market Coalition (in collaboration with Mass Farmers Markets, Somerville Winter Farmers Market, and Somerville Mobile Farmers Market) and customers investing in their neighborhood through the annual Good Food For All campaign that has sustained this important community resource year after year.

Union Square Farmers Market proudly boasts that businesses as local as Somerville itself round out the vendor roster. With businesses such as Somerville Arts Council's Nibble Kitchen, Chappy's Pickles, Deano's Pasta, and Tex Mex Eats, customers can eat easily knowing their dollars will directly benefit Somerville's local economy.

While at the market, customers will be right at the doorsteps of some of the most historic, diverse, and popular businesses in Somerville and the Greater Boston Area. Customers are encouraged to grab a friend, family member, or pet to make each Saturday a "Shop the Square Saturday," and visit local businesses before or after they stop in. These elements in particular resonate with the 2024 Union Square Farmers Market Season Sponsor, Boynton–Yards, a DLJ and Leg-gat McCall Project.

The Union Square Farmers Market is made possible for a fifth year thanks to generous support from its 2024 Season Sponsor Boynton Yards, a project of DLJ Real Estate Capital Partners and Leggat McCall Properties; the City of Somerville; and donors who contribute to help make the SNAP Match possible.

"Boynton Yards is pleased again to be USMS's social impact partner in bringing healthy produce and social opportunities to the Somerville community," said John Fenton, managing partner of DLJ Real Estate Capital Partners, on behalf of the Boynton Yards development team.

"There is no substitute for the grassroots collaboration that USMS has demonstrated with the Farmers Market and other neighborhood events, and we look forward to supporting their remarkable efforts again this year."

A wonderful summer memory with our 1980 Super Stars 'The Sunsetters'

By Mayor Emeritus Eugene C. Brune

With summer coming, I feel like this is a suitable time to talk about one of my favorite programs and that is the Sunsetters. Our summer program was always one of the hits of the city, thanks to two exceptionally talented guys, Kenny Lonergan, and sad to say now deceased David Testa in running the program. Others. Included, from my office, was Grace Abruzzio to oversee all details with the assistance from Donna Wade, Maureen (Fennessey Bernis, Frank Dillworth, and Paul Di-Pasquale.

Many of our kids. started out in middle school. and continued throughout high school. Some

I do remember were Jill. Don-and Mary Beth Mangan, Lisa

and Linda Thompson. Pam Di-

Mahoney, Stephine Leonard,

Charline Tierney and so many others that I wish I could remember. Over thirty-five volunteered every summer. During the seventies and eighties Howie Carr was giving Somerville a lot of whacks on the radio, so David Testa decided to write a song just for Howie and the title was called.

"Who do you think you are Howie Carr." It became a great hit at every show, and we also had a fake Boston Herald Newspaper printed with the saying "Who do you think you are Howie Carr" on the front page. I also remember Arthur Mahoney singing the song at every show and he was great. It was even better when we invited Howie to Somerville to watch the Sunsetters and listen to the song. Surprisingly not only did he come, but he also brought his then young daughter. While the Sunsetters was singing his song, his daughter jumped out of her seat and joined the group and whey they sang the words "Who do you think you are Howie Carr

Word got round as to just how good our Sunsetters were, and we were pleased and surprised that then Boston Mavor Kevin White's office called, asking me if I would bring our kids to Boston and have them put on a noon time show on the Boston City Hall concourse. When we told the kids about the invite, they were so excited as well as I was. The kids did a wonderful job. and they received a great ovation from many of the people in the audience with many of them being from all over the state and country.

That afternoon, I received another call from Mayor White's office. They wanted to tell me that they received so many great calls from the people who watched the show that the mayor would like to invite the kids back to now perform at Faneuil Hall Market. Once again, they pleased the crowd and received so many compliments.

Later during the week. I received the call from the then Governor Dukakis. Asking me to bring the kids to the statehouse to perform. A large crowd was on hand and all including the governor really enjoyed the show, especially the Howie song.

