The war on rodents continues

Ward 1 Alderman Matthew McLaughlin reported to the Board of Alderman at their regular meeting last week that he has been receiving calls from constituents with rodent sightings earlier than usual this year.

By Amy Swain

The Rodent Issues Committee is making serious efforts, and getting serious results in eliminating the rats in Somerville. This year, rodent sightings have decreased by 40%. Although rats continue to be a problem, the committee has plans to continue the trend in 2015.

At the most recent committee meeting, members addressed each individual complaint of rodent activity they have received. Goran Smiljic, Superintendent of Inspectional Services, detailed the actions that have been taken in each instance.

The most common action taken has been to bait the area. The policy of the city is not to bait an area unless a member of Inspection Services spots a rodent personally. Rodents don't always show themselves when inspectors examine a given area. This means that citizens must be as involved as government. Trashcan lids seem to have made a large difference, especially in residential buildings. Continued on page 9

Rainbow flag raising at City Hall

By Patrick McDonagh

A crowd of students, community members, state and city officials gathered to raise a rainbow flag on the City Hall concourse last Wednesday. Proudly posing for a photo, the colorful flag was pulled taught by Somerville's Mayor Joe Curtatone, Student Gay Strait Alliance (GSA) member Sam Williams, and Somerville's LGBTQ community liaison Andra Oshinsky; all taking the podium to address attendees in support of the LGBTQ flag raising.

Bated tears hidden behind Sam Williams' pink heart shaped sunshades proved affirmation to Mayor Curtatone's introduction: "Being here is more than just raising a flag. It's the symbolism. Raising the flag expresses unity, it expresses community love for one another, and for the choices people make."

The flag raising took place four days prior to the congressionally recognized Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender (LGBT) pride month of June. GSA leaders in the Somerville High School community and LGBTQ supporting attendees were invited to Continued on page 6

Tonight, the President of the Board of Alderman, Alderman at Large Bill White will be having his campaign kickoff party for his re-election, which is coming up this year. Wednesday, June 3 from 6-8 p.m. at the Cantina La Mexicana, 247 Washington Street (at the beginning of the plaza at Union Sq). Bill has been re-elected President of the Board now for three years in a row and it's obvious to everyone he knows the rules and how to run an affective as well as productive meeting. Bill has served the entire city as Alderman At Large and wherever duty calls Bill is there, and on top of the issues as well. Just as importantly, Bill is a constituent's Alderman, representing all of us here in the Ville. Bill does his job well and it's hard to find anyone that doesn't like him or appreciate what he's done for the city. Help support his bid for re-election. Show up and let him know how much we appreciate his independent representation.

Also tonight, City Councilor of Medford Adam Knight is having his re-election kickoff over in Medford coming up on June 3 at 6:30 p.m. at the American Legion Post 35 on Winthrop Street. Adam won election to the city council over in Medford two years ago. He has a bright future ahead of him, and who knows, maybe someday will become the mayor of Medford. Normally we wouldn't announce anything from outside the Ville, but Adam is well known here in the city from his days with Charlie Shannon's office. Also, we found out The Somerville Times is read quite a lot by Medford residents.

Congratulations to Jason and Nancy Fucile of Victors Deli on their new addition to the family, little Gianni Fucile, who was born last Wednesday. When in Ball Square, stop in at Victors and congratulate them on the new addition to a wonderful family. We wish Jason, Nancy and Gianni all the best. And of course, congratulations to Grandma Rosa, Grandpa Victor and Uncle Mike.

The retirement party for Sal and Victor Ferrigno of Patsy's Pastry fame was held this past Friday night at Montvale Plaza and the room was filled with their huge family and many friends, wishing them the very best. Continued on page 11

How anyone, let alone the MBTA, can offer a property like this in good conscience is beyond me; not without a major environmental cleanup. I think this whole thing needs to be looked into closely on a local and state level. Questions and concerns have to be addressed long before a final sale is concluded. Especially if there is even a whisper of a chance that residential units will be placed on the site.

JUNE 3, 2015 3 The Somerville Times -Board of Alderman in support of fair wages

By Josie Grove

The Somerville Board of Aldermen resolved last Thursday to support the state bill, S.982, "One fair wage for workers in Mass." The resolution is a nonbinding statement of support for a bill under consideration in the state legislature, which proposes to raise the tipped minimum wage to be the same as the untipped minimum wage by 2022. The resolution was approved by all nine aldermen present at the meeting.

Somerville resident and restaurant worker Alex Galimbreti presented the resolution to the board on Thursday. "Tips should be a supplement to your wages, not the entire wages," he said. Galimbreti is an organizer with the Restaurant Opportunity Center, a national organization that advocates for higher wages for restaurant workers.

In Massachusetts, restaurant workers who make tips are paid a minimum of $3 per hour, just a third of the state minimum wage for untipped workers. Galibreti believes this change is critical in ensuring the city's future. "Service jobs are the new factory jobs." Galibreti cited the growth in restaurant jobs in Somerville, which is part of a statewide trend. Across Massachusetts, employment in the leisure and hospitality sector, which includes restaurant jobs, has grown more quickly than in many other sectors of the economy.

> "I would like to see us do this here on the city level"

Galimbreti acknowledged that some restaurant servers do make a lot of money in tips, but not all servers benefit in the same way. "This may not affect somebody working in Harvard Square on Saturday night making a lot of money, but if you're working on a Thursday afternoon in Ball Square, you're not making a lot of money."

Aldermen Mark Niedergang, Rebecca Gerwitz, and Matt Mc-Laughlin brought the resolution to the Board. The resolution, "Supporting One Fair Wage for workers in Massachusetts" is a statement of support for the state-level bill hat moves to equalize the tipped and untipped minimum wages.