I want to thank the more than 250 plus Sunsetters, the staff as well as our stagehands, volunteers, supporters, and parents that were a part of our program during my ten years as mayor. You all brought so much joy to the neighborhoods, nursing homes, elderly centers, and to all for whom you perform. I also miss the pizza, and soda parties in my, and other backyards after a performance as well as all the great memories that are hard to forget.

I want to particularly thank

Kenny Lonergan and the late David Testa. They both had so much talent. I also allowed them to perform the then major hit musical Jesus Christ Superstar. It was such a great hit that we extended the show for three weeks. Some nights we had crowds of over two hundred people, many from neighboring towns, all sitting outdoors at the city hall concourse. Again, I am pleased that other mayors have continued with the Sunsetters program with the talented Jimmy Del Ponte, who always does a fantastic job. Also, if you investigated our city's history past and present you would learn of all the great and wonderful talent that we had, and all a part of the wonderful "Spirit of Somerville."

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators' and representatives' votes on roll calls from recent sessions during the week of April 22-26. There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week.

TAX CREDITS FOR CONSERVATION LAND (H 4600)

House 154-0, approved a budget amendment that would expand the existing Conservation Land Tax Credit (CLTC) by raising the annual cap for this program from $2 million to $5 million over a three-year period, beginning on January 1, 2026.

The increase would remain in place until December 31, 2034. This state tax credit provides an incentive for land with significant conservation value to be donated to public and private conservation agencies. The tax credit is equal to 50 percent of the fair market value of the donated property, up to a maximum credit of $75,000.

Supporters said that raising the cap will help the state address the growing demand for participating in the program, which currently has a waiting list of more than two years.

"The CLTC program plays a critical role in conserving land and creating more accessible and open public space," said amendment sponsor House Republican Minority Leader Rep. Brad Jones (R-North Reading). "To date, the program has helped Massachusetts conserve 15,505 acres of land across 154 municipalities, and in 2023 alone helped protect 558 acres of land. Raising the annual cap will allow for increased participation in the program and promote the conservation of critical natural resources in the state."

(A "Yes" vote is for the amendment.)

Rep. Christine Barber	Yes
Rep. Mike Connolly	Yes
Rep. Erika Uyterhoeven	Yes

PRIORITIZE 12-MONTH RESIDENTS (H 4600)

House 27-131, rejected an amendment that would give priority consideration for inclusion in the emergency housing assistance program, when space becomes available, to residents who have resided in the state for a minimum of 12 consecutive months and are on the waitlist for the program.

"With a growing number of people on the waitlist for emergency housing assistance, we need to set clear priorities to better manage the demand and eliminate the waitlist," said House GOP Minority leader Rep. Brad Jones (R-North Reading). "When doing so, it's only fair that longtime residents of the commonwealth in need of services should take precedence over someone who has just arrived here from out of state."

Amendment opponents said the amendment might be unconstitutional. They also noted that people from around the world who are the victims of rape, violence and oppression are coming to Massachusetts and the state should not impose residency requirements on these suffering migrants.

"I would also just like to underscore ... that no families – whether they are longtime Massachusetts residents or families that are new to the state – are being put out on the street," said Rep. Alice Peisch (D-Wellesley) who opposed the amendment. "We do have these overflow shelters. I don't want anyone to be operating under the assumption that we have Massachusetts residents who are being left out on the street, so once again, I ask you please ... to reject the residency requirement."

(A "Yes" vote is for the amendment giving priority to 12-month residents. A "No" vote is against the amendment.)

Rep. Christine Barber	No
Rep. Mike Connolly	No
Rep. Erika Uyterhoeven	No

ELECTRIC SUPPLIERS (S 2738)

Senate 34-4, approved and sent to the House a bill that would bar electric suppliers from enrolling new individual residential customers in contracts, beginning on January 1, 2025.

Supporters said the measure would protect residents from unfair and deceptive practices in the competitive electric supply market. They noted that according to the Attorney General's Office and the Department of Public Utilities, data analysis shows that consumers lost more than $577 million to competitive electric suppliers between July 2015 and June 2023.

They added that low-income residents and residents of color are disproportionately affected by the industry by being more likely to sign up, and subsequently being charged higher rates.

"Each year, the broken and predatory residential competitive electric supply industry harms consumers across Massachusetts – particularly in low-income communities and communities of color and fails in its promise to consistently provide consumer savings," said Attorney General Andrea Campbell a sponsor of the original version of the bill. "I now urge the House to take up and pass this legislation so that Massachusetts residents are protected from this deceptive and harmful industry."

"The market would benefit from total reform, not elimination of newer energy suppliers/brokers," said Sen. Patrick O'Connor (R-Weymouth) who opposed the bill. "A competitive market is healthy for the economy and by implementing strategy that would hold these energy suppliers accountable, it would be beneficial to all parties involved."

(A "Yes" vote is for the bill. A "No" vote is against it.)

HOW LONG WAS LAST WEEK'S SESSION?

Beacon Hill Roll Call tracks the length of time that the House and Senate were in session each week. Many legislators say that legislative sessions are only one aspect of the Legislature's job and that a lot of important work is done outside of the House and Senate chambers. They note that their jobs also involve committee work, research, constituent work and other matters that are important to their districts. Critics say that the Legislature does not meet regularly or long enough to debate and vote in public view on the thousands of pieces of legislation that have been filed. They note that the infrequency and brief length of sessions are misguided and lead to irresponsible late-night sessions and a mad rush to act on dozens of bills in the days immediately preceding the end of an annual session.

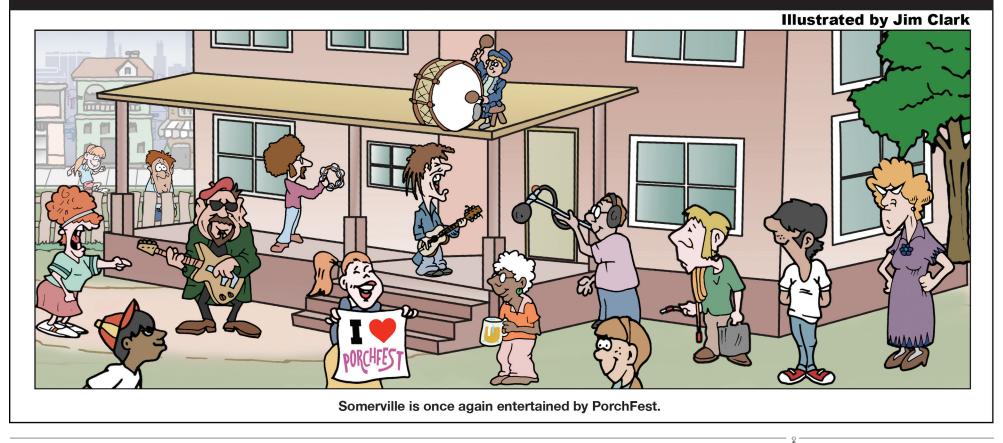

During the week of April 29-May 3, the House met for a total of 24 minutes and the Senate met for a total of 17 minutes.

Mon. April 29	House 11:01 a.m. to 11:12 a.m. Senate 11:08 a.m. to 11:12 a.m.

This year's installment of PorchFest will be hitting the city this coming weekend. Those who have, in the past, taken notice of the event - and it is an event that is rather difficult not to notice – usually have fairly strong opinions of approval or distaste for the goings on.

For the uninitiated, PorchFest invites local musicians to give something of an informal concert outside their homes, either

OBITUARY

William L. Conrad

William L. Conrad, 85, a life-long Somerville resident, passed away on April 23, surrounded by his many friends. Born on October 17, 1938, Bill was the son of Leo A. Conrad and Mildred H. Conrad, and brother of the late Robert Conrad. He graduated from Somerville High School in 1957, served in the Army Medical Corps in Verdun, France from 1959-1961, and lived in San Francisco and Denver. He traveled throughout Europe and spent considerable time in Canada with his relatives. However, Union Square was his home where he was affectionately known as "Mister Mayor." Passionate about music, Bill worked as a manager at Orpheus, the music shop near the Berklee School. He was part of the Boston's club scene in the 1960s-1990s, introducing classical music to Sporter's, the club for which he made a historical video in 1982. He supported various musicians, producing a CD for the Boston-based singer Donald Wilkinson, and most recently created a collection of vocal music. A lover of opera, and of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Bill also had the uncanny ability to identify and assess just about any vocalist, or for that matter, any actor, you could name.