Alderman Niedergang of Ward 5 was the primary sponsor of the resolution, seeing it as part of a larger program for the Board. "We passed a number of resolutions over the last year in support of labor unions, in support of working people, in support of workers' rights issues," he said, including a resolution encouraging the developer of Assembly Square to hire union workers.

"Since there's legislation in the state legislature, I thought it would be a really good idea for the Somerville Board of Aldermen to express its support," Niedergang said.

Resolutions are statements of opinion, not laws."What it does, in this case, is support what's going on in the legislature," said Niedergang. "When a whole board of a municipality supports something, the folks who are advocating for it in the state legislature can say it has broad support. People are more likely to support something if it has broad support."

Senator Patricia Jehlen is the sponsor of the state bill, and represents Somerville in the state Senate. The bill, S.982, proposMARK NIEDERGANG

Ward 5 Alderman Mark Niedergang, the primary sponsor of the resolution, said that it is important for municipalities to show support for this type of legislation.

es incrementally increasing the minimum wage for tipped workers until 2022, when it will be at the same level as the regular minimum wage. S.982, is under review by the Joint Committee on Labor and Workforce Development, and has not yet been to the floor of the State House.

Some Somerville aldermen want to go further, and eliminate the separate minimum wage for tipped workers in Somerville."I would like to see us do this here on the city level," said Alderman Gerwitz. "That's the great thing about municipalities, is that we can lead the way."

make a policy change at the city level. "I'm not even sure what we can do legally, but my inclination would be to see it happen on a state level first, if possible." Statewide legislation would impact many more restaurant workers, he said, and he is optimistic about the legislation's fate on Beacon Hill.

But for now, the Board of Aldermen has declared its support for the bill, with its unanimous approval of the resolution. "This is the next step we should take," said Alderman-at-large Dennis Sullivan just before the vote. "We have a long history of supporting restaurant workers."

Niedergang wants to wait to

Cornered shoplifter threatens stabbing

Police were summoned to the Market basket store on Somerville Ave. in response to reports that an alleged shoplifter had threatened employees with a knife last Thursday.

Upon arrival, officers were briefed on the incident by the store manager who said that the suspect, later identified as Herman Blanco, of Charlestown, threatened both him and the Assistant Manager with a knife when they attempted to prevent him from leaving the store.

While the store manager was being questioned, reports came in that another police unit, with the assistance of two store employees, had Blanco in custody. According to reports, Blanco left the store with a basket full of unbagged groceries that he had not paid for. An employee spotted Blanco and tipped off the manager, who then confronted the suspect and asked for proof of purchase.

It was at that time that Blanco reportedly threatened to cut the store employees before trying to get away on foot.

Blanco was followed by store employees as he fled and was eventually caught by responding police officers near Lake and Kilby Streets.

According to police statements, Blanco changed his clothes while in hiding, but the clothing he was wearing inside the store was reportedly found in his backpack, along with a folding knife.

Blanco was subsequently placed under arrest and charged with multiple counts of assault with a dangerous weapon and shoplifting by asportation.

The Somerville Times -Ward 3 ResiStat meeting

By Donald Norton

On Tuesday, May 26, the Ward 3 ResiStat meeting was held at the SHS cafeteria. Approximately 80-90 area residents showed up to hear what is happening in the city as a whole, and in particular Ward 3.

The first to speak was Ward 3 Alderman Bob McWatters, who welcomed attendees and assured everyone present that he would be there throughout the evening for questions.

McWatters then introduced retiring Ward 3 School Committee member Adam Sweeting, who spoke briefly on his tenure serving on the board and how he hopes to finish out the year. Sweeting mentioned a new superintendent would be taking over and that he was looking forward to that transition.

Sweeting also mentioned that Somerville High School was ranked "level one" for two years as a top urban performing district in the state.

Sweeting then thanked everyone for supporting him over the years, and received a round of applause from everyone present.

Mayor Curtatone then addressed the gathering, focusing primarily on the budget that he was submitting to the Board of Aldermen for the next fiscal year, as well as the money spent this past February on cleaning up after the severe storms. The mayor said that the city had spent about $9.5 million and that because it was hopefully a once in a lifetime storm the city could write it off for over few years time, while getting monies from state and federal agencies.

The staff spoke on the status of the Prospect Hill tower renovation, indicating that a $500K budget was recommended for it, to be voted on by the Board of Aldermen. Work on the exterior of the tower is scheduled to begin this summer, with an estimated date of completion by September.

It was reported that a meeting took place at the Post Office on June 1 for Somerville by Design's long-term view of what Union Square will look like.

The mayor, while receiving questions from the audience, mentioned that the city was hiring a full time arborist. He also updated attendees on the Green Line project and the progress it was making in coming to Union Square.

Patsy's Pastry retirement party

By Donald Norton

Friday night at Montvale Plaza, a surprise retirement party was held for Sal and Vito Ferrigno, of Pasty's Pastry fame.

About 100 family members and those that worked there over the years attended, along with various distributors that sold to the bakery.

Both Sal and Vito were extremely surprised by and pleased with the get-together. Everyone had a great time, some emotional and otherwise, but it was a great send-off to a family that has contributed to the fiber of Somerville in their way of business for 49 years.

help raise the symbolic rainbow insignia, where it will fly on the concourse's flagpole as a representation of unity regarding the often-contentious civil rights issue.

LGBTQ Community Liaison Andra Oshinsky described major victories in Somerville High School and schools state wide regarding gender identity issues. "LGBTQ students are coming out and schools are rallying around these students," Oshinsky said, "making sure they [school boards] revise their policies and practices to ensure that students are supported. A big thing that's going on in the city of Somerville and across Massachusetts is that there is a real effort school wide to support students around gender identity issues." As a self-Identifying Queer individual throughout a college career at Northeast-University, community ern and LGBTQ relations is of vested interest. Oshinsky's University degree in public advocacy is in full use as an advocate for Somerville, whereas in her childhood community her sexual identity was stifled.

"Growing up in a suburb of Baltimore, I didn't necessarily have role models who represented the full spectrum of the Queer community," Oshinsky shares. "There weren't always words to match up to how I saw the world and how I felt about myself." Oshinsky is currently active in the greater Boston LGBTQ community, acting as role model for younger individuals realizing their sexuality. Somerville High School junior and GSA member

Sam Williams is one of these individuals. Williams and Oshinsky share similar sentiments regarding how their sexuality is perceived in Massachusetts and the Somerville community. "It was really wonderful to come to the Boston area,"Oshinsky said. "It is pretty liberating to use a label when you want to use a label. I was really grateful for that." Williams currently identifies as a bisexual high school student; an identity she is able to realize with social support in her home state of Massachusetts.

Williams' confident willingness to interpret, understand, and share her sexual identity is testament to a progressive LGBTQ social climate in the Boston area. Political figures and state representatives rallying around sexual or gender identification certainly alleviate difficulty of coming out. State representatives Denise Provost and Christine Barber joined the flag raising to show support and promote this acceptance.

Legislation in Massachusetts set the early standard for gay lesbian civil rights, but there is catching up to do, Rep. Provost explains why: "Back in 2011 the legislature enacted and the governor signed a bill that provided some protection to transgender people in Massachusetts. It added transgender status to the hate crime statute, and it protected the access of transgender people to employment, credit, education, and housing. As a political compromise the access of transgender people to public accommodations, streets sidewalks, transit, public buildings, hospitals, clinics, places that people go, were all cut out of the bill."

Provost discussed the bill in submission (Bill H.1577 An Act relative to gender identity and nondiscrimination) that would widen the umbrella coverage of legislative civil rights; further including "gender identity" in relation to transgender or alternative identifications of gender. Somerville, Boston, Cambridge, and a dozen other Massachusetts communities have a local ordinance or bi-law that guarantees equal access for transgender people.

Public guarantee of accommodation for community members is a priority for Rep. Provost and constituents in support of the bill."It is essential to any kind of civil rights," Provost said. "Most of the civil rights movements of the 60s were about giving people the right to sit down at a lunch counter, not to have to sit at the back of the bus. Without access to public accommodations there is not really equal access under law." Civil servants involved in LGBTQ equality are leaders priming further community involvement from young activists, according to Provost.

Members of the community with LGBTQ related issues, questions, or concerns are urged to contact Andra Oshinsky. For more information about the GSA and other LGBT programming, events information, and contact lgbtq@somervillema.gov, or 617-625-6600 ext 2400.

US2 seeks local artists for wall feature

By Rebecca Danvers

Union Square Station Associates (US2), the City of Somerville's master developer partner for Union Square's revitalization, today announced that it is seeking proposals from Somerville-based artists to design and install wall art inside the new US2 headquarters and co-working space which will soon open at 31 Union Square, the former home of Elegant Furniture.

"We want the new co-working space to reflect the vibrancy, diversity and potential that is Union Square," said Greg Karczewski, president of US2. "Who better than someone steeped in Union Square's arts culture to help bring that sense of community inside the walls of Union Square's newest work space."

In its Call for Submission, US2 says, "Submissions may include murals, 2D wall art, and interactive features or exhibits." The budget for the project is $2,000, offering a nice potential payday to one of Somerville's many creative professionals.

Applications can be found at the US2 website at http:// www.us2unionsquare.info/ blog/2015/5/26/call-for-submissions and must be received no later than June 15 at 5:00pm. Applicants are instructed to email all information to Becca@ US2UnionSquare.com.

US2 previously announced their new 2,500 square foot ground floor space will be staffed by a full-time US2 representative who will be available to field questions and provide general information about the Union Square revitalization. The space will serve as a headquarters, meeting space and a central hub for the recruitment of commercial tenants to fill space in the new development area and in the entire square.

Election 2015 update

By Donald Norton

Ward 2 Alderman Maryann Heuston (pictured here) turned in her certification papers this week, qualifying her to run for re-election.

A genuinely down to earth and really nice person, she is very popular in her ward. It is hard to find anyone who does not like her.

Only one potential candidate pulled papers since last week,

Philip Michael Mitza, from 5 Autumn St., who is seeking to run for mayor.

Certified this week since last report are Mayor Joe Curtatone, Alderman At large Bill White, and Ward 3 Alderman Bob McWatters.

For School Committee, certified this week is Lee Erica Palmer, who is running for Ward 3 School Committee.

There is still time to take out ber, you need to go to the Election Department at City Hall to sign up, and they will give you the paperwork. For Mayor 250 plus 50 registered papers to run for office. Rememvoters, Alderman at Large 150 plus 30 to certify, for Ward Alderman 100 plus 20 and for School Board it is only 100 plus 20.

You have until the end of this month to take papers out.

Our Legislators in the House and Senate for LOWER BUSINESS FILING FEE (S 3 - Amendment #4)

> Senate 12-27, rejected an amendment that would lower from $500 to $250 the filing fee for the formation of a Limited Liability Corporation (LLC) and the fee for filing an LLC's annual report with six or fewer employees.

> Amendment supporters said the Bay State has among the highest filing fees in the nation. They argued the reduction will encourage businesses to form and to continue to remain and employ people in the state.