Although the phrase "to know him is to love him" is hackneyed and often an exaggeration, in Bill's case, it is true. Throughout his life, his interest in the people around him, his skills as a story teller, his receptivity to new ideas, his grounding as a listener and confidant, and his wicked humor made him a much beloved and trusted friend. To so many younger friends, he was "Papa" and "Uncle Bill." His neighbors will remember him in part through the endless Rose-of-Sharon bushes and other lovely flowering plants he installed, with or without our permission, in our yards. Those of us lucky to have known him will carry his voice in our heads and his moral compass in our hearts. In lieu of flowers, please contribute to The History Project, 565 Boylston St, Boston, MA 02116. To send online condolences, please visit www.vertucciosmithvazza.com. Boston Bruins and Bosch reimagine hockey sticks into incredible creations for the skilled trades

Students at Somerville High School had the opportunity to recreate donated Bruins hockey sticks into an Adirondack chair, toolbox and table using donated power tools from Bosch. The projects feature autographs from key players like Hampus Lindholm, Pavel Zacha, Charlie McAvoy and Jeremy Swayman.

This activation continued Bosch's effort to champion the future generation of skilled trades workers.

On May 1, Bosch and The Boston Bruins Foundation auctioned the creations during the play-off game, raising $6.3K to benefit the school's program, which will further support students' development and education.

Not Your Average Chicken Salad

Once you read the first ingredient listed, you may be thinking, is she seriously using canned chicken? Yes, yes I am. The only thing I regret is not using it sooner. The meat is lean and very tender. And not only that, it's a quick meal prep. The flavors and textures of this savory, sweet, and crunchy chicken salad are exactly what you're looking for in a great sandwich.

 1 – 12oz Can of Lean Meat Chicken (drained) yield approximately 7oz.
 1 Cup of Grapes Halved (red or green)
 1 Celery Stalk Thinly Sliced
 2 Tablespoons Finely Minced Red Onion 2 Tablespoons Plain Greek Yogurt

Tablespoon Mayonnaise
 Tablespoons Chopped Tarragon

(dried is fine) 2 Tablespoons Finely Chopped Fresh

Parsley 1/4 Cup Chopped Candied Pecans or Slivered Almonds

Salt and Pepper to Taste

Add the yogurt and mayonnaise to a mixing bowl mix until well blended. Add the remaining ingredients and toss until well coated. Always taste and adjust seasoning. This will be enough for 3 sandwiches. Place a couple of Boston lettuce leaves to the bread of your choice and pile 1/3 of the chicken salad. I've also added a scoop to my regular mixed greens salad.

Somerville Rotary to honor St. Patrick Shelter for Women

Somerville Rotary is celebrating their 100th anniversary this year by honoring the Saint Patrick Shelter for Women in Union Square as a community service partner.

The shelter, managed by Nancy Kavanagh for the past 33 years, is a refuge providing temporary housing and support services for women experiencing homelessness or at risk of homelessness in our community. It offers a safe and nurturing environment where women can access resources such as shelter, meals, clothing, and case management assistance to help them stabilize their lives and transition to permanent housing.

The Somerville Rotary Club has long supported the shelter with volunteerism and grants. Sylvia Walker, Co-President of the Rotary said the Club chose the Shelter as one of its awardees because their service to the city makes it a better place and its mission of empowering women to rebuild their lives with dignity and respect is central to Rotary's values".

Congratulations to Nancy Kavanagh and St Patrick Shelter for Women.

Message from City Coucilor Strezo regarding water and sewer bill

Somerville,

I'm worried about how the water and sewer bills are affecting you, too. That's why I put forward a City Council order calling for a Public Hearing in the Equity Committee.

Please come to City Hall on Wednesday May 15th, 6:30pm, in the City Council Chambers.

There is also a virtual option on zoom.

You need to be heard. Your experiences need to be validated. We need to figure out how this will affect us all as a city.