> Some amendment opponents said the state cannot afford the revenue loss of up to $50 million. Others argued a large tax reduction should be considered as a separate bill that is properly vetted and the subject of a public hearing.

> (A "Yes" vote is for the reductions to $250. A "No" vote is against them.)

> > Sen. Patricia Jehlen No

SICK TIME AT WORK (S 3 – Amendment #15) Senate 10-28, rejected an amendment that would prohibit the state until January 1, 2016, from fining any companies that violate the voter-approved law that requires both public and private employers with 11 or more employees to allow them to earn and use up to 40 hours of paid sick time per year. Employees working for companies with 10 or fewer workers could earn and use up to 40 hours of unpaid sick time annually. All employees would earn one hour of sick time for every 30 hours worked. The law itself takes effect on July 1, 2015.

Amendment supporters, noting the regulations are not yet finalized, said this does not delay the entire law but will simply give many businesses time to read and understand the many regulations when they are finalized. They noted a business would not be punished as long as it's not willfully skirting the law.

Amendment opponents said the law was approved by voters at the polls in 2014, and senators should honor the effective dates passed by them.

(A "Yes" vote is for the delay in the fine. A "No" vote is against the delay.)

Sen. Patricia Jehlen No (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment. A "No" vote is against it.)

Sen. Patricia Jehlen No

UNFUNDED EDUCATION MANDATES (S 3 -Amendment #554)

Senate 16-23, rejected an amendment allowing cities and towns to petition the state for a waiver of any unfunded mandate relating to education that the state has imposed on a community without paying for it. The amendment requires the state to grant the waiver unless it determines that doing so will lower the quality of education. The state must also respond to the waiver request within 90 days or the waiver is automatically considered granted.

Amendment supporters said that many school systems are in poor financial shape and can no longer afford to abide by these unfunded mandates. They noted the mandates often are not needed and have no effect on some communities.

Amendment opponents said the Education Committee is already considering a bill designed to deal with these unfunded mandates. They argued that Senate passage of the amendment would circumvent an open hearing on the bill by approving it as a budget amendment without proper vetting.

(A "Yes" vote is for the amendment. A "No" vote against it.)

> Sen. Patricia Jehlen No

SPEND NO TAX DOLLARS ON OLYMPICS (S 3 – Amendment #63)

Senate 17-22, rejected an amendment that would prohibit the spending of any state taxpayer money on the bidding for or hosting of the 2024 Olympics, with the exception of transportation-related projects like repair, maintenance, construction and operation of the state's transportation system.

Amendment supporters said this would guarantee that the state is prohibited from spending any money to obtain or host the Olympics. They cited experiences that other Olympic host cities have encountered including Salt Lake City that ended up costing 2.5 times the original budget.

SPECIAL PROSECUTOR TO INVESTIGATE Amendment opponents said the amendment is un-HEALTH CARE CONNECTOR (S 3 - Amendment #121)

Sen. Patricia Jehlen DISTRICT REPRESENTED: Second Middlesex. - Consisting of the cities of Cambridge, wards 9 to 11, inclusive, Medford and Somerville, and the town of Winchester, precincts 4 to 7, inclusive, in the county of Middlesex.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators' votes on roll calls from debate on the $38.1 billion fiscal 2016 state budget. There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week.

Senate 8-31, rejected an amendment that would require the attorney general to appoint a special prosecutor to bring criminal charges for any illegal acts relating to the development and operation of the state's failed Health Connector website.

Amendment supporters said the site has been a disaster that has cost hundreds of millions of dollars. They argued that the current federal prosecutor is protecting the interests of the federal government and that a state special prosecutor is needed to watch out for the state's interests.

Amendment opponents said the amendment is not necessary because the attorney general is already investigating this matter. They said the Senate should not micromanage this problem.

necessary because the Senate earlier approved a measure that would require passage of a special act of the Legislature before any state funds could be spent on the Olympics.

(A"Yes" vote is for the ban. A"No" vote is against it.)

Sen. Patricia Jehlen Yes

RAISE TAX ON FLAVORED CIGARS (S 3 -Amendment #836)

Senate 26-13, approved an amendment raising the tax on flavored cigars.

Amendment supporters said the tax on flavored cigars is too low when compared to other smoking products in the Bay State. They noted that these inexpensive cigars are also marketed to young people, and their use is skyrocketing.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

Amendment opponents said this tax hike should be the subject of a public hearing and vetted by the legislative process. They questioned if it was legal or wise to have flavored and unflavored cigars taxed at different rates.

(A"Yes" vote is for the tax hike on flavored cigars. A"No" vote is against the hike.)

FAMILY OF POLICE OFFICER INJURED IN MARATHON SHOOTOUT GETS $150,000 – The family of 28-year-old Police Officer Dennis Simmonds, who was injured in the Boston Marathon shootout in Watertown on April 19, 2013, has been awarded a one-time $150,000 line-of-duty death benefit. Simmonds died about a year later after a medical emergency at Hyde Park's Boston Police Academy gym. The State Retirement Board ruled that medical evidence and incident reports showed his death was a result of the injuries he suffered during the shootout with the Tsarnaev brothers. This benefit was raised from $100,000 to $150,000 in April 2014.

MORE THAN 2,000 STATE WORKERS RETIRE

EARLY – The State Retirement Board is processing more than 2,000 applications from state workers for early retirement. Gov. Charlie Baker in early May signed into law a bill creating the Employee Retirement Incentive Program that offers early retirement to thousands of state workers in the executive branch. In order to qualify, a worker must have minimum of 20 years of service or be at least 55 years of age.

Employees who want to participate in the program must file an application for retirement between May 11, 2015, and June 12, 2015, and must retire no later than June 30, 2015. At the halfway point of the 32 days given to sign up, 2,025 workers had applied. During debate on the bill in May, estimates were that some 4,500 people will have signed up by the deadline. So the plan is on target and is expected to save an estimated $170 million.

FINANCIAL AWARDS FOR CITIZENS WHO MAKE SUGGESTIONS TO SAVE MONEY (H 1786) – The Committee on State Administration and Regulatory Oversight held a hearing on a bill that would include citizens in an existing program that rewards state workers who make suggestions to reduce the cost of government. The suggestions are reviewed and then winners are chosen by a suggestion awards board. The proposal also specifies the award should be equal to one percent of the expected reduction in cost to state government up to a maximum of $10,000.

INCREASE PENALTIES FOR COMPANIES THAT HIRE ILLEGALS (H 1734) – The Labor and Workforce Development Committee held a hearing on legislation increasing penalties to employers who employ illegal immigrants. Current law imposes a fine between $200 and $500. The new bill hikes that to a fine of $4,000 to $10,000.

EXEMPT LOW-INCOME WORKERS FROM THE STATE'S INCOME TAX (H 1778) – The Committee on Labor and Workforce Development's hearing also included a bill that would exempt from the state's income tax the income of workers who earn less than $13 per hour.

QUOTABLE QUOTES

"Massachusetts citizens deserve a justice system based on equity and not a bifurcated system consisting of one for well-heeled clients and another for the working poor. Every citizen deserves a fair opportunity to a quality defense if accused of a crime." — Massachusetts Bar Association Chief Legal Counsel and Chief Operating Officer Martin Healy on legislation that would increase the hourly rate for court-appointed attorneys who represent the indigent.

"I lost the house where I lived and survived with my savings until they were depleted, and my family then helped me until I got the first workers' compensation payment. By then the 60 percent of my former wages were not enough to pay all debts that had built up." — Camilo Ruiz, a worker speaking in front of The Labor and Workplace Development Committee in favor of a bill that would change the workers' compensation system to help workers obtain their benefits faster and with fewer barriers.

"The results remain clear. We're glad that the Senate has taken the positive first step of authorizing a control board, but more must be done. We hope every senator will listen to their constituents and advocate for robust reform efforts." — Paul Craney, Executive Director of Massachusetts Fiscal Alliance on a poll that showed Massachusetts voters overwhelmingly support Gov. Charlie Baker's plan to reform the MBTA by a margin of 83 percent to 17 percent.

"Tim Flaherty has been a widely respected lawyer for 25 years with a hard-earned reputation for his honesty and talent. Tim is innocent and looks forward to presenting a vigorous defense." — Thomas Butters, Flaherty's attorney, on charges that former House Speaker Charles Flaherty's son paid the victim of a possible hate crime to refuse to testify against his client.

"It's a very traumatic, very concerning, very complicated job that they do for us. It really is a public service." — Middlesex County District Attorney Marian Ryan testifying in favor of a bill that would double from three years to six years the length of time that grand jurors would be exempt from once again having to serve on a jury.

HOW LONG WAS LAST WEEK'S SESSION? Beacon Hill Roll Call tracks the length of time that the House and Senate were in session each week. Many legislators say that legislative sessions are only one aspect of the Legislature's job and that a lot of important work is done outside of the House and Senate chambers. They note that their jobs also involve committee work, research, constituent work and other matters that are important to their districts. Critics say that the Legislature does not meet regularly or long enough to debate and vote in public view on the thousands of pieces of legislation that have been filed. They note that the infrequency and brief length of sessions are misguided and lead to irresponsible late night sessions and a mad rush to act on dozens of bills in the days immediately preceding the end of an annual session.

During the week of May 25-29, the House met for a total of two hours and 36 minutes and the Senate met for a total of 3 hours and 12 minutes.

Mon. May 25	No House session No Senate session
Tues. May 26	No House session Senate 11:05 a.m. to 11:07 a.m.

City: Public lights should go LED

By Rebecca Danvers

According to information provided by the City of Somerville, energy-efficient LED lightbulbs in street, decorative and city building external lights would save estimated $450,000 annually, reduce CO2 emissions by 600 metric tons per year.

A funding request that would allow the conversion of every City of Somerville-owned streetlight and other light fixtures to energy-efficient LED lightbulbs—which would pay for itself in cost savings within five years and advance the city's goal of becoming carbon neutral by 2050—is currently before the Board of Aldermen for review. The funding request recommended for approval by the aldermen's Finance Committee on May 27 is for $2,475,000, and will now go before the full Board for approval. After a $619,000 rebate from Eversource for installing LED lights, the net cost of changing all City-owned lights including streetlights, decorative lights and external lights on public buildings would total an estimated $1,486,585. Once the conversion from the existing sodium lightbulbs to LED lightbulbs is complete, which would take up to a year, the city would save a projected $450,000 annually in energy costs. Also, by switching to all LED lights, the city would reduce its carbon dioxide emissions by approximately 600 metric tons per year. "This is a commonsense step the city can take that's better for both our residents' wallets and the environment," said Mayor Joseph A. Curtatone. "In addition to those benefits, the quality of light from LED lightbulbs is superior to sodium lightbulbs and because of their design we'll have better directional control over our lights, so that our streetlights are focused on illuminating our public ways instead of bleeding into residents' homes or the night sky. It improves our residents' quality of life and our public safety, too."

Residents can see LED streetlights currently being piloted along Putnam Street, on Highland Avenue from School Street to Walnut Street, and on Pearl Street between McGrath Highway and Cross Street. East Broadway streetlights also already used LED lightbulbs. The piloted lights range from 42 watts up to 93 watts so that the city can evaluate the light output and ensure that the proper wattage lights are chosen for residential streets, busier collector roads and main arterial roadways, striking a balance between public safety, energy savings and potential impact on homes.