Testify on your experiences. Share your thoughts. My hope is that we can tackle this together as a community. Here is the meeting information: Equity, Gender, Seniors, Families and Vulnerable Populations Committee - Committee of the Whole: https://us02web.zoom.us/webinar/register/ WN_HjYlNim_RG62H21wtDiyCA.

The Somerville Times MAY 8, 2024 15 Book review: 'The Given Day' by Dennis Lehane

By Dennis Fischman

Dennis Lehane is well known in the Boston area. A Dorchester native, he began his career with the well-written but more conventional mysteries featuring private detectives Patrick Kenzie and Angie Gennaro [1]. Then, he reached beyond the genre, still holding onto the dark vision of his original series.

Mystic River [2] was a psychological thriller and a literary journey into the secrets that tight-knit communities can hide. (Remarkably, the movie was just as good as the book!) Shutter Island [3] was a similarly taut horror story set in the 1950's.

The Given Day by Dennis Lehane. William Morrow, 2008, 704 pages. And then Lehane jumped back to 1919 for The Given Day [4] and wrote his masterpiece.

What was happening in Boston in 1919? In short: everything. There was the Great Molasses Flood [5], something that sounds like a joke until you read actual accounts of the disaster. There were police being deployed to put down striking workers, and then police going on strike themselves. Babe Ruth was still playing in Boston. Calvin Coolidge was still Governor of Massachusetts. Socialists and anarchists like Sacco and Vanzetti were making a serious bid at revolution in the U.S. All this while the nation was still reeling from the so-called Spanish Flu, which was no more Spanish than the coronavirus was Chinese.

In the midst of all this, you see young policeman and son of a police captain Danny Coughlin going undercover to sniff out plans for violence by the growing labor movement. Will he succeed, and if he does, will he really be able to turn on the people whose cause moves him more and more (including the woman he is obsessed with)?

Just as important, you see a young black man, Luther Laurence, on the run after a deadly confrontation with a crime boss in Tulsa (two years before the Tulsa Race Massacre [5] would destroy "Black Wall Street"). Luther works for the Coughlin family, and his point of view throws them into better perspective. It also allows us to learn of the early NAACP in Boston and what civil rights struggles looked like when Rosa Parks was just a girl, and a decade before Martin Luther King was even born.

I reread this book while Somerville and most of the country were still reeling from the coronavirus pandemic in Spring 2020. It was almost eerie to read the early sections of the book that dealt with the influenza of 1918-9. Our systems are better, but we are not. We still reel and totter in the direction of certain death – suffering it and dealing it out – and that is a major theme of this book.

On second reading, The Given Day is still a marvel, evoking the time and place like no other book I know. Lehane writes about Irish men, barely holding onto their claim to whiteness, unselfconsciously claiming as their own a city and a country that had grudgingly accepted them not that many years ago. He portrays Black men in a convincing way, too. Luther Laurence starts out less shallow than Danny Coughlin, and he ends up with a better life (though it takes an unexplained act of grace from a gangster to get him there).

Two things bothered me about this book. First, we never get the interior dialogue of any of the women. They are distinct people, and at moments I can feel for them, but I never really get to know them from their own point of view. (Tessa is especially opaque. Is it because she's Italian? Does Lehane have sympathies across the color line but not across the Irish-Italian divide?)

The other thing that bothers me is the lyrical quality of the scenes of violence in this book. It's not that the author romanticizes violence. Far from it. But he keeps coming back to it as if it were an unanswered question in his life. I'd rather be around men who can't imagine such things in such detail.

Opera on Tap Boston brings Flowers and Opera to Bow Market

Opera on Tap Boston and Simons Shoes present Flowers and Opera on Friday June 7, 6:00 - 9:00 p.m. at Bow Market in Somerville. Free and open to the public, Flowers and Opera is sponsored by the Somerville Arts Council and the Mass Cultural Council, and will feature live opera singers, free flowers from Nellie's Wildflowers, and a food drive.

The Flowers and Opera performance series emerged in partnership with Simons Shoes at the height of the pandemic as a way to safely bring music and community to neighborhoods during a time of isolation and uncertainty. It has since grown into an immersive community-focused event that includes a collection of charitable donations for local food pantries. The concert is set against a backdrop of flowers which are passed out to attendees at the concert's conclusion.