"The conversion to LED lights is an exciting step toward reducing our carbon emissions because it has an immediate impact," said Oliver Sellers-Garcia, the city's Director of Environment and Sustainability. "No amount of preparedness can help us withstand the projected changes in our climate if we continue business-as-usual, so while we are working on building up our resiliency to climate change, we must also act today on reducing our contribution to the problem and avoid those worst case projections of tomorrow. Converting to LED lights is another step toward mitigating our contributions to climate change."

Smart planning and saving means snow won't derail next year's budget

By Joseph A. Curtatone

We've never seen as much recorded snowfall as we did this past winter. Snow budgets the Commonwealth across were shattered. Now as we enter budget season and the snow bills must be paid, some Massachusetts city and town officials are expressing satisfaction that their proposed budgets do not contain layoffs. Others are considering tax hikes or cuts in services to balance the budget for the coming year. There is even talk in some cities and towns about passing an override. But not in Somerville. In Somerville, we planned for this. We saved for this. We were ready for this. So forget about avoiding layoffs or cuts in serviceswe're still able to strategically adding staff to improve services. While other communities are stalling out or taking steps backward, we are continuing to move forward. Our proposed fiscal 2016 budget that I am submitting to the Board of Aldermen this week, invests more in our kids' education, public safety, affordability efforts, and the services that our community expects and deserves. We can make these continued investments because of prudent planning, smart saving and strategic investments. We planned for days like these—and that's why we weathered the storm.

We budgeted $936,000 for snow removal this past year, a good figure that allows us to pay for most snow operations in a usual winter and cover any costs exceeding the budget with free cash (that's a boost from prior years when we budgeted $650,000). But as we all know, this winter was anything but usual, and we ended up spending more than $10 million on snow removal. Driving that figure is the fact that we kept our snow emergency in place longer than most, if not all, other Massachusetts communities for the sake of public safety. We plowed and hauled more than most communities due to our narrow streets and higher on-street parking demand, which necessitated our crews to not only plow but to haul the snow away to snow farms. We had to ensure that during these storms, fire trucks and emergency vehicles could get down our streets. Simply put, we were working round the clock to reduce the risk to life. So we kept the emergency in place as we hauled, and as members of the public who experienced more difficult conditions in other cities and towns applauded our efforts.

We made the right choice for public safety. Now we have to pay the bill, like everyone else. What makes us different from everyone else is that while we invested in our community over the past decade and grew our local economy, we made those investments strategically, giving us the ability to save and build up stabilization accounts that we created. When I first took office as Mayor in 2004, the City of Somerville had exactly one stabilization fund. It was for our water budget and it held $240,000. We had no rainy day fund. We had no reserves for capital planning projects, meaning anytime we needed to make a large capital purchase (for example, for equipment or building repairs), we had to tap our general fund or-more likely-borrow money to buy the things we needed. So we created those reserve accounts and started putting money away, just like you might as you save for future unexpected needs or emergencies. At the same time, we continued investing in our community and building a sustainable local economic engine. Today, our reserve levels total more than $21 million, an increase of roughly 100 fold.

There were plenty of opportunities to veer from our course. The Great Recession in 2008 and 2009 sapped revenues and caused budget deficits at the local and state levels. When adjusted for inflation, general local aid was cut 36 percent from the end of fiscal 2008 through fiscal 2012, "more deeply than many other state programs" according to the Massachusetts Budget and Policy Center. Even before the Great Recession, state level tax cuts led to less revenue and reduced local aid. Again adjusting for inflation, since 2000, Somerville has lost more than $42 million in local aid. We could have chosen not to save as much, focusing on our immediate needs, or take a heavily conservative approach and not invest in the community as much and save more. We could have taken one-time revenues like building permit fees and, in the wake of lost local aid, used those to fund operating expenses for the year ahead. But we remained patient and stuck to our long-term planning. It's why our bond ratings are the highest they've ever been—which coincidentally saves us money when we borrow to purchase equipment like snow blowers, melters and loaders. Both Moody's and Standard & Poor's specifically citing our "conservative budgetary practices" and our reserve levels, along with our economic development, as the reasons why our financial position remains stable despite historic state aid declines.

Those years of patience have paid off time and time again, but especially so this year. We were ready for the unexpected and for this winter's emergencies. So now we won't stand still this year. We will move forward just as our community expects and deserves. After a decade of accolades, we believe we can do more, and do better. We will continue investing in our community and improve services in next year's budget—and our bright future is possible because of our prudent long-range planning of the past.

Ward 2 Alderman Maryann M. Heuston and Ward 1 Alderman Matthew McLaughlin, chairperson and vice chairperson of the Rodent Issues Committee respectively, are very interested in making sure Inspectional Services are doing what they can to educate residents on prevention. The Rodent Population Control Program currently tickets occupants with rodent problems. With the ticket, they send a photo of the rodent that has been spotted.

Is this enough? Heuston and McLaughlin don't think so. They pointed out that the picture and citation are often sent to the landlord of a building, not to the occupants. The committee thinks more should be done to assist residents. To that end, informational door knockers will be returning to service soon.

Other steps being taken include contact with the MBTA regarding their prevention program. As it has always been assumed that the transit company would cover their own ground, identifying any gap areas is necessary, as subway stations are notorious rat hangouts. To highlight other hot spots, Inspectional Services have constructed a map displaying each complaint location. This allows focus on problem areas, and reveals whether one area is increasing or decreasing, so they are able act accordingly. At the most recent meeting, plans were made to reassess the map in consideration of the decrease in rodent sightings. McLaughlin noted at the meeting that he has been receiving rodent complaint calls since January this year, an unusually early start for the issue. This has prompted an early start on detection and extermination that will hopefully result in fewer sightings this summer.

A potential candidate has pulled papers to run for the mayor's seat against Joe Curtatone. His name is Philip M. Mitza of Autumn Street here in Somerville. He's a registered Republican and if he manages to get the necessary signatures then Joe will have an opponent. Some might remember that Joe ousted former Mayor Dorothy Kelly Gay from office back in 2003, and if you go back about 40 years before that, a little known minister named S. Lester Ralph from a tiny little church on the Fellsway decided to jump in the race and not only did he win, he managed to defeat the incumbent, Mayor Jim Brennan. A well known candidate as well, receiving over 25K votes which, by the way, is more the Joe Curtatone has ever received in the many terms he has run for. Somerville Kiwanis celebrates 90th year of comunity service

By Ross E. Blouin

A special 90th birthday celebration was held by the Somerville Kiwanis at the Holiday Inn in Somerville on Friday night, May 22. The celebration was spectacular and included more than 200 community leaders and business people who are current or past residents of Somerville. The Somerville Kiwanis has led the city in community service with dozens of successful community programs that have enriched the lives of Somerville residents for the past 90 years. Greetings and citations were presented by a bevy of state and local elected officials who lauded the Somerville Kiwanis for the years of dedication and generosity given by its members. The club's legacy is one of giving and helping the children and residents of Somerville with a steadfast belief in the potential of Somerville and love of community service.

The room was packed with notable members who have given decades of their time, money and service to the improvement of the community of Somerville. Mr. LeRoy H. Keihn, former President of the Winter Hill Bank and Somerville Kiwanis, was given a standing ovation for his years of service and dedication as well as the fact that he is a WWII veteran of Pearl Harbor and was onboard the battleship Tennessee.

Mayor Joseph Curtatone gave a welcoming speech to the members and guests assembled. He noted his own time as a Kiwanis member and his personal recollections of community service. Board of Aldermen President, William White Esq. presented a plaque with a congratulatory message from the City of Somerville. Printed salutations were presented by State Senator Patricia Jehlen and accepted by Kiwanis President Anthony Ciccariello.

Twenty-four (24) Somerville High School students were recently inducted into the National Art Honor Society, earning membership after demonstrating commitment and excellence in the visual arts and in their general studies. To be inducted, students must first complete three semesters of visual art courses at Somerville High School, and must hold a B+ average in their art courses. They must maintain a B- average in non-art courses during the current year without any course failures, and must complete 5 hours of community service to the art department. Congratulations to the following SHS National Art Honor Society inductees: Anthony Arujo-Amaral, Victor Barbosa Fontes, Emma Blickenderfer, Michelle Cea, Jules Cleophat, Alexi Delcid-Rodriguez, Eliza Forrest, Nicole Gouveia, Olivia Haley, Tahisha J-Pierre, Tanisha J-Pierre, Anika Kawsar, Dorje Lama, Elizabeth Mooney, Osvaldo Moreno, Brenda Nguyen, LeighAnn Nguyen, Ellah Nzikoba, Alec Portelli, Ruby Raut, Hope Rogan, Shreyaj Shrestha, Elizabeth Sousa, and Nina Zou.

Charity concert at Arts at the Armory

By Rebecca Danvers

Longtime Somerville resident Janet Feld, a veteran singer-songwriter on the New England folk circuit, wants to make sure that youngsters get the same opportunities that she did.

She has organized a series of quarterly acoustic concerts that will assist local charities. Her upcoming event will benefit the fine arts department at Saint John Paul II Catholic Academy in Dorchester and Mattapan. Feld has been teaching music at the Academy since the fall of 2010.

The music series is called "Janet's Planet: Concerts for Humanoids" and the first show takes place Saturday, June 13, at the Arts at the Armory Café, 191 Highland Ave in Somerville. Feld (www. janetfeld.com) will perform with singing guitarists Esther Friedman and Mark Stepakoff. The music starts at 7 p.m. and the suggested donation is $20, with all proceeds going to Saint John Paul II Catholic Academy.

range from pre-school through eighth grade and are provided weekly music classes during the school day plus the option of after-school lessons. We also offer a musical theater program."

The programs are primarily funded through donations, giving students opportunities for music education that their families could not afford otherwise. Money raised at the concert will be used for instruments, lesson scholarships, sound equipment and supplies for the musical theater program.

Feld, who has performed all over the country and in Europe, is not only an outstanding singer and songwriter but also a dazzling guitarist who uses a variety of innovative styles. Her engaging original songs and wry sense of humor have made her a crowd favorite wherever she plays. Blending folk, pop and country styles, she writes songs that can be touching and amusing at the same time.

Friedman (www.reverbnation.com/ estherfriedman), a friend of Feld for many years and a co-writer on some of her songs, is a highly creative composer whose pieces explore the range of human emotion, with a dash of the unexpected. Stepakoff (www.markstepakoff.com) offers a mix of wry humorous material and poignant ballads in the vein of Loudon Wainwright III and John Prine.

"For most children, their introduction to music and the arts begins at school," said Feld, a former Boston Music Award nominee who has appeared at Harvard Square's Club Passim as well as folk festivals in Kerrville, Texas, and Falcon Ridge, N.Y."We want to make sure that students at the Academy are able to participate in these programs.

"Our school has one of the most robust fine arts programs in the Archdiocese and it serves low income families. Students The show will use an in-the-round format, with each performer taking turns and occasionally backing one other.

"This will be a really fun concert and it's for a great cause," said Feld, a Somerville resident since 1994. "You'll be hearing a wide range of musical styles and helping out a lot of kids, too."