Opera on Tap Boston presents performers from their roster of professional classical singers whose credits include work with top companies like The Metropolitan Opera, Boston Lyric Opera, The Boston Pops, Boston Symphony Orchestra and more. They'll be having a drink, letting their hair down, and welcoming audiences into what feels like an after-hours backstage party. The performer line-up will include singers Jessica Graves, Kathryn McKellar, Erin Merceruio-Nelson, Arielle Rogers-Wilkey, Nicola Santoro, Kathryn Tolley, Isabelle Zeledon, and pianist Sally Naredla.

Executive Director Kathryn McKellar says, "These concerts feature local performers in an innovative local venue, raising awareness and funds for local organizations." As for the program of music, she says, "We'll have a mix of famous arias, pieces not found in the standard canon, and cabaret and musical theater songs that audience members can hum along to."

Cambridge Savings Bank partners with Food For Free to box food for those in need

On April 24, Cambridge Savings Bank employees spent the morning boxing fresh produce and pantry staples for neighbors in need through Food For Free's Just Eats grocery box program. Volunteers formed a production line to fill 320 grocery boxes, each adding an item, such as sweet potatoes, collard greens, bags of rice, or apples, to each Just Eats box. Food For Free then loaded the boxes onto trucks for delivery to food programs across eastern Massachusetts communities.

For over 15 years, Cambridge Savings Bank has been a strong corporate partner of Food For Free. The Foundation and the bank have donated over $335,000 in grants and sponsorships to Food For Free throughout the partnership.

"At Cambridge Savings Bank, our heritage is built on a commitment to focus on the needs of our under-resourced neighbors, caring for our customers, and supporting our colleagues," says Jeri Foutter, First Vice President, Community Partnerships & Foundation Officer at Cambridge Savings Bank. "We are dedicated to strengthening our relationships with the communities we serve and the people within them. Since the establishment of our Charitable Foundation in 2003, we have awarded over $15.5 million in grants, making a meaningful impact in areas such as food security, affordable housing, and community development. We are proud to continue our tradition of giving back and look forward to making a positive impact in the years to come."

This corporate volunteer day provided a special opportunity for employees to make a positive impact while working together to give back to the community in a tangible way, getting their hands on the nutrient-dense food that will make its way to the plates of community members who need it most through food pantries, low-income housing sites, and other food programs. Each box contains enough fresh produce and pantry staples to make an estimated 21 meals.

"At Food For Free, we are thrilled to join forces with Cambridge Savings Bank in our shared mission to alleviate food insecurity in our community," said Jessica Cantin, Food For Free CEO. "This partnership signifies a powerful collaboration between two organizations that are deeply committed to making a positive impact. With Cambridge Savings Bank's support, we are able to expand our reach and amplify our efforts, ensuring that no one in our community goes hungry. We are grateful for Cambridge Savings Bank's dedication to making a difference and look forward to seeing what impact we can have towards a healthier, more resilient community as our partnership continues."

Food For Free's Just Eats grocery box program was developed during the pandemic to meet an increased demand for food in the community that has not diminished. The program relies on 125 volunteer hours to pack boxes each week and delivers over 65,000 grocery boxes annually.

As one of the nation's first food rescue organizations, Food For Free now serves more than 150,000 Massachusetts residents who are food insecure and distributes over 6.2 million pounds of nutritious fresh and prepared foods annually. For more information, visit: www. foodforfree.org.

Every great while I put a poem of my own in the Lyrical. I read this at a recent gathering of Somerville poets at the Arts Armory. I think this is a subject we can all relate to.

Gentrification

Maybe not seeing the sun's rise and fall because of the damning exclamation points of concrete towers is not important.

The world should have a dark predator shark's grin.

Everything is a flash in the proverbial pan after all.

Wipe away the old brick and cobblestone the sawdust from the wooden floors from the corner pub.

Let the battalions of bull dozers and Mack trucks wipe the slate clean.

Look out of your luxury condo to the asphalt Alzheimer's of a parking lot.