An evening to 'Network for Nepal'

By Tom Bannister

Pollinate Creative is partnering with Secret Ships to host Network for Nepal, a benefit for Trans-Himalayan Environment and Livelihood Programme (T-HELP) – NEPAL to raise money for Nepal earthquake relief projects on Friday, June 12 from 7-10 p.m. at Secret Ships. Very special guest, Yankila Sherpa, Vice President of Trans-Himalayan Environment and Livelihood Programme (T-HELP) – NEPAL will share what her organization T-HELP NEPAL is doing to raise awareness and donations to assist in building semi-permanent housing that will protect the recently homeless from monsoon rains. Ms. Sherpa is also the former Minister of State of Culture, Tourism and Civil Aviation for the Government of Nepal and Founder and Past President of the Federation of Women Entrepreneurs Association of Nepal.

The recent earthquakes in Nepal have killed an estimated 8,000 with the number of deaths still counting. More than twice the same number are reported severely injured. Thousands of people are still missing and more have been rendered homeless. The event seeks to raise financial support to help relief efforts.

The event will include a video presentation by Ms. Sherpa followed by a Q&A, complimentary refreshments, a silent auction and 20% of Secret Ships purchases going towards T-HELP.

WHO: Secret Ships and Pollinate Creative's Network for Nepal.

WHEN: June 12, 7–10 p.m. WHERE: Secret Ships, 316 Highland Avenue, Somerville.

WHY: To raise money for Nepal earthquake relief projects. HOW MUCH: Free to attend with opportunities to donate. RSVP: network-for-nepal. eventbrite.com.

Donations can also be made at T-HELP's fundraising page: http://bit.ly/thelp-nepal.

If you would like more information about this event, or to schedule an interview with Pollinate Creative or Secret Ships, please contact Monica at 617-256-5835, monica@pollinatecreative.com or Natalie at 617-460-1852, or email at natalie@ secretships.com.

OFF THE SHELF by Doug Holder

Somerville's Actor's Shakespeare Project:

'Henry the VI, Part 2'

After having a beer at my old haunt Jacob Wirth in the theatre district of Boston, I chased it down with excellent seafood Chou Fun at some Vietnamese joint on the edge of Chinatown. But I still had a hunger, and that was for theatre. So with my press ticket in hand I walked down Washington Street to Suffolk University's Modern Theatre to take in a performance of Shakespeare's Henry Vl, Part 2, as presented by Somerville's Actor's Shakespeare Project.

The first review I got of the play was by an earnest young usher by the name of Xavier Harvey who assured me that the play was well worth my while. He opined. "It starts out slow, but it really gets going." Harvey said he hopes to be on stage someday and I think he may well—or at the very least he will be a critic.

The play is directed by Tina Packer, a world-class director and interpreter of the Bard's work. Henry V, Part 2, is the middle of a trilogy of Henry plays written by a very young Shakespeare. It concerns the Earl of Suffolk (played by Craig Mathers) and his calculated power play in the court of the young and untried King Henry VI (well-played by Jesse Hinson). Suffolk hooks up Henry with a French Princess, Margaret (played by Jennie Israel), who looks old enough to be Henry's mother. The other feral nobles of Henry's court don't like this, and a bloody power play ensues. Henry, who in this production resembles a long blonde-haired hippy, seems to have an airhead affect at first, as if he had too much of the royal ganja. But throughout, he is a blonde fame to the darkness displayed by many of the sharks in his court.

The play is a real probe into the dark night of the soul, as the players on stage jockey for power and position. The greed evoked by the accomplished actors in this production is opened like a fresh flesh wound. The set is simple but evocative. It lets the darkness unfold – punctuated by hopeful light that breaks through the slats.

Since my brother Donald Holder is a multi-Tony Award winning lighting designer, I always look at the lighting in a play. Lighting designer Daniel H. Jentzen illuminates the tension, isolates the players in their private moments of sorrow with the unforgiving spotlight, and frames much of the play dramatically.

Many of the actors here play multiple roles. Allyn Burrows, the artistic director of the company, plays Gloucester, an uncle and protector of Henry. He gives the character gravitas and a sense of decency amidst this ship of fools. Steven Barkhimer, with is rubbery face and his Vaudevillian missteps, provides a great deal of comic relief in many of the roles he plays. There are many accomplished performances in this winning production.

Somerville poet Mary Alexandra Agner has a poem dedicated to the late astronomer Brian Marsden.

Keeper of the Skies

Brian Marsden, 1937-2010.

Celestial mechanic, comet-tamer calming gas jets, stalker of debris, another Mitchell building orbitology from logarithms calc-ed longhand and frames (or plates) of captured photons which were blamed when their reflector's planned trajectory intersected Earth's geometry. He was our herald of the outer flame.

Relinquish, solar system, all that light can share: revisit times, those ancient berths of rock and gas which elude human sight--to Brian Marsden, who catalogued your worth. Flare up your lamp! And set your ice to flight! For he has gone and nothing fills the dearth.

Recognition celebration for Superintendent Pierantozzi

The Somerville School Committee invites the entire community to a celebration recognizing Superintendent Tony Pierantozzi upon his retirement.

Please join in at the Cross Street entrance of the East Somerville Community School on Thursday, June 18, from 4:00-6:00 p.m. to honor the Superintendent's ten years of outstanding service to our students.

Entertainment will be provided by students from our award-winning music department and the after-school El Sistema Program. Light refreshments will be served.

A brief formal presentation will take place at 4:45 p.m. Otherwise, this is an informal celebration that we hope will bring people from across Somerville to honor and thank the Superintendent.