And, There is not one errant stain on your stainless steel kitchen....

Review of 'A Strange Loop' A play by Michael R. Jackson

Review of A Strange Loop A play by Michael R. Jackson Joint production of SpeakEasy Stage and Front

Porch Arts Collective, at the Calderwood Pavilion through May 25, 2024

By Andy Hoffman

The musical, A Strange Loop, winner of both a 2019 Pulitzer and a 2022 Tony for Best Musical, takes the audience deep into the confused, proud, and self-loathing mind of Usher, an ambitious young man wrestling with a plague of Thoughts, personified and set to music. Overweight, black, and gay, Usher wonders if he can ever succeed in the creation of a musical.

While the book-and-music originator Michael R. Jackson asserts that A Strange Loop isn't autobiographical, he acknowledges that "I have felt everything that Usher has felt." Like Usher, he worked as an usher on Broadway after graduating with a degree in musical theater while working on what would become A Strange Loop. The distinction between autobiography and a play entirely set in the mind of a younger writer remains more hopeful than actual.

Jackson has created a compelling story, filled with hummable music and memorable characters, masterfully recreated at the Calderwood Pavilion in a joint production between the SpeakEasy Stage and the Front Porch Arts Collective. Maurice Emmanuel Parent has directed Jackson's story to take its own course with unobtrusive staging and beautifully subtle touches in props, costumes, and set design.

The play rests heavily on the performance of Kai Clifton as Usher and he carries it with extraordinary grace. The funny, bawdy songs keep your toes tapping, even if the lyrics would get you arrested if you sang them aloud on the street. The music recalls what Jackson terms his Inner White Girl in one of the songs. he even name-checks Tori Amos, Liz Phair, and Joni Mitchell – all artists who turned their internal conflicts into art.

A Strange Loop derives its title from a Liz Phair song of the same name. Usher says at one point that he wanted to license the song for the show he's writing but that Phair's people declined. Phair's song title itself comes from Douglas Hofstadter, whose seminal 1979 book Gödel, Escher, Bach: An Eternal Golden Braid, which looks at the recursive works of these three figures as symbolic of internal neurological structures common to all people. It's this recursive and self-referential process Hofstadter calls a strange loop, where internal thoughts eventually return to the self, no matter what other person, object or concept they seem to be about.

In this musical, in which Usher imagines conversations with his parents, sexual experiences, visits to the doctor, consultations with his agent, and expressions of self-loathing, challenges the audience to maintain the hard connection between what we see on the stage and Usher's internal workings. Usually we recognize what we see performed – while clearly a product of the playwright's imagination – we accept as real within the confines of the play. In A Strange Loop, everything happens inside Usher's mind and none of it is 'real' except as a representation of Usher's own struggle with identity.

A Strange Loop opens with Usher's "Thoughts" – all the play's characters other than Usher are just Thoughts – neatly arranged in a grid around him. As the musical progresses, these Thoughts emerge from their boxes and harangue Usher about his weight, his creativity, his gayness, his uncertain gender, his job, his parents, and the size of his genitals. Like most people in their twenties, Usher's Thoughts return frequently to sex with questions about what's normal and how close Usher himself comes to that uncertain measure.

Usher struggles not only with his Thoughts but also how to end the play he's writing in the play. As he tries out one ending after the other, invariably with Usher's back to the audience, one of the Thoughts points out that the ending isn't only about resolving Usher's conflicts; it's also about the audience. "They have to know when it's time to go home." Kai Clifton records an extraordinary performance as Usher at the center of A Strange Loop, but the Thoughts played by Grant Evaen, Davron S. Monroe, Jonathan Melo, Aaron Michael Ray, De'Lon Grant, and Zion Middletown - appear in rapid sequence as a bewildering array of characters from Usher's mind, from his mother (caught between love of her son and love of Jesus) to Harriet Tubman (reminding Usher of his obligations to his ancestors). They deserve as much credit for representing what passes through Usher's mind as Clifton does for presenting Usher himself. It's an extraordinary evening of theater. While some sequences could afford to be cut or tightened, overall the musical brings the audience face-to-face with the unexpected. That's a rare accomplishment in itself.
